Public Mood in Texas 'Nasty'

From UPI, LAT

DALLAS — Texas, home of Billie Sol Estes and the state where people used to drill wells crooked so they could steal other folks' oil, is in the scandal business again. This time the state has gone to the top.

Two weeks ago a representative of the Securities and Exchange Commission had some assistants carry boxes and boxes of papers into the federal courthouse in Dallas.

He then quietly filed a suit in the court of U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, the grandmotherly lady who swore in President Lyndon B. Johnson aboard Air Force One the afternoon of President John F. Kennedy's assassination.

In the 14 days that have passed that suit has caused a federal grand jury to indict one man for perjury, created the first bank failure in Houston since Texas' banking laws were established 66 years ago and put two insurance firms in the hands of the state government.

Most of all, however, it has sent a wave of distrust across the state. And much of it is aimed at high state officials — Governor Preston Smith included. The public mood is nasty.

"They want to hang somebody, and they don't know who," said state Rep. Joe Bernal, a Democrat from San Antonio. "They think the government is getting rich off the public."

No state official has been charged in court with any wrongdoing.

The public's reaction comes from testimony taken by the SEC in its investigation which led to the suit. The suit, now only a minor issue in the case, seeks to stop a group of people and companies from

Strike Continues

Bus Drivers Reject Offer

By DON COLLINS

The "young militants" won the day Monday and the Victoria - Vancouver transit strike continues.

Soon after the strikers had voted a mere 51.6 per cent rejection of a contract recommended by their own leaders, provincial Labor Minister Leslie Peterson told the Colonist:

"I will be discussing the strike with the cabinet tomorrow morning (Tuesday) and I will be making certain recommendations."

He said he could not elaborate because the recommendations would have to be heard first by the cabinet, then by the Legislature.

Under terms of the controversial B.C. Mediation Act. (Bill 33) cabinet could order compulsory arbitration and send the 1,800 bus drivers and mechanics in Victoria and Vancouver back to work.

Sources within the Amalgamated Transit Union told the Colonist they feel the vote was influenced considerably by a group they described variously as "young militants," a "radical element" and an "activist bloc."

Some union officers were unable to hide their disappointment over the outcome of the vote.

The result means continuation of a strike that has idled B.C. Hydro's complete fleets of more than 600 buses and trolley coaches in Vancouver and Victoria since Jan. 4.

★ ★ ★

The latest offer was recommended by the union's negotiating committee after it had spent the better part of last week in talks with Hydro negotiators.

Highlights of the offer:

- A wage increase over 27 months of 14¾ per cent on top of the $3.75 an hour earned now by drivers and the $4.35 rate of mechanics.
- Improvement in travel time pay.
- More pay for working statutory holidays.

Originally, Hydro had offered 13 per cent over two years. The union sought 20 per cent. The B.C. Mediation Commission, after hearings

Apollo Locked On Target After 'Burn'

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI) — Three U.S. space pilots outdistanced their mysterious troubles Tuesday and closed in on a Friday moon landing that would put the Apollo program back on the track.

They took dead aim on an ancient lunar valley late Monday with a 10-second blast of their big rocket engine that denied them a guaranteed free-return home if anything went wrong.

"That was a mighty good burn there," said Stuart A. Roosa, 37, who will have to fly the Kitty Hawk command ship alone in lunar orbit while his companions go in search of moon rocks up to five billion years old.

Alan B. Shepard, at 47, the oldest astronaut, and his rookie companion Edgar D. Mitchell, hope to spend up to 33 hours on the moon and take two moonwalks of up to five hours each.

Before their course change, they would have looped 2,335 miles behind the moon and headed back on a safe course for Earth had anything gone wrong. But now, they will skim far closer to the moon and must trigger another burst of rocket power to get themselves safely home.

The course change was necessary so the astronauts will arrive at the moon at the right time and at the right altitude to reach their desired landing spot. It is an ancient lunar valley where Apollo 13 was headed before a near disastrous oxygen tank blast sent its crew scurrying home for safety.

It appeared for many hours Monday the Apollo 14 landing also would be scrubbed because of difficulty with some docking latches. But the problem disappeared as mysteriously as it popped up.

The astronauts worked on the problem for nearly 12 hours before asking Houston control if they could get some sleep.

By the time they awoke ground controllers had decided that the problem, whatever it was, had disappeared.

Foes in House Lash Trudeau

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Bureau

OTTAWA — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, in a harder-hitting mood than he has ever shown before in his three years in the commons, has given Prime Minister Trudeau a rough parliamentary "welcome home" from the Commonwealth conference at Singapore.

The tough-talking opposition leader, from the moment he began speaking Monday in the House, ridiculed the prime minister, making caustic comment about Trudeau's leisure-hour "swinging," as he described it, at the conference.

And then he read him a sharp-worded "message" that the time for "frivolity" abroad was over and that it was long past time for "concerted action" to solve urgently "pressing problems" here at home.

★ ★ ★

Cuttingly critical too of the returning prime minister were both New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas and J. A. H. Lambert, Creditiste MP for Bellechasse.

It all came at the prime minister in response to the brief, quiet, low-key report he made on his Commonwealth mission.

In essence, he said he had discovered that "Canada could live without the Commonwealth, but not nearly so well."

★ ★ ★

And if he and the Canadian delegation had "reduced the chances" of future racial war in Africa and contributed "to the success of the conference" by defusing, to some extent, the potentially explosive issue of British arms sales to South Africa, then he felt their efforts had been "well expended."

Stanfield gave the prime minister some marks, even "congratulations" for the part he felt Trudeau had "played in preventing a Commonwealth break-up at this time."

But that was just about the only kind or even soft word the opposition leader had for the prime minister.

With no suggestion of a smile that might have been a signal that perhaps he was kidding, Stanfield referred to the prime minister's "behavior," as he termed, it with Joan the orangoutang which pulled at Trudeau's shorts, and recalled Douglas later, did some "smooching" with him.

This might be seen as "frivilous" conduct, suggested Stanfield, but he didn't see it that way, well knowing of the prime minister's "abiding affection for wildlife."

And he was prepared to

Journey 'Worth Effort'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commonwealth conference in Singapore was well worth the effort if it helped avert a general racial war in Africa, Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday.

Trudeau, who once described the Commonwealth as an anachronism, appeared to return from the recent conference with a higher opinion of the association.

The prime minister, who returned to Canada Friday, told the Commons Canada might survive without the Commonwealth, "but not nearly so well."

He was relieved that the conference had sent the contentious issue of arms sales to South Africa to a committee for consideration.

He was also pleased that a Canadian amendment to the declaration of Commonwealth principles had been unanimously accepted.

"Wherever I went, I am happy and proud to report that the name of Canada was held in warm and sincere respect," Trudeau said, praising Canadians abroad and government policy over the years for accumulating for Canada "an enviable reputation."

"This high national reputation places upon our country a special obligation to conduct our affairs both internally and externally in keeping with the desire of all men to live in a world which contributes to

BULLETIN

Jobless: Trudeau Optimistic

OTTAWA (CP) — The seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate has likely reached its peak and will start declining substantially over the next few months, Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday.

Trudeau refused to entertain suggestions that the government adopt new emergency measures to produce more jobs.

★ ★ ★

Trudeau said the opposition parties should not expect new measures to be announced every week or so. The government had acted to stimulate the economy last March and again in June, September and December.

These measures now were taking effect and unemployment would improve "as time goes by."

December figures showed a seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate of 6.6 per cent. The figures represent 538,000 out of work.

Trudeau told the Commons absolute numbers would likely increase through January and February but the rate, when seasonal factors are taken into account, would likely fall below 6.6.

Huge Lockout Threatened

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — The government Monday threatened its employees with a "massive lockout" if their unions go ahead with enlarged strike actions later this week.

About 2,500 government employees went on strike Monday to press for higher wages. As many as 50,000 employees could be involved in the lockout.

'Canadian' Stays CPR Ordered

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission ordered the Canadian Pacific Railway Monday to continue daily operation, year-round, of its transcontinental passenger train, The Canadian.

But it said the railway should put sleeping and dining car services on a paying basis or drop them. Subsidies for dining car losses will be ended next year and those for sleeping car losses shortly after.

For long-term policy, meanwhile, the ruling proposes the "rationalization" of the money-losing transcontinental services of both CP Rail and Canadian National Railways, the Crown-owned line.

The commission intends to undertake a comprehensive study of both services as soon as CN can calculate the losses of its Super-Continental. The aim will be to develop one basic passenger service healthy enough to justify continuing subsidies from the federal government.

The ruling, signed by commission president J. W. Pickersgill, brought an immediate, angry reaction from spokesmen for unions which have been fighting any reduction in services offered to rail travellers.

"The commison has done a magnificent job of setting the stage to foist the obligation to provide passenger service entirely on to the back of the taxpayer through the Crown-owned corporation," stated an official of the United Transport Union.

The transport commission's ruling follows its decision last June to reject an application by CP Rail to scrap The Canadian.

The railway stated the Montreal - Vancouver service lost $15.1 million in 1968.

West Berlin Recuperates

BERLIN (AP) — Traffic on West Berlin access ways returned to normal Monday but six days of East German harassment left heavy economic losses in its wake.

Slide Links Opened

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The Canadian Pacific Railway main line through the Rocky Mountains was cleared at 9:15 p.m. MST Monday about five hours after an avalanche blocked the line and the Trans-Canada Highway.

The highway was re-opened to one-way traffic at 10:25 p.m. and two-way traffic was expected to be restored shortly after midnight.

Parks department employees set the slide off in Yoho National Park Monday afternoon with 12 pounds of explosive dropped from a helicopter when it was feared "the slightest vibration from a truck would set it off."

The slide was the latest in a series that has plugged several highways in the Banff region. The Banff-Jasper Highway and Highway 93 linking Radium Hot Springs, B.C. and the Trans-Canada Highway are closed until further notice.

★ ★ ★

Ninety guests at Sunshine Village ski resort near Banff were taken out by bus Monday after being trapped in the ski area for two days after a series of slides plugged the access road.

Richardson Subsidiary Must Pay $1.25 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — The Exchequer Court of Canada has ordered Richardson Terminals Ltd. of Winnipeg — a subsidiary of James Richardson and Sons Ltd. of Winnipeg — to pay back taxes of almost $1.25 million on profits transferred to an associated firm from 1963 to 1967.

Involved in the case were "an interwoven family group of companies" controlled by James Richardson and Sons, owned at the time by James A. Richardson, his brother George and their sisters.

Rivers Falling

House Normal Again— Crowds, Smiles, Snarls

OTTAWA (CP) — While Prime Minister Trudeau was in Asia — ever since the House resumed after the Christmas recess — the chamber never seemed its usual self.

The daily question period tended to drag. There didn't appear to be an excessive dose of either smiles or snarls, and even the occasional attempt at humor seemed flat.

Then Trudeau returned to the Commons Monday. The officials' gallery was packed, and so was the gallery reserved for senators and their friends. There was standing room only in the press gallery.

When Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield rose a few minutes later, his followers tried to outdo the Liberals. Then the New Democrats had a turn when their leader, T. C. Douglas, got to his feet.

Seven-Month Revolt Tapers Off in Italy

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (LAT) — The first trains in 10 days rolled in and out of this strife-torn city Monday amid signs that its seven-month revolt may be tapering off.

Bank clerks also voted to return to work as a climate of exhaustion and revulsion to further violence set in after 15 bomb explosions over the weekend.

And in Rome, compromise appeared to be taking shape in the government's decision to name the rival town of Catanaro capital of a new administrative region. It was this that touched off the revolt.

The end seemed approaching Sunday as parishioners emerged from mid-morning mass to find three motorized military and police patrols at the alert along the garbage-littered main street.

"You must understand that Reggio has been the principal city of this region beginning 1,000 years before the birth of Jesus Christ — for 3,000 years," Fr. Giovanni Rongoni said.

"And Catanaro," Father Rongoni added disdainfully, "why, it has been a city for only 1,500 years."

believe Trudeau's interesting interlude with the orangoutang "may well have been a serious discussion, perhaps about the possibility of a cabinet appointment for 'Joan as part of the government's ministerial reorganization program."

★ ★ ★

Still unsmiling, Stanfield "hoped nobody will think I am being unfair to 'Joan.' "

The Conservatives and New Democrats found it all very funny, and the Liberals, finding it decidedly unfunny, howled their protest.

Stanfield then went on to Trudeau's interlude with the 350-pound turtle the prime minister had flipped over on its back, leaving the giant creature "helpless, its head withdrawn under cover, feet pawing the air in protest and all its immense potential immobilized."

The spectacle must have made the prime minister think, momentarily of home, went on Stanfield, with Trudeau possibly asking himself as he contemplated the hapless turtle, "I wonder how the finance minister back in Ottawa is making out with the economy."

At this point Stanfield bore in, recalling that before he had left for Singapore, the prime minister had glowed that inflation was cured and that unemployment was the urgent problem now.

But the prime minister must have neglected to mention any of it to the cabinet, complained Stanfield, for how else could the government's "lack of concern," during Trudeau's absence, be explained?

However, the prime minister's journey to the Far East had accomplished one thing here at home, went on Stanfield.

★ ★ ★

It had "provided a vivid and accurate picture," with the prime minister out of the country, "of just the kind of government he leads."

Removal of the "colorful Trudeau wrapper," he related, "better enables us all to know what is really in the cabinet package."

For with the "charming" Trudeau away, he continued, "we get the real cabinet content of arrogance and complacency that becomes less and less acceptable as times become more and more difficult."

The opposition had "a message" for the home-come prime minister, related Stanfield:

"The country no longer can afford delay, wants no more sweet talk or vague promises, but wants action and wants it now; effective action to fight mass unemployment, not next summer, not next spring, but right now. We can wait no longer."

Douglas, noting that on his Commonwealth mission the prime minister had been "playing Santa Claus" with money gifts and loans and promises of more and more aid to come, wondered if charity didn't really begin at home.

★ ★ ★

He took the prime minister to task, too, for having hinted that should India leave the Commonwealth over the South African arms sales issue, "Canada would not want to feel less pure."

Douglas was indignant.

Prime Ministers come and go, he said, and so do governments — but the Commonwealth persists, "and no statesman has the right of talking about taking a country out of that great association."

The people of the Commonwealth, insisted Douglas, "are prepared to stay in it, and I don't think any disagreement should lead to talk about it disintegrating."

★ ★ ★

The Commonwealth "would have survived" even if there had been a sharper difference over the arms sales, said Douglas, and accused the prime minister of doing little more than dulling the edge of that difference.

Another Commonwealth prime minister leaving Singapore had been deposed by the military at home, recounted the NDP leader.

There had been a coup-of-sorts in Canada, too, he reported, "general discontent has taken over with an army between 500,000 and 750,000 unemployed."

Creditiste MP Lambert also reminded Trudeau that while foreign aid was all very well, there were some pressing obligations to be met first here at home.

The prime minister perhaps had provoked this response when, in telling about Canadian aid to be stepped up for "have-not" Commonwealth countries, warned that in the under-developed sections of the world "rich and white are synoymous — and we forget these facts at our peril."

dealing in a certain life insurance stock.

The testimony, contained in those boxes carried up the courthouse steps, discloses a series of purchases which netted Smith, his stock partner, the Speaker of the Texas House, two legislators, two legislative assistants and pro golfer Doug Sanders, quick profits.

Smith, inaugurated to his second term on the day the case broke, earned $62,500 from the stock purchases.

Smith and the others were loaned money without collateral by a Houston banker — Frank W. Sharp. With this money they bought shares in an insurance company which was also owned by Sharp.

While the purchases and sales were going on — from July to September of 1969 — the Texas legislature passed a banking bill favored by Sharp which would allow state banks to get out from under the thumb of the federal Deposit Insurance Corp., and be insured instead by state insurance companies.

The bill breezed through both houses of the legislature during a special tax session, but was vetoed by Smith.

The bank involved was the Sharpstown State Bank of Houston, and disclosure of the whole affair caused a run on its resources. The bank folded Jan. 25.

★ ★ ★

Some wept. Some laughed. Most looked depressed. The doors remained locked, the blinds drawn. There was no response from within, where about 50 bank examiners pored over the records.

It looked and sounded like something out of the depression of the '30s.

Sharpstown State Bank sits on the ground floor of an ultra-modern 20-storey office building, in the middle of the hugely successful and money-rich Sharpstown shopping centre, which is surrounded by affluent apartment houses and residential areas.

It was the biggest single bank failure since 1934 when the Deposit Insurance Corp. was established. The next biggest occurred in 1965 when San Francisco national bank, with deposits of $40 million, was liquidated.

Bus Drivers Reject Offer

boycotted by the union, proposed a 14½ per cent hike.

Had the membership voted in favor of the contract Monday, it was anticipated that the buses and coaches would be back on the road Wednesday after a day of servicing.

Almost all of the strikers cast ballots providing a vote turnout that was described as not too far below 100 per cent.

Hydro chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said in a telephone interview from Vancouver: "I may change my mind in the morning after talking to our directors, but I don't think there will be any more negotiations as far as Hydro is concerned."

Shrum said he was very disappointed with the result, adding: "It is very unfortunate that the old-age pensioners and the people on low incomes — the ones who have been hardest hit — will have to go on suffering indefinitely."

In Victoria, Silver Threads Service executive director Catherine Horne said she hated to think of "the disappointment that will follow when the old-age pensioners discover the buses won't be operating again by Wednesday as they had expected."

She said telegrams would be sent once again to both sides and to the labor minister urging that something be done to end the strike. This time the messages would be more strongly worded, she suggested.

Old people, the poor and wives from one-car families have been described as the main victims of the strike.

Business has also suffered to a certain degree, but there has been no indication of actual panic from either the citizens or stores.

Lions Sign Ex-Redskin

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference have announced the signing of former Washington Redskin receiver John Love.

Love, 26, was a fourth-round draft choice of the Redskins in 1967. Following his rookie year with Washington, he spent two years in the army, rejoined the Redskins at their 1970 training camp and played in four pre-season games before his release. In 1967, he was runner up for the National Football League rookie-of-the-year award.

Lions Seek Books For Masset

PARKSVILLE — Members of Parksville Lions' Club are collecting books for a library at Masset in the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The drive resulted from a letter from the Masset Haida Lions, outlining difficulties in supporting a library in the small community. The letter pointed out that in a community as remote as Masset, a library is a vital part of social life for all ages and the answer to a real need for contact with the outside world.

Good non-fiction books and academic journals are wanted, as well as fiction.

"To this end, all Canadians must dedicate themselves consciously in order to be rid of racial or regional or linguistic prejudices, for these are belittling to the world, to Canada, and to use as individuals."

Internationally, "Canada cannot live apart from the world." If Canada could influence events through attendance at important international conferences, it had a duty to do so.

"This duty does not flow from some vague international role to be played by Canada. Canada must act according to how it perceives its aims and interests.

"It is in our interest that there not be a general racial war in African in the near or distant future.

"If the Commonwealth conference reduced the chance of such a war, and if the Canadian delegation contributed to the success of that conference, then I submit that the effort was well expended."

Trudeau said the world is populated mostly by "persons who are desperately poor and whose colonial experience in many instances leads them to question the values and the sincerity of the developed countries.

"And too often as well, rich and white are regarded by them as synonymous. We forget these facts at our peril.

"In Singapore it quickly became apparent that the future of the world will not necessarily be determined in accordance with European conceptions."

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas said later Trudeau might be in difficulty lecturing others about arms sales when Canada "has been selling over $300 million worth of arms to the United States to carry on a bloody and senseless war in Southeast Asia."

During the question period later, Trudeau bitterly reminded Douglas that Canada has publicly and privately recorded its opposition to arms sales to South Africa.

Conservatives pressed the government to use its position in the association of French-speaking countries to speak out against French sales of arms to South Africa. Trudeau said the association isn't the same as the Commonwealth.

He reiterated that Canada has made opposition to any such sales clear at the United Nations.

Crash Blamed On Balloon

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — A hit-and-run balloon was blamed Sunday for a balloon-automobile crash near here — perhaps the first in history.

Two participants in the St. Paul Winter Carnival balloon race were sailing along at about 50 feet, when a strong downdrafts sent the balloon skidding onto the ice of White Bear Lake.

The Gondola skidded across the ice and smashed into the car of a carnival official. The two balloonists were thrown out, but received only minor injuries.

Twins Top Ski Race

BARRIE, ONT. (CP) — Identical twins from Inuvik, N.W.T., took the top two places Saturday in the featured five-kilometres women's race at the North American cross-country ski championship.

Shirley Firth won with a time of 20 minutes flat. She finished 31 seconds ahead of sister Sharon. The girls are both members of Canada's national cross-country ski team.

Hyperkinetic Helped

By G. C. Thosteson, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I just read an article from a mother describing her son as super-energetic, uncontrollable, and impossible to handle. She said her son was hyperkinetic.

The description fits my six-year-old son. He cannot go from one room to the next without practically running. When he gets mad he is unreasonable and uncontrollable. I am just about at my rope's end.

Can this problem be corrected by discipline alone or is is necessary to have counseling? Could a regular pediatrician help? — Mrs. R. R.

It has been in fairly recent years — the last decade of so — that general recognition of the hyperkinetic child has been suspected. There is, fortunately, something that can be done about it.

With such a child, sheer dicipline won't work. It can't. His nervous system is such that he can't sit still or hold his attention on any single topic more than briefly. Nor does sedation or use of tranquilizers necessarily work. Sometimes, perhaps, but with other such children they are utter failures.

Fortunately it has been learned (although the reasons are not clear) that amphetamines many times will work. These are stimulants, but curiously they permit such a child to focus his energies and thoughts. He's still energetic but no longer is it random, scattered energy.

In still other cases a drug called a psychic energizer, ordinarily used to help people out of depression,, is very effective.

Child guidance clinics handle such children. So do child psychiatrists. So also do some, although not all, pediatricians.

Counsel from such sources is necessary. Except in extreme cases, the layman cannot reliably tell whether a child is truly hyperactive or is just a troublesome youngster who won't — rather than can't — behave.

Bomb Deaths Drop, Treatment Rises

HIROSHIMA, Japan (UPI)—Seventy persons died in 1970 from the after-effects of the atomic bomb dropped in Hiroshima, medical officials announced Monday.

The Hiroshima Gembaku (atomic bombing) hospital said the number was one fewer than in 1969, but said 49,578 persons were treated last year. an increase of about 900 over the previous year.

Laotian Reds Charge:

Allies Plan Invasion

SAIGON (UPI) — Laotian communists charged Monday that "tens of thousands" of U.S., South Vietnamese and Thai troops are massing for an invasion of Southern Laos. It said the number of deep "intelligence forays" into Laos had been increased to prepare for the campaign.

There was no comment on the communist charge in either Saigon or Washington. In the Laotian capital of Vientiane official government spokesmen said they knew nothing of such a move by allied forces.

The chief spokesman for the Laotian military command, Gen. Thongphan Knoeksy, said, however, it was possible that South Vietnamese troops supported by U.S. warplanes had intruded into Laotian territory briefly to destroy communist supply depots or harass sanctuaries used by North Vietnamese troops.

Laos is technically neutral. It has protested against earlier infiltration of upwards of 40,000 North Vietnamese troops into parts of Northern and Central Laos. Finance Minister Prince Sissouk Na Champassack said Monday his government also would protest any incursion by American or South Vietnamese units.

At the same time, Laos has tacitly approved the U.S. air campaign against the Ho Chi Minh trail in Eastern Laos, saying "that it is a matter between the United States and North Vietnam. Hanoi troops have controlled that area of Laos for years and Laotian forces have made little effort to contest them.

More than 400 U.S. warplanes, including B52 stratofortresses, attacked the trail Monday in the 116th day of saturation bombings designed to stop the flow of communist war material into Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam.

"The spokesman of the Pathet Lao central committee issued a communique accusing the United States of massing tens of thousands of Saigon (South Vietnamese) and U.S. troops on the South Vietnam-Laotian border during the past few days while stepping up the number of military intelligence forays deep inside the territory of Southern Laos," the Hanoi broadcast said.

Radio Hanoi said the Pathet Lao condemned the actions as "a protracted threat to peace in Southeast Asia and the world" and said the United States would "have to assume the responsibility for all the dire consequences which would ensue from its reckless action."

Calm Restored In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An overnight curfew brought calm to the East Los Angeles Mexican-American barrio Monday following violent skirmishes in which one Chicano was killed, 48 persons injured and 88 arrested.

Sunday's window-breaking and looting rampage in a business area followed a peaceful rally at Belvedere Park of 5,000 Chicanos protesting alleged police brutality.

County supervisors declared a state of emergency and imposed a 6:20 p.m. to 5 a.m. curvew in a 10-square mile area.

Father Testifies

Convicted Girl Never Problem

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The father of one of the convicted Tate-LaBianca killers described his daughter Monday as a girl with a prize collection of stuffed animals who sang in the church choir and was so well liked by their neighbors that she was always welcome in everyone's home.

Joseph L. Krenwinkel, an insurance agent in his late 40s whose face was lined with worry, testified in a husky voice in the penalty phase of the trial that his daughter Patricia had never been a disciplinary problem in all the years that she lived with them.

Krenwinkel was the first witness called by the defence in an attempt to persuade the jury that the young woman and two other female co-defendants of Charles Manson should not be sent to the gas chamber but given life imprisonment instead.

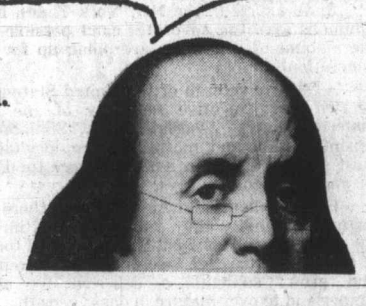

Krenwinkel's divorced wife, Dorothy, broke into sobs as she sat in the rear of the courtroom while the father began describing the childhood of the young woman who was accused on the witness stand of plunging a knife repeatedly into the body of coffee heiress Abigail Folger and also participating in the LaBianca killings.

Under questioning by defence attorney Paul Fitzgerald, Krenwinkel said that his daughter had been an "exceedingly normal child."

"She entertained herself and didn't need a floorshow ot keep her happy," he said. "She loved animals and was very gentle with them. She had a collection of stuffed animals which she prized very highly."

As her father testified, Miss Krenwinkel paid him little attention but whispered and giggled instead with the other two female defendants, Susan Atkins and Leslie Van Houten.

Peking Delegates Greeted

OTTAWA (UPI) — Eleven Communist Chinese stepped off a Montreal-to-Ottawa train Monday, were welcomed, expressed their good wishes to the Canadian people and then went about the the business of setting up their country's first North American embassy.

No bells were rung, no bugles blown, no one demonstrated. All was very proper.

The Chinese, decked out against the Canadian winter cold in identical fur hats and overcoats over grey Mao shirts, were met by Arthur Andrew, director of Pacific and Asian affairs in the department of external affairs, and Tom Reid, deputy chief of protocal.

The arrival of the Chinese followed by three weeks the arrival of a similar Canadian contingent in Peking. By mid-April the countries are expected to have set up permanent embassies in the Canadian and Chinese capitals.

Canada and Communist China announced they were establishing diplomatic relations Oct. 13.

Hsu Chung-fu, the Chinese charge d'affairs and head of the delegation, issued a brief statement which was translated by an interpreter.

"Please allow me to express my thanks to the government of Canada and the department of external affairs and to other responsible officials for the warm welcome accorded me here," he said.

"As you all know, the Chinese and Canadian people have a long history of friendship."

Just One More Step

THERE IS A CRYING NEED in the new "arrest legislation" before the federal Parliament for a clear definition of what is a satisfactory identification of a suspect.

This is not to say that the planned reform of the law governing arrest, bail and detention of persons awaiting trial is wrong. On the contrary, it is long overdue.

It is described by Victoria's chief constable, John F. Gregory, as "a practical piece of legislation with a very humane approach to a particularly pressing problem." But it doesn't go far enough on the identification question.

Basically, the legislation is designed to lessen the number of arrests made of crime suspects through issuance of more summonses. It is similar to legislation introduced last June which died on the order paper.

It contains some changes which, it is to be hoped, will assist in its passage this time. What may be its "survival clauses" spell out for the arresting officer certain guidelines to be used in deciding whether an arrest should be made or whether instead the suspected lawbreaker should be summonsed to court to answer charges.

If the legislation is passed, a policeman will be able to arrest, without fears of lawsuits or other repercussions, where evidence must be secured or preserved; where only an arrest would prevent an offence or the continuation of an offence; and where a suspect cannot or will not provide satisfactory identification.

It is this latter situation where the lawmakers should be exercising more thought.

Unless "satisfactory identification" is clarified there could be abuse by over-zealous law officers which could lead to a costly system of compulsory identification cards for everyone.

Perhaps a driver's licence or a social security card identification might be considered satisfactory. But it must be defined and the definition must apply to all parts of the country.

Arrest of a suspect because he refuses to identify himself is acceptable. But an arrest because a policeman does not think identification offered is satisfactory is not acceptable. The new legislation should go further to cover this point.

Welcome Home

Wilderness Areas for All Time

SOME INTERESTING POINTS are made by an American forestry expert on the question of preservation of wilderness areas. He hits at those who advocate the keeping of more and more timberland in a "forever wild" state.

In an article in the New York Times, Fred C. Simmons says the advocates can't possible realize the amount of grief they are piling up for future generations.

A 30-year veteran of the United States Forest Service and executive secretary of the Northeastern Loggers' Association, Mr. Simmons says "disintegration and mortality" are inevitable for most stands of timber. And that goes for Douglas fir and redwoods, he says.

By not allowing them to be cut there is the distinct possibility they will become extinct. And the forester explains: sunlight is required for many of the more attractive species of trees to reproduce and grow; sunlight is deprived by allowing timberland to over-mature in dense growth.

This results in "inferior" species of trees taking over, and Mr. Simmons points to various locations in the east where virgin stands of white pine have been succeeded by hemlock and beech, and also the disappearance of birches, the pines and black cherry.

He goes on: "Our descendants will not only find the 'preserved' stands we bequeath to them inferior economically and esthetically, but also pretty much 'biological deserts,' providing insufficient food and shelter to support sizable populations of deer, rabbits, elk, beaver and the predators that depend on them, or even of game and song birds."

Mr. Simmons' arguments give strength to the lumbering industry's fight against vast wilderness areas, and are worthy of consideration in any moves towards barring logging from wide tracts of forest land.

What he is advocating boils down to scientific forest management with controlled timber harvesting for increased productivity in the woods.

It is all very well to say nature will look after maintenance of the forests with thinning of timber stands through lightning-set fires and epidemics of insects and disease.

But growth and spread of population hits hard at this argument. Leaving the development of future forests to the process of nature would demand a complete departure from the woods by man. There could be no controls on his part of floods, fires or pests that were responsible, before his time, in the reproduction of many of the species of trees now enjoyed.

Could there not be a compromise? Instead of huge areas being set aside, perhaps the addition of many more smaller reserves of virgin forests, such as the Cathedral Grove area near the Alberni Valley, would satisfy.

Mr. Simmons would argue that they, too, eventually would become "biological deserts," but a system could be devised for the establishment of a series of cathedral groves in succession which would ensure wilderness areas for all time.

Mood to Change in France

Clouds on Economic Horizon

By BORIS KIDEL

INFLATION and growing unemployment loom ominously on the horizon but at present President Georges Popidou and his ministers are still in a self-congratulatory mood about the performance of France's economy in 1970.

With unconcealed pride Pompidou interrupted a statement being made by Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing at a recent cabinet meeting to proclaim that France's economy had become one of the strongest in western Europe. It is true that the devaluation of the franc 17 months ago, one of Pompidou's first major decisions after he succeeded President de Gaulle, has acted as a highly successful cure for France's ailing economy.

With a gain of $2,570 million last year, France's foreign exchange reserves have again been replenished after a catastrophic deficit in the first half of 1969. Profiting from devaluation, French business men increased their exports in 1970 by 19.6 per cent over the preceding year.

What also helped the economy was the relative calm on the labor front. In the first half of last year, Giscard d'Estaing told Parliament, the loss of working days owing to industrial disputes was five times greater in Britain than in France. Overall, the French can certainly claim a remarkable achievement in transforming a predominantly agricultural country into a major industrial power within 25 years.

Today, in terms of output, France belongs to the leading five nations in the world. Only outclassed by the United States and the Soviet Union, she ranks in the same category as Germany and Japan and lies ahead of Britain. To keep up this process of industrialization Pompidou has made it his goal to double output by 1980.

However, the immediate future is clouded by the threat of rising prices. Already last year's 5.5 per cent increase was well above the figure foreseen by Giscard d'Estaing in his economic blueprints. In 1971 he is regarded by experts as dangerously over-optimistic when he predicts a mere 3 per cent increase. The trend towards substantial price increases has already been set in motion by spiralling food prices during the exceptionally cold weather in December and January and by increases in transport rates decided by the government.

Despite the dangers, the government sees no cause for immediate alarm because world-wide inflationary pressures appear to be making less of an impact in France than in other industrialized countries. What reassures the French is the fact that prices in the United States and Britain rose more sharply last year than in France.

They are also reassured by the distinct increase in German industrial prices. "Switzerland, so reputed for economic wisdom, experienced exactly the same price increase as France last year," Giscard d'Estaing remarked to journalists the other day.

He knows that if prices get out of control during the coming year, the chief victim would be France's export trade. The inevitable consequence would be a slowdown in Pompidou's industrialization program with the ultimate danger of stagnation and recession. What Pompidou and his ministers tend to ignore is the harsh reality of France's industrial production last year.

Despite the success with exports, industrial output remained virtually stagnant throughout the year. Giscard d'Estaing's austerity measures, designed to ward off inflation, curbed domestic consumption so drastically that some French industries found themselves in serious trouble. The motor industry alone registered a 12 per cent drop in car sales during the first eight months of 1970.

This lack of demand, which acted as a brake on industrial expansion, is one of the main causes of rising unemployment. Today 500,000 Frenchmen are estimated to be out of work, the largest number in 10 years. The aspect which causes most concern to the government is that about 200,000 of them are under 25.

In the case of the young, the reasons for unemployment appear to be more social than economic. Over half of those looking for work for the first time lack any kind of professional training. Moreover, all age-groups are disinclined to work in industry. Out of 100 French looking for work only 50 are prepared to work in factories while out of 100 jobs offered by labor exchanges 80 involve factory work.

This has led to the paradoxical situation that, at a moment when unemployment is reaching the danger line, France is employing the record number of 3,200,000 foreign workers. Increasingly, Frenchmen are no longer prepared to undertake heavy manual work. Some 22 per cent of France's construction work and 17 per cent of the jobs in the steel industry are being performed by foreigners.

One of the grim facts facing the government as it tries to find solutions for unemployment among the young is that 340,000 students are studying law and literature at the universities today. Only a small fraction can hope to obtain jobs which correspond to their academic qualifications. Yet at the same time young people are shunning the new university technology institutes where 17,900 students are occupying 43,000 available places.

Today the government must direct young people towards industrial work and at the same time provide jobs for them. One of Pompidou's main goals is to create 525,000 new jobs in industry during the coming six years. For this kind of expansion French industry must overcome its present sluggish state.

While Giscard d'Estaing still regards it as his prime duty to defend France against inflation, Pompidou believes the time has come for the government to press the foot gently on the accelerator and to stimulate the economy into greater activity. The president is only too acutely aware that a rise in the unemployment figure would harm his Gaullist Party in the municipal elections two months ahead.

For this reason he decided at a recent cabinet meeting that part of the government funds, frozen as a precaution against inflation, should now be released as an encouragement for economic expansion. During the coming year France's economic welfare will depend on a sustained export drive and greater domestic consumption than in 1970.

The economy is in a delicate state of balance. Like most other European countries, France is today exposed to the world-wide danger of "stagflation" — stagnation plus inflation. The relatively sound results of 1970 are today no guarantee that Pompidou and Giscard d'Estaing will still be in a self-congratulatory mood at the end of this year.

Barbers' Cut Back

From the Ottawa Journal

Barbers in Perth Amboy, New Jersey, are taking fiscal revenge on long hairs. The barbers are refusing to patronize businesses owned by or employing longhaired men.

It seems new hair styles have cut into barbering profits by as much as 40 per cent. The results could be interesting. If the businessmen won't get their hair cut and the barbers won't buy new suits it will be hard to tell who is an honest hippie.

Apples Coming From Coal Mines

Working from an old farm near Philipsburg, W. G. "Turk" Jones has planted more than 35 million trees in the past 20 years — most of them on blighted land that had been stripped for coal.

More than 5,000 square miles of the United States have been ripped apart by men and machines seeking coal, gold, clay, stone, sand, gravel, phosphate rock, and other resources, the National Geographic Society says.

To meet increasing demands, another 150,000 acres are gouged and blasted open by strip miners every year.

But spurred by public outcry and state legislation, mining companies in recent years have been reclaiming spoilbanks and turning them into productive land.

Today, some of the juiciest apples in the supermarket may have come from a coal mine. Everything from schools and $50,000 homes to golf courses and state parks now occupy abandoned strip mines that have been carefully contoured and seeded.

A few mine operators reseeded old mining sites as early as the 1920s, with varying results. As the only way to reach veins of coal and other ore lying near the surface, strip mining expanded sharply following the Second World War. Greater reclamation efforts were necessary.

In a recent book, The New Forest, "Turk" Jones recalls his first commission by a mining executive to plant trees on a spoilbank in 1950, after Pennsylvania had enacted a reclamation law.

"There won't be a damned thing grow, but go ahead and plant it," the mine owner grumbled. "That's the law!"

The tree farmer admits he also had his doubts, but he planted 1,000 seedlings "on one of the rockiest and most forbidding" mounds of crushed black shale. The trees thrived.

Nearly 60 species of trees and shrubs since have taken root, turning the barren spoilbanks into forest where game abounds.

Pennsylvania and other states where stripping now takes place have learned much about what grows at old mine sites, and why.

Areas that look bleak often prove rich in nutrients uncovered by the mining. Snow and rain, assisted by proper grading and occasionally by applications of lime, leach acids from spoilbanks. Sometimes a highly toxic segment requires extra help.

An 'Affront'

Having read the article covering last Tuesday's public meeting at the University of Victoria on the current university professors' contract renewal dispute, I am appalled by the intellectual ineptitude of those — with the exception of the chancellor — representing the administration.

One administration member claimed that faculty and students tended "to regard this university as wholly their own" and that society which is "paying the shot" will not "allow this microcosm to continue on its own." These remarks which so vulgarly affront the dignity of free enquiry (i.e. the real spirit of higher education) are a typical example of what alienates any intelligent student or faculty member. Would the administration have us believe that the university is some division of a large corporation whose sole purpose is to profit its shareholders — society in this case? What self-respecting student would want to spend this time in such an intellectual vacuum as this administration seems to want to create — nay, perpetuate!?

It is frighteningly apparent to me that a decision by this administration to refuse contract renewal should probably be interpreted as a tribute to the intelleotual vitality of the individual in question. No wonder students increasingly demonstrate their morbid boredom with school when our system rewards those who would teach us to be automatons and rejects those who would stimulate the spirit of free enquiry.

Hear, Hear

The points raised by M. P. Paine in his recently published letters to the editor on the subject of profits are well taken.

Everyone engaged in the sordid business of working to make a living has to make a profit from the sale of his energy otherwise he could not even dress himself to go to work.

Nor could he go fishing or hunting or flash around a lake in a speedboat during summer weekends or go skiing during the winter.

The evil cancer which has eaten into the Canadian and American economy with such disastrous results during the last few years, is consequent upon unrestrained consumer purchases of goods on the deferred payment plan.

This abnormally expensive method for the acquisition of merchandise means that someone, other than the actual purchaser, must pay for the merchandise otherwise the purveyors of energy would have to go home with an empty pay cheque.

Money can only be used once. High interest rates to finance consumer debt, miscalled consumer credit, draws money away from self amortizing investments, such as the financing of new homes, sewers, roads, etc.

The net result being that self amortizing projects of many kinds are unable to secure funds except at exorbitant rates of interest, which of course increases the costs of goods and services, raises the cost of living and is the root cause of unemployment.

Our British Columbia government is a government dedicated to making profits from its operations, which are passed on to the taxpayers in many ways.

One has only to read the report of the auditor general to realize that the existing federal government is sublimely dedicated to making financial losses, which it also passes on to the taxpayers in manifold ways, not the least of which is unemployment.

Much more could be said, but this should be sufficient to back up Mr. Paine's arguments and show the people of British Columbia where their bread is buttered and who has his finger in the cookie jar.

ROBERT B. MORISON,
Victoria.

Substitute

If, in view of the reported sales by France to South Africa in recent years of large quantities of arms and munitions, no doubt usable on land as well as at sea, Mr. Stokes were to write you a letter similar to that appearing in your issue of today over his name, but substituting France for Britain ("Great" or otherwise) you would no doubt be pleased to provide the necessary space.

WILLIAM RAE,

Hunting

As avid bird hunters, dog owners and trainers, we of the Island Pointer Club would like to speak out in favor of re-opening the larger areas of the Saanich peninsula for the hunting of pheasants and other game birds.

As has been brought to light in some areas these birds are becoming a bit of a pest to several farmers, who derive their living from these lands.

Although we do not agree that there is an over-abundance of birds we are of the opinion there is a great source of enjoyment and recreational activity being lost by not being able to hunt in this area.

As far as the safety aspect of this venture, most people agree that shot guns have a danger range of only approximately 100 yards and also the intent was, we believe, to open parcels of 25 acres or more. In this event there is little danger of any injury.

We feel that upland game shooting and the use of bird dogs in the field is a gentleman's sport and many dog trainers will hunt all day for the right opportunity to shoot a bird over a young dog.

This, in itself, eliminates the chances of vandalism or needless shooting.

We trust that we are backed in our views by the Vancouver Island retriever club and that also the game department will sponsor this approach to controlled shooting.

BRYAN ROBINSON,

The Great Swabian League, one of the last international police bodies of medieval Europe, was dissovled 437 years ago today—in 1534—after 200 years of more or less continuous existence. Mind-Manipulation Techniques Ready—for Good or Evil

By HARRY NELSON
From Los Angeles

There's no such thing as a conformity pill — yet. But science is providing new tools which may make it possible to manipulate human behavior more selectively and more effectively than ever before.

These tools hold the promise of correcting — or at least taking the sharp edges off — many of man's least desirable behavior patterns. Some may also be useful for adding new dimensions to his good behavior.

But, as with the advent of the atomic age 25 years ago, the potential for good may at times become obscured by the potential for abuse. Examples:

● Enzyme-inhibiting drugs may eradicate certain disabling mental depressions — or cripple the brain of a foe.

● Therapy can turn underachieving students or deliquents into bookworms — or brainwash a television audience.

● Excising a tiny area of the brain can restore peace to a tormented individual who erupts in unpredictable violence—or turn a rebel into a mouse.

● An individual in the near future may be able to control his own brainwave frequencies which are associated with certain emotions; could this be applied to large numbers of people via television to achieve "desired" states of mind?

● Two different modes of behavior modification might be combined — drugs plus learning techniques, for example — to produce still more potent tools.

There is nothing new about attempts to control another person's behavior. Physical force has been used since man appeared on earth. Hypnosis and psychotherapy have been around a long time.

But the newer techniques open up possibilities, especially when used in combination, which appear to be more potent.

How will society accept them? With open arms or with fear and aversion?

Dr. Perry London, professor of psychology and psychiatry at the University of Southern California, says in his book Behavior Control, published last year, that society will welcome the new technologies — in fact already has.

By the time 1984 arrives, London states, "The means at hand will be more sophisticate and efficient than Orwell ever dreamed, and they will be in at least modest use ... not by the will of tyrants but by the invitations of all of us, for we ... will demand their benign use regardless of their potential risk."

If past experience is any indication, someone sooner or later will abuse the new tools, or someone will make the accusation that they are being abused. Then there will be trouble.

Such a situation has already arisen over the use of amphetamine-like drugs for "problem" children whose hyperactive behavior disrupts classrooms and households.

Highly reputable physicians have conducted studies showing the drugs have an almost miraculous effect in allaying the hyperactivity of some children, thus making it possible for them for the first time to concentrate on studies rather than tearing up the classroom.

But critics ask whether the drugs are being used to suppress rowdy behavior which is normal for some children or which is caused by boredom in their classrooms or by miserable home lives.

If this is the case, they say, then giving drugs merely white-washes problems which should be attacked in other ways.

Nearly all of the scientists interviewed in a tour of California centres believed the greatest danger of the coming new era of behavior modification is posed not by new drugs or brain surgery but by applications of new learning theories.

Sometimes called operant or behavioral conditioning, techniques developed to put these learning theories into practice are based on principles of reward and punishment — reward for moving toward the desired goal, punishment for failing to do so.

In recent years a great deal has been learned about the location in the brain of centres involved with the sensation of pleasure.

Further studies by Olds, who is now at California Institute of Technology, and others, show that rats are willing to go through all kinds of hardship to receive the pleasure stimulation.

For example, the rats would repeatedly cross an electrified grid to obtain the brain stimulation. Hungry rats often chose brain rewards rather than food. Others were willing to work hard, pressing a bar 50 to 100 times to gain access to a second bar to electrically stimulate their brains.

The same pleasure centre has since been localized in man. The Caltech scientist said he is not concerned about misuse of the pleasure centre findings. He said he believes taboos inherent in society and professional ethics will guard against misuse.

Dr. Arnold J. Mandell, chairman of the department of psychiatry at the University of California at San Diego, heads one of the most ambitious U.S. research programs aimed at learning the chemistry of motivation, mood, learning and memory.

Amphetamines — the stimulant drugs abused by "speed" freaks and prescribed by physicians as a treatment of hyperactive children — are among the chief drugs under study.

When amphetamines are taken in large doses, they are capable of causing two major mental aberrations: psychosis while the user is under their influence, followed by deep depression.

The research team is studying the changes in the identity of chemicals responsible for carrying messages through the brain.

Once the identity of these chemicals, called neurotransmitters, has been established for each of the principal moods, Mandell says, a new class of drugs, called enzyme inhibitors, will become possible. Each enzyme inhibitor could stop the manufacture of a specific neurotransmitter, thus turning off that mood.

"I believe that the day has come when we can combine sensory deprivation with drugs, hypnosis and astute manipulation of reward and punishment to gain almost absolute control over an individual's behavior ...

"We should try to regulate human conduct by offering rewards for good behavior whenever possible instead of threatening punishment for breaches of the law. We should reshape our society so that we all would be trained from birth to want to do what society wants us to do.—Dr. James McConnell, research psychologist at the mental health research institute of the University of Michigan.

All Take and No Give

Japan Meets Backlash Of Prosperity

By GEOFFREY MURRAY, from Tokyo

Japan is in difficulties as it confronts the problems of being the world's third industrial power and pressures to assmue a more responsible role.

Japanese industries are under pressure to curb the policies that brought them their dramatic post-war successes — expansion at any cost and aggressive export drives.

These policies now are producing reservations among countries which have become Japan's biggest markets and have helped to provoke a surge of protectionism in the United States.

At the same time, the economy looks likely to enter what for Japan is a mild recession — a drop in the high growth rate to about 10 to 11 per cent from 12 to 13 per cent.

Japan, like many Western countries, also is suffering from "stagflation" — a combination of stagnation and inflation — and wages are rising.

Trade negotiations with Washington — vital to Japan's economy — are under way but the two sides are far apart in their views on Japanese exports to the United States.

Some Japanese believe their world position is overestimated and point to the fact that although Japan is the third industrial power, the average Japanese wage ranks 16th and living standards remain comparatively low despite improvements.

Strong Demands

The stable Japanese currency is under international pressure for upward revaluation. Coddled Japanese industries are being asked for the first time in 30 years to face international competition without the crutches of import restrictions or barriers to foreign capital investments.

In the circumstances, economists and government experts predict that 1971 is going to be one of the most difficult post-war years Japan has faced.

A high degree of political and economic maturity appears necessary to overcome frictions that have developed with neighbors and trading partners around the world.

Japan could go all out to gain economic advantages in the rehabilitation period of the 1950s and 1960s without much trouble, because the Japanese economy was a lightweight on the world scene.

Now she is third in the world behind the United States and the Soviet Union in terms of gross national product and is in a position to wield great influence over the international economy.

In growing into an economic giant friends and business partners who once lauded the Japanese miracle now criticize it or have become extremely watchful of Japanese intentions.

Anti-Japanese feeling is reported to be growing in Asian countries where some critics are complaining that Japanese businessmen have achieved greater domination than their soldiers did in the Second World War.

Need for Restraint

The government and big business circles are worried about this reaction and have spoken of the urgent need for restraint and an improvement of the overseas image.

But this comes at a time when the nation's economy is going through a dangerous period of stagnation, with the inevitable temptations to try to get out of trouble by even more aggressive sales policies.

The economy sustained a real annual growth rate of 12 to 13 per cent for the last five years. During the period plant investment, consumer spending and exports all did equally well. The growth was maintained while keeping a balance of domestic supply and demand as well as maintaining the international balance of payments.

But sluggishness began to appear in mid-1970 and is expected to continue into at least the first part of 1971. The GNP is expected to rise 11 per cent, although some economists predict a drop to nine per cent.

Although many nations would be happy with such a growth rate, it is expected to have a major depressing impact on the Japanese economy.

Business leaders long accustomed to the roomy 12 to 13 per cent growth rate feel almost suffocated at the government's predicted gain this year.

The nation's business enterprises have been operating on the premise that the higher rate would be maintained for some time and their production capacity now is being developed at an annual growth rate of 15 per cent.

In this situation, even a small slackening of demand could have a serious affect.

Workers Get More

who contributed largely to the economic miracle remains industrious, but is no longer cheap. The general wage rise last year was 18.1 per cent — outstripping production increases — and a similar rise is expected in 1971.

Wage increases linked with an acute labor shortage and rising plant costs could trouble many manufacturing industries this year.

It is a difficult time for the government to urge co-operation in a program of "orderly marketing" — in other words, export restraint. But many economists argue that in the long run this policy is to Japan's advantage.

Japan's main troubles are with her main trading partner, the United States — accounting for 30 per cent of total Japanese foreign trade.

The current weakness of the American economy has produced a wave of protectionism.

Since 1969 U.S. and Japanese negotiators have been trying to find a compromise to an American request for voluntary Japanese export restraint on certain textiles said to be economically damaging the U.S. textile industry.

Another 20 important export products, including television sets, tuners, electric condensers, plate glass and tableware, face trouble in the U.S. on the grounds of price or quantity.

The United States apparently believes that Japan, as an economic giant, should undertake to liberalize completely its imports, base exports on a pattern of orderly marketing and increase its economic aid to Asia.

His Last Battle

Sato Blocks Recognition Of Red China

By DON SHANNON
From Tokyo

In probably the last major battle of his public life, Prime Minister Eisaku Sato will oppose Japan's recognition of China as long as he remains in office, sources close to the premier predict.

The earliest possible date for any serious move toward exchanging ambassadors between Peking and Tokyo would therefore be some time after the middle of 1972, the expected time of the return of Okinawa to Japanese rule.

★ ★ ★

The sources dismissed reports that Sato might step down before then. He will stay because of his strong belief that the reintegration of Japan's territory will stand as the most important achievement of his term of office. After that he is expected to quit.

Japanese politicians are as susceptible to mind-changing as those in other nations, but Sato's position is based on a hard analysis of Peking's intentions.

These include:

● China will remain tough toward Japan even if it becomes softer toward the United States. Chief reason for this uncompromising attitude is the fact that Japan has good working relations with the Soviet Union and economic possibilities of co-operation in Siberian resource development which could become far more important than trade with China.

★ ★ ★

● China regards Japan as its competitor for permanent influence in Southeast Asia. China must put Japan in a subordinate role to insure the paramountcy of Peking in the region after the expected departure of U.S. strength.

★ ★ ★

● Japan is the only ready source for the vast quantities of manufactured goods China will need when it embarks on a serious attempt to build a modern economy. The question is whether Japan wants to enter such a program under conditions and terms of payment which could ultimately put her in a dependent relationship.

Just One More Step

THERE IS A CRYING NEED in the new "arrest legislation" before the federal Parliament for a clear definition of what is a satisfactory identification of a suspect.

This is not to say that the planned reform of the law governing arrest, bail and detention of persons awaiting trial is wrong. On the contrary, it is long overdue.

It is described by Victoria's chief constable, John F. Gregory, as "a practical piece of legislation with a very humane approach to a particularly pressing problem." But it doesn't go far enough on the identification question.

Basically, the legislation is designed to lessen the number of arrests made of crime suspects through issuance of more summonses. It is similar to legislation introduced last June which died on the order paper.

It contains some changes which, it is to be hoped, will assist in its passage this time. What may be its "survival clauses" spell out for the arresting officer certain guidelines to be used in deciding whether an arrest should be made or whether instead the suspected lawbreaker should be summonsed to court to answer charges.

If the legislation is passed, a policeman will be able to arrest, without fears of lawsuits or other repercussions, where evidence must be secured or preserved; where only an arrest would prevent an offence or the continuation of an offence; and where a suspect cannot or will not provide satisfactory identification.

It is this latter situation where the lawmakers should be exercising more thought.

Unless "satisfactory identification" is clarified there could be abuse by over-zealous law officers which could lead to a costly system of compulsory identification cards for everyone.

Perhaps a driver's licence or a social security card identification might be considered satisfactory. But it must be defined and the definition must apply to all parts of the country.

Arrest of a suspect because he refuses to identify himself is acceptable. But an arrest because a policeman does not think identification offered is satisfactory is not acceptable. The new legislation should go further to cover this point.

Wilderness Areas for All Time

SOME INTERESTING POINTS are made by an American forestry expert on the question of preservation of wilderness areas. He hits at those who advocate the keeping of more and more timberland in a "forever wild" state.

In an article in the New York Times, Fred C. Simmons says the advocates can't possible realize the amount of grief they are piling up for future generations.

A 30-year veteran of the United States Forest Service and executive secretary of the Northeastern Loggers' Association, Mr. Simmons says "disintegration and mortality" are inevitable for most stands of timber. And that goes for Douglas fir and redwoods, he says.

By not allowing them to be cut there is the distinct possibility they will become extinct. And the forester explains: sunlight is required for many of the more attractive species of trees to reproduce and grow; sunlight is deprived by allowing timberland to over-mature in dense growth.

This results in "inferior" species of trees taking over, and Mr. Simmons points to various locations in the east where virgin stands of white pine have been succeeded by hemlock and beech, and also the disappearance of birches, the pines and black cherry.

He goes on: "Our descendants will not only find the 'preserved' stands we bequeath to them inferior economically and esthetically, but also pretty much 'biological deserts,' providing insufficient food and shelter to support sizable populations of deer, rabbits, elk, beaver and the predators that depend on them, or even of game and song birds."

Mr. Simmons' arguments give strength to the lumbering industry's fight against vast wilderness areas, and are worthy of consideration in any moves towards barring logging from wide tracts of forest land.

What he is advocating boils down to scientific forest management with controlled timber harvesting for increased productivity in the woods.

It is all very well to say nature will look after maintenance of the forests with thinning of timber stands through lightning-set fires and epidemics of insects and disease.

But growth and spread of population hits hard at this argument. Leaving the development of future forests to the process of nature would demand a complete departure from the woods by man. There could be no controls on his part of floods, fires or pests that were responsible, before his time, in the reproduction of many of the species of trees now enjoyed.

Could there not be a compromise? Instead of huge areas being set aside, perhaps the addition of many more smaller reserves of virgin forests, such as the Cathedral Grove area near the Alberni Valley, would satisfy.

Mr. Simmons would argue that they, too, eventually would become "biological deserts," but a system could be devised for the establishment of a series of cathedral groves in succession which would ensure wilderness areas for all time.

OUR READERS' VIEWS

To be considered for publication in whole or in part, letters must be on subjects of general interest, and if signed with pen-names, must be accompanied by writer's name and address. Preference will be given to those that are brief.

An 'Affront'

Having read the article covering last Tuesday's public meeting at the University of Victoria on the current university professors' contract renewal dispute, I am appalled by the intellectual ineptitude of those — with the exception of the chancellor — representing the administration.

One administration member claimed that faculty and students tended "to regard this university as wholly their own" and that society which is "paying the shot" will not "allow this microcosm to continue on its own." These remarks which so vulgarly affront the dignity of free enquiry (i.e. the real spirit of higher education) are a typical example of what alienates any intelligent student or faculty member. Would the administration have us believe that the university is some division of a large corporation whose sole purpose is to profit its shareholders — society, in this case? What self-respecting student would want to spend this time in such an intellectual vacuum as this administration seems to want to create — nay, perpetuate!?

It is frighteningly apparent to me that a decision by this administration to refuse contract renewal should probably be interpreted as a tribute to the intelleotual vitality of the individual in question. No wonder students increasingly demonstrate their morbid boredom with school when our system rewards those who would teach us to be automatons and rejects those who would stimulate the spirit of free enquiry.

Hear, Hear

The points raised by M. P. Paine in his recently published letters to the editor on the subject of profits are well taken.

Everyone engaged in the sordid business of working to make a living has to make a profit from the sale of his energy otherwise he could not even dress himself to go to work.

Nor could he go fishing or hunting or flash around a lake in a speedboat during summer weekends or go skiing during the winter.

The evil cancer which has eaten into the Canadian and American economy with such disastrous results during the last few years, is consequent upon unrestrained consumer purchases of goods on the deferred payment plan.

This abnormally expensive method for the acquisition of merchandise means that someone, other than the actual purchaser, must pay for the merchandise otherwise the purveyors of energy would have to go home with an empty pay cheque.

Money can only be used once. High interest rates to finance consumer debt, miscalled consumer credit, draws money away from self amortizing investments, such as the financing of new homes, sewers, roads, etc.

The net result being that self amortizing projects of many kinds are unable to secure funds except at exorbitant rates of interest, which of course increases the costs of goods and services, raises the cost of living and is the root cause of unemployment.

Our British Columbia government is a government dedicated to making profits from its operations, which are passed on to the taxpayers in many ways.

One has only to read the report of the auditor general to realize that the existing federal government is sublimely dedicated to making financial losses, which it also passes on to the taxpayers in manifold ways, not the least of which is unemployment.

Much more could be said, but this should be sufficient to back up Mr. Paine's arguments and show the people of British Columbia where their bread is buttered and who has his finger in the cookie jar.

Hunting

As avid bird hunters, dog owners and trainers, we of the Island Pointer Club would like to speak out in favor of re-opening the larger areas of the Saanich peninsula for the hunting of pheasants and other game birds.

As has been brought to light in some areas these birds are becoming a bit of a pest to several farmers, who derive their living from these lands.

Although we do not agree that there is an over-abundance of birds we are of the opinion there is a great source of enjoyment and recreational activity being lost by not being able to hunt in this area.

As far as the safety aspect of this venture, most people agree that shot guns have a danger range of only approximately 100 yards and also the intent was, we believe, to open parcels of 25 acres or more. In this event there is little danger of any injury.

We feel that upland game shooting and the use of bird dogs in the field is a gentleman's sport and many dog trainers will hunt all day for the right opportunity to shoot a bird over a young dog.

This, in itself, eliminates the chances of vandalism or needless shooting.

We trust that we are backed in our views by the Vancouver Island retriever club and that also the game department will sponsor this approach to controlled shooting.

Mood to Change in France

Clouds on Economic Horizon

By BORIS KIDEL

INFLATION and growing unemployment loom ominously on the horizon but at present President Georges Popidou and his ministers are still in a self-congratulatory mood about the performance of France's economy in 1970.

With unconcealed pride Pompidou interrupted a statement being made by Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing at a recent cabinet meeting to proclaim that France's economy had become one of the strongest in western Europe. It is true that the devaluation of the franc 17 months ago, one of Pompidou's first major decisions after he succeeded President de Gaulle, has acted as a highly successful cure for France's ailing economy.

With a gain of $2,570 million last year, France's foreign exchange reserves have again been replenished after a catastrophic deficit in the first half of 1969. Profiting from devaluation, French business men increased their exports in 1970 by 19.6 per cent over the preceding year.

What also helped the economy was the relative calm on the labor front. In the first half of last year, Giscard d'Estaing told Parliament, the loss of working days owing to industrial disputes was five times greater in Britain than in France. Overall, the French can certainly claim a remarkable achievement in transforming a predominantly agricultural country into a major industrial power within 25 years.

Today, in terms of output, France belongs to the leading five nations in the world. Only outclassed by the United States and the Soviet Union, she ranks in the same category as Germany and Japan and lies ahead of Britain. To keep up this process of industrialization Pompidou has made it his goal to double output by 1980.

However, the immediate future is clouded by the threat of rising prices. Already last year's 5.5 per cent increase was well above the figure foreseen by Giscard d'Estaing in his economic blueprints. In 1971 he is regarded by experts as dangerously over-optimistic when he predicts a mere 3 per cent increase. The trend towards substantial price increases has already been set in motion by spiralling food prices during the exceptionally cold weather in December and January and by increases in transport rates decided by the government.

Despite the dangers, the government sees no cause for immediate alarm because world-wide inflationary pressures appear to be making less of an impact in France than in other industrialized countries. What reassures the French is the fact that prices in the United States and Britain rose more sharply last year than in France.

They are also reassured by the distinct increase in German industrial prices. "Switzerland, so reputed for economic wisdom, experienced exactly the same price increase as France last year," Giscard d'Estaing remarked to journalists the other day.

He knows that if prices get out of control during the coming year, the chief victim would be France's export trade. The inevitable consequence would be a slowdown in Pompidou's industrialization program with the ultimate danger of stagnation and recession. What Pompidou and his ministers tend to ignore is the harsh reality of France's industrial production last year.

Despite the success with exports, industrial output remained virtually stagnant throughout the year. Giscard d'Estaing's austerity measures, designed to ward off inflation, curbed domestic consumption so drastically that some French industries found themselves in serious trouble. The motor industry alone registered a 12 per cent drop in car sales during the first eight months of 1970.

This lack of demand, which acted as a brake on industrial expansion, is one of the main causes of rising unemployment. Today 500,000 Frenchmen are estimated to be out of work, the largest number in 10 years. The aspect which causes most concern to the government is that about 200,000 of them are under 25.

In the case of the young, the reasons for unemployment appear to be more social than economic. Over half of those looking for work for the first time lack any kind of professional training. Moreover, all age-groups are disinclined to work in industry. Out of 100 French looking for work only 50 are prepared to work in factories while out of 100 jobs offered by labor exchanges 80 involve factory work.

This has led to the paradoxical situation that, at a moment when unemployment is reaching the danger line, France is employing the record number of 3,200,000 foreign workers. Increasingly, Frenchmen are no longer prepared to undertake heavy manual work. Some 22 per cent of France's construction work and 17 per cent of the jobs in the steel industry are being performed by foreigners.

One of the grim facts facing the government as it tries to find solutions for unemployment among the young is that 340,000 students are studying law and literature at the universities today. Only a small fraction can hope to obtain jobs which correspond to their academic qualifications. Yet at the same time young people are shunning the new university technology institutes where 17,000 students are occupying 43,000 available places.

Today the government must direct young people towards industrial work and at the same time provide jobs for them. One of Pompidou's main goals is to create 525,000 new jobs in industry during the coming six years. For this kind of expansion French industry must overcome its present sluggish state.

While Giscard d'Estaing still regards it as his prime duty to defend France against inflation, Pompidou believes the time has come for the government to press the foot gently on the accelerator and to stimulate the economy into greater activity. The president is only too acutely aware that a rise in the unemployment figure would harm his Gaullist Party in the municipal elections two months ahead.

For this reason he decided at a recent cabinet meeting that part of the government funds, frozen as a precaution against inflation, should now be released as an encouragement for economic expansion. During the coming year France's economic welfare will depend on a sustained export drive and greater domestic consumption than in 1970.

The economy is in a delicate state of balance. Like most other European countries, France is today exposed to the world-wide danger of "stagflation" — stagnation plus inflation. The relatively sound results of 1970 are today no guarantee that Pompidou and Giscard d'Estaing will still be in a self-congratulatory mood at the end of this year.

Barbers' Cut Back

From the Ottawa Journal

Barbers in Perth Amboy, New Jersey, are taking fiscal revenge on long hairs. The barbers are refusing to patronize businesses owned by or employing longhaired men.

It seems new hair styles have cut into barbering profits by as much as 40 per cent. The results could be interesting. If the businessmen won't get their hair cut and the barbers won't buy new suits it will be hard to tell who is an honest hippie.

Apples Coming From Coal Mines

Working from an old farm near Philipsburg, W. G. "Furk" Jones has planted more than 35 million trees in the past 20 years — most of them on blighted land that had been stripped for coal.

More than 5,000 square miles of the United States have been ripped apart by men and machines seeking coal, gold, clay, stone, sand, gravel, phosphate rock, and other resources, the National Geographic Society says.

To meet increasing demands, another 150,000 acres are gouged and blasted open by strip miners every year.

But spurred by public outcry and state legislation, mining companies in recent years have been reclaiming spoilbanks and turning them into productive land.

Today, some of the juiciest apples in the supermarket may have come from a coal mine. Everything from schools and $50,000 homes to golf courses and state parks now occupy abandoned strip mines that have been carefully contoured and seeded.

★ ★ ★

A few mine operators reseeded old mining sites as early as the 1920s, with varying results. As the only way to reach veins of coal and other ore lying near the surface, strip mining expanded sharply following the Second World War. Greater reclamation efforts were necessary.

In a recent book, The New Forest, "Turk" Jones recalls his first commission by a mining executive to plant trees on a spoilbank in 1950, after Pennsylvania had enacted a reclamation law.

"There won't be a damned thing grow, but go ahead and plant it," the mine owner grumbled. "That's the law!"

The tree farmer admits he also had his doubts, but he planted 1,000 seedlings "on one of the rockiest and most forbidding" mounds of crushed black shale. The trees thrived.

Nearly 60 species of trees and shrubs since have taken root, turning the barren spoilbanks into forest where game abounds.

★ ★ ★

Pennsylvania and other states where stripping now takes place have learned much about what grows at old mine sites, and why.

Areas that look bleak often prove rich in nutrients uncovered by the mining. Snow and rain, assisted by proper grading and occasionally by applications of lime, leach acids from spoilbanks. Sometimes a highly toxic segment requires extra help.

The Great Swabian League, one of the last international police bodies of medieval Europe, was dissovled 437 years ago today—in 1534—after 200 years of more or less continuous existence. The league was reconstituted in 1488 by Emperor Frederick III, to back war in Hungary, but expired when European politics was reshaped by the new phenomenon of Reformation.

Mind-Manipulation Techniques Ready—for Good or Evil

By HARRY NELSON
From Los Angeles

There's no such thing as a conformity pill — yet. But science is providing new tools which may make it possible to manipulate human behavior more selectively and more effectively than ever before.

These tools hold the promise of correcting — or at least taking the sharp edges off — many of man's least desirable behavior patterns. Some may also be useful for adding new dimensions to his good behavior.

But, as with the advent of the atomic age 25 years ago, the potential for good may at times become obscured by the potential for abuse. Examples:

● Enzyme-inhibiting drugs may eradicate certain disabling mental depressions — or cripple the brain of a foe.

● Therapy can turn underachieving students or deliquents into bookworms — or brainwash a television audience.

● Excising a tiny area of the brain can restore peace to a tormented individual who erupts in unpredictable violence or turn a rebel into a mouse.

● An individual in the near future may be able to control his own brainwave frequencies which are associated with certain emotions; could this be applied to large numbers of people via television to achieve "desired" states of mind?

● Two different modes of behavior modification might be combined — drugs plus learning techniques, for example — to produce still more potent tools.

There is nothing new about attempts to control another person's behavior. Physical force has been used since man appeared on earth. Hypnosis and psychotherapy have been around a long time.

But the newer techniques open up possibilities, especially when used in combination, which appear to be more potent.

How will society accept them? With open arms or with fear and aversion?

Dr. Perry London, professor of psychology and psychiatry at the University of Southern California, says in his book Behavior Control, published last year, that society will welcome the new technologies — in fact already has.

By the time 1984 arrives, London states, "The means at hand will be more sophisticate and efficient than Orwell ever dreamed, and they will be in at least modest use . . . not by the will of tyrants but by the invitations of all of us, for we . . . will demand their benign use regardless of their potential risk."

If past experience is any indication, someone sooner or later will abuse the new tools, or someone will make the accusation that they are being abused. Then there will be trouble.

Such a situation has already arisen over the use of amphetamine-like drugs for "problem" children whose hyperactive behavior disrupts classrooms and households.

Highly reputable physicians have conducted studies showing the drugs have an almost miraculous effect in allaying the hyperactivity of some children, thus making it possible for them for the first time to concentrate on studies rather than tearing up the classroom.

But critics ask whether the drugs are being used to suppress rowdy behavior which is normal for some children or which is caused by boredom in their classrooms or by miserable home lives.

If this is the case, they say, then giving drugs merely white-washes problems which should be attacked in other ways.

Nearly all of the scientists interviewed in a tour of California centres believed the greatest danger of the coming new era of behavior modification is posed not by new drugs or brain surgery but by applications of new learning theories.

Sometimes called operant or behavioral conditioning, techniques developed to put these learning theories into practice are based on principles of reward and punishment — reward for moving toward the desired goal, punishment for failing to do so.

★ ★ ★

In recent years a great deal has been learned about the location in the brain of centres involved with the sensation of pleasure.

Further studies by Olds, who is now at California Institute of Technology, and others, show that rats are willing to go through all kinds of hardship to receive the pleasure stimulation.

For example, the rats would repeatedly cross an electrified grid to obtain the brain stimulation. Hungry rats often chose brain rewards rather than food. Others were willing to work hard, pressing a bar 50 to 100 times to gain access to a second bar to electrically stimulate their brains.

The same pleasure centre has since been localized in man. The Caltech scientist said he is not concerned about misuse of the pleasure centre findings. He said he believes taboos inherent in society and professional ethics will guard against misuse.

Dr. Arnold J. Mandell, chairman of the department of psychiatry at the University of California at San Diego, heads one of the most ambitious U.S. research programs aimed at learning the chemistry of motivation, mood, learning and memory.

Amphetamines — the stimulant drugs abused by "speed" freaks and prescribed by physicians as a treatment of hyperactive children — are among the chief drugs under study.

When amphetamines are taken in large doses, they are capable of causing two major mental aberrations: psychosis while the user is under their influence, followed by deep depression.

The research team is studying the changes in the identity of chemicals responsible for carrying messages through the brain.

Once the identity of these chemicals, called neurotransmitters, has been established for each of the principal moods, Mandell says, a new class of drugs, called enzyme inhibitors, will become possible. Each enzyme inhibitor could stop the manufacture of a specific neurotransmitter, thus turning off that mood.

Pertinent Quotes

"I believe that the day has come when we can combine sensory deprivation with drugs, hypnosis and astute manipulation of reward and punishment to gain almost absolute control over an individual's behavior . . .

"We should try to regulate human conduct by offering rewards for good behavior whenever possible instead of threatening punishment for breaches of the law. We should reshape our society so that we all would be trained from birth to want to do what society wants us to do.—Dr. James McConnell, research psychologist at the mental health research institute of the University of Michigan.

All Take and No Give

Japan Meets Backlash Of Prosperity

By GEOFFREY MURRAY, from Tokyo

Japan is in difficulties as it confronts the problems of being the world's third industrial power and pressures to assmue a more responsible role.

Japanese industries are under pressure to curb the policies that brought them their dramatic post-war successes — expansion at any cost and aggressive export drives.

These policies now are producing reservations among countries which have become Japan's biggest markets and have helped to provoke a surge of protectionism in the United States.

At the same time, the economy looks likely to enter what for Japan is a mild recession — a drop in the high growth rate to about 10 to 11 per cent from 12 to 13 per cent.

Japan, like many Western countries, also is suffering from "stagflation" — a combination of stagnation and inflation — and wages are rising.

Trade negotiations with Washington — vital to Japan's economy — are under way but the two sides are far apart in their views on Japanese exports to the United States.

Some Japanese believe their world position is overestimated and point to the fact that although Japan is the third industrial power, the average Japanese wage ranks 16th and living standards remain comparatively low despite improvements.

Strong Demands

The stable Japanese currency is under international pressure for upward revaluation. Coddled Japanese industries are being asked for the first time in 30 years to face international competition without the crutches of import restrictions or barriers to foreign capital investments.

In the circumstances, economists and government experts predict that 1971 is going to be one of the most difficult post-war years Japan has faced.

A high degree of political and economic maturity appears necessary to overcome frictions that have developed with neighbors and trading partners around the world.

Japan could go all out to gain economic advantages in the rehabilitation period of the 1950s and 1960s without much trouble, because the Japanese economy was a lightweight on the world scene.

Now she is third in the world behind the United States and the Soviet Union in terms of gross national product and is in a position to wield great influence over the international economy.

In growing into an economic giant friends and business partners who once lauded the Japanese miracle now criticize it or have become extremely watchful of Japanese intentions.

Anti-Japanese feeling is reported to be growing in Asian countries where some critics are complaining that Japanese businessmen have achieved greater domination than their soldiers did in the Second World War.

Need for Restraint

The government and big business circles are worried about this reaction and have spoken of the urgent need for restraint and an improvement of the overseas image.

But this comes at a time when the nation's economy is going through a dangerous period of stagnation, with the inevitable temptations to try to get out of trouble by even more aggressive sales policies.

The economy sustained a real annual growth rate of 12 to 13 per cent for the last five years. During the period plant investment, consumer spending and exports all did equally well. The growth was maintained while keeping a balance of domestic supply and demand as well as maintaining the international balance of payments.

But sluggishness began to appear in mid-1970 and is expected to continue into at least the first part of 1971. The GNP is expected to rise 11 per cent, although some economists predict a drop to nine per cent.

Although many nations would be happy with such a growth rate, it is expected to have a major depressing impact on the Japanese economy.

Business leaders long accustomed to the roomy 12 to 13 per cent growth rate feel almost suffocated at the government's predicted gain this year.

The nation's business enterprises have been operating on the premise that the higher rate would be maintained for some time and their production capacity now is being developed at an annual growth rate of 15 per cent.

In this situation, even a small slackening of demand could have a serious affect.

Workers Get More

who contributed largely to the economic miracle remains industrious, but is no longer cheap. The general wage rise last year was 18.1 per cent — outstripping production increases — and a similar rise is expected in 1971.

Wage increases linked with an acute labor shortage and rising plant costs could trouble many manufacturing industries this year.

It is a difficult time for the government to urge co-operation in a program of "orderly marketing" — in other words, export restraint. But many economists argue that in the long run this policy is to Japan's advantage.

Japan's main troubles are with her main trading partner, the United States — accounting for 20 per cent of total Japanese foreign trade.

The current weakness of the American economy has produced a wave of protectionism.

Since 1969 U.S. and Japanese negotiators have been trying to find a compromise to an American request for voluntary Japanese export restraint on certain textiles said to be economically damaging the U.S. textile industry.

Another 20 important export products, including television sets, tuners, electric condensers, plate glass and tableware, face trouble in the U.S. on the grounds of price or quantity.

The United States apparently believes that Japan, as an economic giant, should undertake to liberalize completely its imports, base exports on a pattern of orderly marketing and increase its economic aid to Asia.

His Last Battle

Sato Blocks Recognition Of Red China

By DON SHANNON
From Tokyo

In probably the last major battle of his public life, Prime Minister Eisaku Sato will oppose Japan's recognition of China as long as he remains in office, sources close to the premier predict.

The earliest possible date for any serious move toward exchanging ambassadors between Peking and Tokyo would therefore be some time after the middle of 1972, the expected time of the return of Okinawa to Japanese rule.

★ ★ ★

The sources dismissed reports that Sato might step down before then. He will stay because of his strong belief that the reintegration of Japan's territory will stand as the most important achievement of his term of office. After that he is expected to quit.

Japanese politicians are as susceptible to mind-changing as those in other nations, but Sato's position is based on a hard analysis of Peking's intentions.

These include:

● China will remain tough toward Japan even if it becomes softer toward the United States. Chief reason for this uncompromising attitude is the fact that Japan has good working relations with the Soviet Union and economic possibilities of co-operation in Siberian resource development which could become far more important than trade with China.

★ ★ ★

● China regards Japan as its competitor for permanent influence in Southeast Asia. China must put Japan in a subordinate role to insure the paramountcy of Peking in the region after the expected departure of U.S. strength.

★ ★ ★

● Japan is the only ready source for the vast quantities of manufactured goods China will need when it embarks on a serious attempt to build a modern economy. The question is whether Japan wants to enter such a program under conditions and terms of payment which could ultimately put her in a dependent relationship.

Supertankers Along B.C. Coast

'Ecological Timebomb' Hit

By BARBARA McLINTOCK

Shipment of oil in supertankers along the B.C. coast would be an "ecological timebomb," a Liberal MLA told the Legislature Monday, in urging the B.C. government demand the federal government take some action to prevent such shipment.

Allan Williams (West Vancouver—Howe Sound) told the House that if there was an oil spill near the proposed Cherry Point refinery in Washington, "White Rock, Boundary Bay . . . the entire Gilf of Georgia will be gone."

"I demand that the ministers get into an airplane if need be and go to Ottawa and demand that the national government do something and not sit back and wait for a disaster to happen," Williams said.

Williams proposed the government of "the major maritime province of Canada" set up a central agency to control the movement of all oil by water. The agency, he said, would inspect all ships transporting oil, including their navigational equipment, and would test all captains and crews of ships.

"The skills and abilities of each vessel's master and crew must meet the most stringent standards," he said.

Euch ship carrying oil would have to register with the agency, and for each voyage would have to file its time of departure, route, and estimated time of arrival. In addition, the position of each ship must be reported each day. The agency would have to approve each voyage before it could be undertaken, Williams said.

Williams said the construction of the Cherry Point refinery complex 12 miles from the Canadian border had been going on for more than a year, but that neither the Canadian nor B.C. governments had done anything about it.

"If we had a disaster at Cherry Point . . . the wind and the tide carrying that oil will pay not attention to national boundaries," he said.

"The extent of these (oil) disasters staggers the intellect," he commented, but added that the tragic consequences of such disasters are "recognizable and understandable."

As well, he said, there is a great economic loss in each disaster, noting that the cost to the government to clean up the mess when the Arrow sank on the east coast was more than $4 million.

Williams also expressed opposition to underwater drilling in Georgia Strait, which, he said, could lead to an oil disaster like the one at Santa Barbara, Calif.

Socred's Motion Calls on Ottawa

A Social Credit backbencher has given formal notice of a motion for the B.C. government to express to the federal government its opposition to a trans-Alaska pipeline and movement of oil by tanker along the B.C. coast.

The motion, proposed by H. R. McDiarmid (Alberni), asks that "this House expresses to the federal government their deep misgivings over the ecological disaster which will engulf the coast of British Columbia following the construction of a trans-Alaska pipeline and attendant supertanker transport of oil off the coast of British Columbia."

"We ask the federal government to use very available resource at their disposal to persuade the American government to use alternate methods of transporting crude oil from Alaska to the United States," it continues.

A motion by McDiarmid Friday asking that debate on the throne speech be stopped to hold an emergency debate on the pipeline was ruled out of order by Speaker William Murray.

★ ★ ★

At that time McDiarmid termed the pipeline and tanker transport an "impending ecological disaster."

The pipeline, if built, would carry oil from the North Slope oilfields in Alaska to Valdez, on the state's southern coast, for tanker shipment down the west coast to American refineries.

In Ottawa Monday, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis told the Commons the government is "very seriously concerned" about proposed United States oil tanker shipments through Puget Sound.

Barry Mather (NDP—Surrey) had asked what steps are planned in view of a rising public protest based on the danger to Canadian waters.

Powder Mountain Or Powder Keg?

The development of a ski resort at Powder Mountain in the Squamish Valley may turn into the same sort of debacle as the Cypress Bowl development, a Liberal MLA warned in the Legislature Monday.

Allan Williams charged that many of the same persons who were involved in Cypress Bowl were involved in Powder Mountain.

Williams named four persons — A. Boyd, Charles Eadie, John Wilson, and E. E. Osborn — whom he said had been directors of the Lakeland Valley Development Company, which holds the rights to develop Powder Mountain. The four resigned from Lakeland Valley in 1969, but have been involved in the Cypress Bowl development, he charged.

Lakeland Development, Williams said, was incorporated in 1968, but had since then filed no annual reports. At present only two directors — V. A. Williamson and D. O. Barraclough — were listed for the company.

Resources Minister Ray Williston told the House last week the government would take over the development of Cypress Bowl as a public recreation area. The original developers of Cypress Bowl, Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources Ltd., were given until the end of last year to find financial backing for development of the area after their original backers, Benguet Consolidated Incorporated, was declared unacceptable because of its connections with organized gambling in the Bahamas.

Williams told the House that government should make "the same kind of decision" about Powder Mountain as it did about Cypress Bowl. "Your policy of lease-develop-purchase didn't work at Cypress Bowl and it won't work at Powder Mountain," Williams told the government.

Speaking on pollution, Williams called for a clear government policy on pollution control to be debated in the House. He cited the permit given to Utah Mining Company to dump effluent into Rupert Inlet as an example of a case where such a policy was needed.

He also questioned the interim report of the B.C. Energy Board tabled in the House last week. "Are we going to be encouraged to turn B.C. into a vast powerhouse?" he asked, referring to the statement on the board's report that B.C.'s energy equirements will double in a few years.

Prison Wing 'Overcrowded'

The director of corrections has reported to the Legislature that facilities in the remand wing at Oakalla prison farm for persons awaiting trial are inadequate and overcrowded.

S. Rocksborough Smith said in his annual report, tabled in the House Monday by Attorney-general Leslie Peterson, the present remand wing at Oakalla has facilities "in adequate and unsuitable for holding of prisoners.

He added some of the prisoners must wait "for extended periods of time" before their cases come up.

The report said there were 85 attempted suicides at Oakalla in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1970, fi'-' them successful. But it also said the state of prisoner morale and conduct generally in the provincial jail system was "much improved" over last year.

Admissions to the Haney Correctional Centre for young offenders increased by 53 per cent over the previous year.

IN THE LEGISLATURE

Minister without Portfolio Mrs. Isabel Dawson will be the first speaker when debate on the throne speech reopens at 2 p.m. today in the Legislature.

Others scheduled to speak are: Robert Williams (NDP—Vancouver East); Alex Fraser (SC — Cariboo); Bert Price (SC — Cariboo); couver-Burrard); George Mussallem (SC — Dewdney).

Scheduled to speak during the evening session are: Herbert Bruch (SC—Esquimalt); James Lorimer and Harold Merilees (SC — Vancouver-Burrard).

Trials in French NDP Proposal

A bill that would allow trials in B.C. to be conducted in French at the discretion of the court was introduced into the Legislature by an NDP member Monday.

Alex Macdonald (Vancouver-East) proposed in the bill that the Supreme Court Act be amended so that both civil and criminal cases might be conducted in French, "where practical, and at the request of the accused or the plaintiff."

The failure of the government to enact such legislation has been the subject of comment in the B.C. Supreme Court, Macdonald said.

Initia

If the present unemplo ment situation in B.C. co tinues, a section of socie that will be "no good anyone" will be built up, NDP member charged in t Legislature Monday.

Leo Nimsick (Kootena told the Legislature he w referring to young people wh "should not be denied the right to make their contrib tion to society." He noted th 45 per cent of the unemploye in B.C. were under 25, a that many of them had nev held a steady job.

Canadians

'World's Worst Salesmen'

Agriculture Minister Cy Shelford says he return from abroad recently mo than ever convinced th Canadians are "the world worst salesmen."

As if that wasn't enough a hindrance to finding ne foreign markets for B. agricultural products, Sh ford told the Legislatu Monday, this country has r e putation of unreliabili abroad resulting from lab disputes which tie up deli eries.

Shelford told the House confirmed the previous viev he held on these subjec while visiting Europe a Russia last fall on gover ment ministers travelli abroad on business — should shake my head b cause we should be doi more, not less of it."

The minister said Canadi agriculture must get "aw from the one-shot sales" the 60s and take a ne approach in this decade.

Noting that he earlier h asked Ottawa on behalf of B.C. farm organizations to s up a billion-dollar produc export development fun Shelford said "we must g out and sell" joint develo ments with foreign busine men to sell our agricultur products abroad.

"I would say to my liber friends (in Ottawa)," Shelfo added, "if you can't do t job somone else will."

★ ★ ★

One problem which w have to be solved on the hon front, Shelford added, is lab disputes which last year ti up Canadian ports on thr separate occasions interru ing the supply of goods whi must be on a "steady, 1 month basis" to satisfy fo eign buyers.

Unemployment Dangers Worry MLA

Initiative of Young in Peril

If the present unemployment situation in B.C. continues, a section of society that will be "no good to anyone" will be built up, an NDP member charged in the Legislature Monday.

Leo Nimsick (Kootenay) told the Legislature he was referring to young people who "should not be denied their right to make their contribution to society." He noted that 45 per cent of the unemployed in B.C. were under 25, and that many of them had never held a steady job.

When this happens, "we crush the very initiative from them," Nimsick said.

If there were not enough jobs to go around, he said, then the number of hours in the work week should be shortened, and people should be allowed to retire earlier. He cited the example of miners, whom, he suggested, should be allowed to retire at age 55.

He added that those who retired early should not have to live on "a pittance of a pension or a pittance of a welfare grant," but should have a "full standard of living."

Nimsick urged the provincial government to withdraw its support of the Kootenay-Elk Railway. He said there was something wrong with Canada if we have to use American railways to carry goods from one part of Canada to another."

He suggested also that the railway, which would link up with the Burlington and Great Northern line at the Canadian-American border near Eureka, Mont., would jeopardize present jobs in the movement of coal from the Kootenays to Roberts Bank.

An application from the Kootenay-Elk railway to allow the link-up with the American line is presently before the federal transport commission.

Nimsick condemned Rehabilitation Minister Phillip Gaglardi's suggestion that welfare recipients should be charged income tax.

"I wonder how hypocritical we can be" in suggesting that people, many of whom are not now receiving enough to live on, should be taxed, he said.

A study should be made of "wasteful expenditures" by the government, he suggested, giving as an example of the amount of money spent by cabinet ministers in travelling.

"The government should hang its head in shame" for what happened in Cypress Bowl, he said. Before the government finally decided to take over the development, far too much public money was wasted, he charged.

Canadians

'World's Worst Salesmen'

Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford says he returned from abroad recently more than ever convinced that Canadians are "the world's worst salesmen."

As if that wasn't enough of a hindrance to finding new foreign markets for B.C. agricultural products, Shelford told the Legislature Monday, this country has a reputation of unreliability abroad resulting from labor disputes which tie up deliveries.

Shelford told the House he confirmed the previous views he held on these subjects while visiting Europe and Russia last fall on government ministers travelling abroad on business — "I should shake my head because we should be doing more, not less of it."

The minister said Canadian agriculture must get "away from the one-shot sales" of the 60s and take a new approach in this decade.

Noting that he earlier had asked Ottawa on behalf of all B.C. farm organizations to set up a billion-dollar producer export development fund, Shelford said "we must get out and sell" joint developments with foreign businessmen to sell our agricultural products abroad.

"I would say to my liberal friends (in Ottawa)," Shelford added, "if you can't do the job somone else will."

★ ★ ★

One problem which will have to be solved on the home front, Shelford added, is labor disputes which last year tied up Canadian ports on three separate occasions interrupting the supply of goods which must be on a "steady, 12-month basis" to satisfy foreign buyers.

B.C. 'Sitting on Behind' When It Comes to North

A Social Credit backbencher has criticized the government for "sitting on its behind" when dealing with questions of northern development and blamed some of the official apathy on the "insular atmosphere" of Victoria.

Don Marshall (SC—South Peace) said both Ottawa and B.C. have sat on their behinds lacking the guts of our pioneer forefathers to take a firm stand in favor of upgrading of the Alaska highway.

He added the initiative now has been taken by Americans and called upon B.C. to make a firm commitment to pay 25 per cent of the capital cost of improving the B.C. portion and to take over maintenance of the finished highway.

"Perhaps we would be much better with our government located, not in Victoria, but in the central area of our province," the backbencher said.

Marshall also urged the government to negotiate with Ottawa a cost-sharing program for completion of the Fort Nelson-Fort Simpson all-weather highway.

The Pacific Great Eastern Railway, he said, should be extended to Liard and the government should encourage oil and gas exploration in the north, offering assistance if necessary for construction of a petro-chemical industry at Taylor.

Marshal, a farmer, said he was becoming "increasingly annoyed" at the provincial government's lack of imagination and innovation in offering assistance to farmers in general and those in the Peace River in particular.

He suggested a provincial crown corporation be set "to work hand in hand with" the National Agricultural Advisory Council to help all those engaged in agriculture.

Nurses Warn Legislature

Policies 'Hazardous'

The Registered Nurses Association of B.C. says policies aimed at shortening the length of patients' hospital stay are hazardous unless the government permits more staff.

In a newsletter distributed Monday to members of the Legislature, the RNABC says:

"A policy to shorten length of stay of patients in acute hospitals creates additional burdens for the nursing staff. A reduction in the number of days a patient stays in hospital means only the acutely ill are cared for, which in turn means that more nursing staff are required to cope with the additional demands on nursing time.

"If no nursing staff is added, there is an increased risk of accidents to patients, medication errors and neglect."

★ ★ ★

Because of the bed shortage facing the community, and the long waiting lists thereby created, both Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals have policies encouraging early discharges.

For example, the policy has been so effective at St. Joseph's that the hospital treated 600 more patients during 1970 than it did during the previous year.

Since Health Minister Ralph Loffmark announced in early April that the provincial government would pay only 70 per cent of wage increases awarded hospital workers earlier in the year, the RNABC has been openly complaining about deteriorating health services.

For example, last June 14 the RNABC sponsored large that said in part: "Don't newspaper advertisements Punish the Sick!"

In the latest newsletter to MLAs, the nurses restate the comment of a nursing supervisor who has only one registered nurse and one licenced practical nurse on a ward.

"If one or more patients are seriously ill and in need of immediate nursing care, and an emergency situation develops on another part of the ward, who will be free to deal with it, she wonders," says the newsletter.

Banff, Jasper, Yoho and Kootenay National Parks

Public Hearings — 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
April 19 & 20—Calgary—Carriage House Motor Inn
April 22 & 23—Edmonton—Hotel Macdonald
April 26 —Vancouver—Hotel Georgia

"The parks are hereby dedicated to the people of Canada for their benefit, education and enjoyment...and such parks shall be maintained and made use of so as to leave them unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations." SECTION 4: NATIONAL PARKS ACT

Public hearings are being held across Canada on provisional master plans for development and use of national parks. The plans outline the Government's proposals for intensity of park use, interpretation of natural history, protection of park environment and development of visitor facilities.

Hearings will be convened in Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver to hear comments and recommendations on the provisional master plans for Banff, Jasper, Yoho and Kootenay National Parks. (Separate public discussion will take place at a later date on plans related to the townsites of Banff and Jasper.) There are four individual plans to be reviewed but because these parks are contiguous, they are being considered as a unit for the purpose of public hearings.

Interested individuals and organizations are invited to submit written briefs, in either official language, on any one or all of the plans and to indicate if they wish to speak at the hearing. Everyone is welcome to attend—to listen or to participate.

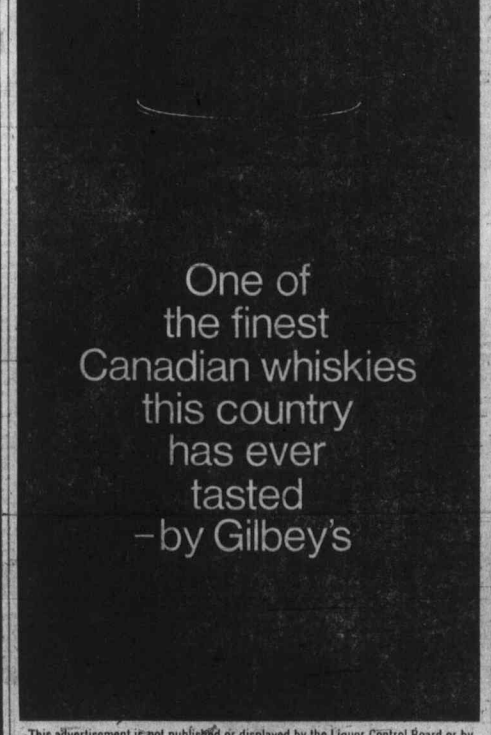

Copies of all four plans may be obtained for $2.00 or individual copies for $1.00 each (remit money order or cheque payable to the Receiver General of Canada) from:

Regional Director, Western Region,
National and Historic Parks Branch,
300 Customs Building,
Calgary 24, Alberta.

Written briefs and requests to speak are to be sent to:

Secretary, Public Hearings Program,
National and Historic Parks Branch,
400 Laurier Avenue West,
Ottawa 4, Ontario.

Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development

Woodward's gives you the Prices

You, as a consumer, know that most food stores claim that they have the lowest prices in town.

The fact is that no one store can honestly claim that they have the lowest prices on every item simply because the competition could cut one or two items and make their claims inaccurate. We don't claim to have the lowest prices on all items, all the time, but we do say this: Woodward's regular shelf prices are based on being competitive with those stores who claim to be the lowest (we shop them all the time) and our specials represent good honest savings.

So when it comes to prices, don't discount Woodward's — we're there with the value.

Wall Street Records Best Gain of Year

The stock market was making sturdy gains before President Nixon's economic message was released at noon. His forecast of a 4½ to 5-per-cent real rate of growth in physical output for 1971 fuelled the further advances.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed at 877.81, up 9.31 points — the biggest one-day jump of 1971. The ticker was backed up a minute or more several times during the day.

The NYSE index of 1,200 common shares closed 0.32 higher at 52.96. Sperry Rand was up 1⅜ to 30, Texaco ⅛ to 34⅛, General Cable ⅜ to 23⅜ and General Electric 5½ to 104⅜.

Steels-Oils Rise

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were fractionally higher in light trading. Strongest sectors were merchandising and steels.

Inco gained ⅛ to 46⅝. The company's net earnings were 2.60 a share, compared with 1.56.

Among other advancing issues, Dome Pete was up 3½ to 88, United Funds Management 2 to 13½. Unas Investments 1 to 11, Ocean Cement 1 to 25, Jockey Club ⅞ to 6¼, Dofasco ⅛ to 24⅝, Stelco ¼ to 27½, CPR ⅛ to 69⅞ and Yellowknife Bear 25 cents to 5.75.

Denison climbed ½ to 28½, Rio Algom ½ to 18, Hudson Bay Mining ⅜ to 20⅝, Cassiar ¼ to 23⅞, Lake Dufault ¼ to 12, Chemaloy 20 cents to 1.70, Roman 20 cents to 7.35, Ashland Oil ⅜ to 11⅝, Great Canadian Oil Sands 25 cents to 4.95, Canada Southern Pete 15 cents to 5.15 and Alminex 15 cents to 5.80.

Among declining issues, Bell dropped ¼ to 46½, Canadian Industrial Gas ⅛ to 12½, Seagrams ½ to 51½, Bank of Montreal ¼ to 14½, Asamera ⅛ to 16¼ and Ranger ⅛ to 15¼.

Industrials Active

VANCOUVER — Ballinderry lost some of its previous week's gains, dropping .25 to 2.45 in a mildly lower oil section.

Industrials were active with gains showing in PWA, B.C. Sugar, Field, Canadian Allied, Great Pacific Industries, Steintron, Wardair and Block. Neonex was active but unchanged.

Silver Standard at 1.57 was up .05 in mines, while Mariner lost .05 at 1.26 in heavy trading.

Gain at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — The market turned mixed following an early afternoon rally.

Falconbridge at 142, Scott LaSalle at 25, and Rio Algom at 18, each gained 1. Dome Petroleum was up 3⅝ to 87⅝.

TransCanada PipeLines gained ¾ to 34½, Asbestos ¾ to 34½. Canada Packers, ¾ to 20⅝ and Consumers' Gas ½ to 20.

Southam Press declined 1½ to 60 while Canada Steamships at 29½ and Dominion Glass, 14 were each down 1.

QSP Ltd. dropped ⅞ to 15, Interprovincial Pipe Line ½ to 26¼ and Labatt ½ to 22¼.

Housing Must Grow In Proper Sectors

EDMONTON (CP) — The federal government expects a record number of housing units will be built this year but they must meet the social needs of Canadians, Robert Andras, minister without portfolio responsibile for housing, said Monday.

Andres told the National House Builders' Association convention that predictions of 220,000 housing starts in 1971 "are by far the highest number of starts in Canadian history, beyond the record 210,000 of 1969."

But Andres warned there is "nothing magical" in the large number of units if they are not the right units.

Andras urged the house builders to concentrate "like never before" on providing decent housing for thousands of low or modest-income Canadians.

"If too much of your output is beamed to the high-cost your own position and you dwellings, then you jeopardize certainly will jeopardize the achievement of our national goal."

On federal spending, Andreas said while he could not provide a specific figure for the 1971 Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. budget, "the spending figures for this year will not be terribly far off last year's." Last year's spending was slightly more than $1 billion.

Andreas said that while a resurging private sector will have less trouble obtaining financing in Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta, "it will be necessary to apply relatively more direct federal emphasis on housing in the Atlantic provinces, Quebec and Saskatchewan."

Andras said he is attempting to make it practical and profitable to divert pension funds into mortgages.

★ ★ ★

"Apart from the pension funds, I am endeavoring to persuade other financial institutions such as life insurance companies and banks to dip their toes more boldly in those not-so-treacherous waters."

There'll Be Many Closets in This Skeleton

Massive concrete skeleton, when completed, will be 17-storey, 358-suite highrise slated to provide new housing in low-rental category. Located at View and Quadra, new building faces on View. Second stage of project will be 20-storey tower to contain 250 suites, but is not earmarked for any special income group.—(William E. John)

Brighter Outlook

EDMONTON (CP) — The possibility of a drop in interest rates on house mortgages is excellent, Harold Shipp of Toronto, said Monday.

Shipp, newly-elected president of the Housing and Urban Development Association, predicted rates will drop 1 per cent within two months.

"Rates will drop 1 per cent below the existing National Housing Act rate of 9¼ per cent and the comparable 9½-plus per cent for existing conventional rates," he said.

Shipp said the anticipated reduction will be the result of "very large gobs of money" becoming available in the mortgage market place.

Coal Start Sparks Loss

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

A loss of $4,699,000 is reported for 1970 by Kaiser Resources Ltd. in its first year as a producer of coal for export via the new Roberts Bank superport.

The company said the loss, however, did not include sales revenues and inventory values of $24,020,000 which had been offset against deferred preproduction expenses.

Kaiser added it experienced operating losses, although its production was now running at about 3 million tons of coal a year, or three-fifths of the amount contracted for sale to Japan.

Heavy start-up costs and pre-production expenses during 1970 at Sparwood and at the deep water terminal added to mining and screening difficulties.

Sales and other revenue during the year were $10,375,300 while cost of products sold, general expenses, interest and depreciation and depletions amounted to $15,074,000.

Despite the poor start, Kaiser Resources is optimistic about long-run prospects for the company.

Coal reserves have been increased, new hydraulic mining methods have exceeded expectations and the demand for coking coal remains basically strong.

TALKS ADMITTED

Ashland Oil of Kentucky is credited with an interest in a take-over of Home Oil Company of Calgary.

No confirmation from a Canadian source has been made, but there are rumors that Canadian government is not willing to see Home Oil, Canada's largest domestically-owned oil and gas company, fall into U.S. hands.

Brown virtually controls Home through his holding of 50 per cent of the voting stock of Cygnus Corp. Cygnus in turn owns about 39 per cent of the voting stock of Home.

In the past two weeks the market price of Cygnus has risen from about $5.75 to $7.50.

WESTERN PROFITS DIP

The lowering of the price of copper from a high of 80 cents in March to 46 cents in December has played havoc with the net earnings of Western Mines Ltd.

The company, which claims at Buttle Lake on Vancouver Island, made $369,572 (7.1 cents a share) in the last quarter of 1970.

In the samer period of 1969, Western's net profit had been $2,398,289 (46.4 cents).

The earnings for the whole of 1970 were $4,001,904 (77.1 cents) against $6,172,275 ($1.19) a year earlier.

The drop in earnings was said to be "almost entirely due" to the drop in the price of copper, although the company has an ore body containing other metals as well.

NICKEL A WINNER

International Nickel Company of Canada improved its ratio of earnings to capital invested during 1970, a year in which nickel prices rose by about 25 per cent.

The big Sudbury company reported its net earnings at $208,000,000 ($2.80 a share) compared with $116,500,000 ($1.56) in 1969.

In 1969 the earnings suffered as a result of a 128-day strike at its main Ontario plants.

BONDS WENT FAST

Offering a yield of 6.85 per cent over a period of 18 years, the new issue of Government of Canada 6¾-per-cent bonds of 1989 went quickly when put on offer Monday morning by the Bank of Canada.

The issue, confined to $150 million with the Bank of Canada pledged to take up $25 million, was priced at 99.

Local dealers said the demand has been good and that the bonds were quickly placed at a premium in open market dealings, trading between 99½ and 100.

The terms of the issue and the quick acceptance brought small advances to the bond market generally. Short term Canadas were up about 10 cents while longer terms, provincials and corporations were up about ¼.

Coin Case Undecided

Judgment on a charge of uttering a forged coin was reserved by Judge William Ostler to Feb. 10 Monday in Victoria Provincial Court after defence lawyer Dermond Owen-Flood urged acquittal with an argument citing precedents as far back as 1835.

The charge against Stephen Paul Maloney, 21, of 1608 Redfern, resulted from an incident last Nov. 7 in a laundromat at 2004 Oak Bay in which several washers were inserted into a coin-changing machine used to give two dimes and a nickel for a quarter.

● The typed charge did not allege the washers were used in place of "a coin of value," as required by law, but just as "a coin."

● No evidence was presented to show whether the machine was designed to receive coins alone, or coins and tokens.

● Most important, the law involved deals with machines that vend merchandise or services and there was no evidence that a change machine vends — involving profit — or just exchanges.

Owen-Flood's reference to 1835 involved an English case concerning vending. This and other precedents will be studied by Ostler before judgment.

Last Dec. 7, in another court section, Judge E. F. N. Robinson dismissed a charge against Maloney of uttering a piece of metal for a coin, the charge following the same incident. Robinson said he accepted Owen-Flood's argument that "one can in law utter (use a thing as legal tender) only to a person."

"This sort of thing cannot be allowed to go on," Ostler said in reference to the latest in several recent drunken disturbances in Victoria-area hospitals. "It's disgraceful."

The case was that of William Richard Scott, 47, of 138 Dallas, who pleaded guilty to a charge of causing a disturbance by being drunk Sunday in St. Joseph's emergency ward and, to a charge of assaulting an orderly.

A member of Alcoholics Anonymous came forward from the spectators' section of offer help to Scott and got the judge's thanks. But because this was not Scott's first such offence, the judge ordered a jail term totalling 28 days on the two charges.

Fines totalled $450 for Stafford Guy Benning, 27, of 714 Discovery, who pleaded guilty to a two-count Victoria charge of driving without insurance and driving with a blood-alcohol reading of more than .08 per cent. Both offences occurred Saturday and Benning was fined $250 on the first count and $200 on the second.

□

Kenneth Sam, 33, of Duncan, was fined $200 following his plea of guilty to a charge of driving Saturday in the Colwood area with a blood-alcohol reading of more than .08 per cent.

□

Richard Pollard, address not known, was fined $50 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of wilful damage involving less than $50. He admitted kicking a door off its hinges and breaking some windows Jan. 22 in a Victoria home after an argument with the occupant, a woman friend, and said he had paid for the damage.

□

In the court section of Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, a verdict of guilty was announced following a trial of Percival Gordon Hayward, 48, of 1575 Begbie, on a charge of impaired driving and refusing to take a breath-analysis test Dec. 6 in Saanich. He was fined $300 on the first count and $200 on the second, and given a partial four-month driving ban.

□

Bernard Charles Saywell, 19, of 906 Deal, was fined $200 and given a partial three-month driving ban following his plea of guilty to a charge of driving Sunday in Oak Bay with a blood-alcohol reading of more than .08 per cent.

Playground Incident

Saanich police picked up two juveniles and seized an air rifle and two air pistols Monday, 12 hours after shots were fired through rear windows in home of Roscoe Miles, 76, of 970 Darwin. Miles, pointing to hole in window, said neither he or his wife were hurt although one pellet "landed right at my wife's feet." He traced troubles to nearness of Tolmie Park playfield at Savannah and Leslie, saying in past he has had windows broken and was once "knocked cold by a softball." He said a 16-foot high fence was put up between his property and playfield "but they broke boards and tore holes in it." Police said charges are being considered and matter will likely go to juvenile court.—(William A. Boucher)

City Doctor To Attend Drug Talks

Dr. E. G. Q. Van Tilburg, executive director of St. Joseph's Hospital, will represent B.C. hospitals at a national symposium on drug abuse this week.

The three-day meeting in Montreal, starting Wednesday will discuss hospital responsibility toward drug users. At first it was to be attended by only 300 invited persons but interest has pushed registration to more than 450.

Also attending from BCHA will be Frank Wade, the organization's education director.

Ten Qualify In First Aid

St. John Ambulance certificates were awarded to 10 candidates recently who completed a first aid course sponsored by the Saanich Peninsula school district adult education division.

Awards were made to Mrs. Anne Cook, Mrs. Elizabeth Doran, Mrs. Anne Johnson, Mrs. Gloria Greaves, John MacLaren, Patricia McLeod, Judy Soper, Martin Gibbon, Jim Golmer and James Penfold.

The years of dissipation finally caught up with the playboy and he went to see his doctor. Doc's advice was straight to the point. "The best thing you could do is cut out late hours, cut out drinking, and cut out women," said the medic firmly.

The playboy winced. "Doc," he said, "I don't deserve the best. Tell me — what's next best?"

Gaglardi Won't Help Youth Hostel

Cool-Aid Bid Fails

Victoria Cool-Aid's latest attempt to get provincial financing for its proposed $60,000 youth hostel was defeated Monday.

Following a 40-minute meeting between Rehabilitation Minister Philip Gaglardi and Cool-Aid officials, the minister made it clear, Cool-Aid representatives said, he doesn't intend to spend money on the purchase of Emmanuel Baptist Church at the corner of Fernwood and Gladstone, which the group hopes to turn into a youth hostel.

Gaglardi wasn't available for comment Monday, but he stated earlier his department had overspent its 1970 budget by $30 million. He has also stated Cool-Aid hostel programs aren't sufficient to meet the needs of young people.

Hugh Wade, a Cool-Aid spokesman, told the Colonist the minister made a number of suggestions, but he didn't say what kind of suggestions.

"I don't want to intimidate the minister; I'd rather you ask him what he told us," said Wade.

Cool-Aid hasn't given up hope yet, he said. The group would prepare "a good case" and try again to get the provincial government's support.

"I'm sure if Mr. Gaglardi really knew what we've been doing, he would give us the money, but it's pretty difficult to talk about three years of work by Cool-Aid in 40 minutes," Wade said.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, Cool-Aid's option on the church building has expired, but Wade said there are no other buyers yet.

"We still hope to get the building," he said.

Victoria city council has held up a rezoning application by Cool-Aid for the church until a formal reply from Gaglardi to the request for funds is received.

Chevrolet's new Impala puts you first at least 15 new ways. Your Chevy Dealer puts you first with a great deal. Maybe you should see Impala and your Chevy Dealer today!

1971. You've changed. We've changed. We set out to discover what you were looking for. We found you've changed. So we've changed. And here it is—new Impala—bigger and better than you probably thought it could be.

New looks

We started with a longer, 121½-inch wheelbase and went from there. New front end, new rear end, new over the top and around the sides. And just wait 'til you see the interiors.

New double-panel roof

For a start, it keeps things very quiet inside. It should, because there's a lot more to the roof than just very handsome lines. In fact, there's twice as much. There are now two roofs. A steel outer roof, with the inner one acoustically perforated and then further insulated with a perforated headliner.

New power ventilation

A blower fan goes on when you turn on the ignition. Fresh outside air is drawn in the front louvers, forcing stale air out the rear deck louvers. You can get a complete change of air in 60-seconds, even when the car is idling.

New standard disc brakes

Once a sports car special or extra-cost option on big, expensive cars, power front disc brakes are now standard on all '71 Big Chevrolets. Dual master cylinder, warning light, corrosion resistant brake lines, too!

New body sills

Our design eliminates collection of rust-causing dirt and moisture. A feature you'll appreciate in a couple of years, come trade-in time.

New instrument panel

Sit right up or sit right back. Controls are easy to reach and instruments can be read at a glance. Glare is minimized and the area is fully padded.

New slim windshield pillars

They've been slimmed down and moved back to increase the windshield area and give you better visibility.

New windshield design

The big idea: more glass and safer glass. Impala's windshield is now up to 15% bigger and the glass is lighter, smoother and easier to see through. It resists pitting better and crumbles to rounded particles on heavy impact. Remarkable stuff!

New windshield wipers

They're a full 18" long and have a new, stronger linkage design for a larger "sweep" area. Tuck away when not in use.

New front suspension

We were looking for a way to give you a smoother, quieter ride and improved handling. One drive and you'll know we found it.

New hood release

You unlock the hood from inside the car. An extra precaution against theft.

New wider wheels

Wide stance and wider wheels for improved stability.

New anti-pollution fuel evaporation system

This new system cuts down fuel evaporation into the atmosphere. To further fight pollution, all 1971 Chevrolet engines have been designed to operate efficiently, and with lower exhaust emissions, on low-lead, no-lead or regular fuels.

New steering

Impala's a big car and so the steering gets a lot of attention. Our new forward-mounted gear and linkage give more precise steering response.

New flush door handles

A one-finger "pull" opens the door. To lock from the outside simply depress inside button and slam shut.

The newest, biggest Impala, ever. And now's a great time to get one. Your Chevy Dealer's waiting to trade. And what a great deal he has for you.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

BOROS WINS

Ben Kern of Toronto shot a 70 on the final round, worth $175. He was the only Canadian to make the cut Friday.

Julius Boros playing as a senior professional for the first time, won the $40,000 Professional Golfers Association Mercury Seniors championship at the PGA National Golf Club Sunday with a 72-hole, three-under-par 285 at Palm Beach Gardens, Florida.

He overtook Tommy Bolt, leader in the second and third rounds, on the second hole of the final round, passed him at the fourth and was never headed. Bolt had complained of a back strain at the end of the third round.

Boros had a par 72 Sunday and Bolt a four-over-par 76 for a 288 total.

The win was worth $4,000 to Boros.

WEAVER TOPS

Bert Weaver carded a one-under-par 71 Sunday and withstood a challenge from Colombia's Juan Pinzon to win the $17,500 Maracaibo Open golf tournament, a Caribbean tour event in Venezuela.

Weaver, once a fulltime regular on the PGA natoinal tour in his native United States, had a 72-hole score of 284. He earned $3,500 with his victory here.

He was four-under-par for the four-day tourney and had a two-stroke margin over Pinzon, who closed with a 69.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg shot a 77 on the final round for a 289 total, which he shared with five other golfers. The group collected $700 each.

Old-Time Bowler Second In B.C. Tenpin Trials

VANCOUVER — Eighty-one-year old Walter Lewis of New Westminster outbowled the youngsters here Sunday to become one of two men to qualify this year as British Columbia's representatives in the Canadian Tenpin Federation championships in Vancouver on May 22 and 23.

Lewis had scores of 202, 242, 184, 156, 176, 155, 181, 236, 190 and 175 for a total of 1897 to finish second out of six men trying for the qualifying berths. North Vancouver's Bob Gardner was top man with scores of 202, 204, 174, 246, 186, 150, 226, 172, 192, 179 for a 1931 total.

* * *

The pair join Ron Carson of North Vancouver and Steve Brown of Burnaby in the B.C. team for the championships. Carson and Brown qualified last year as did Victoria's Lorna Pollock who took part in the world meet in Puerto Rico in 1969.

Making up the B.C. team is Louise Smith of Vancouver who was the top women Sunday with a score of 1899.

Carol Newcomb of Victoria finished second in the women's event with 1766, Esther Leitch of Vancouver was third with 1703, Victoria's Muriel Dodsworth was fourth with 1674, Sue Tuininga of Campbell River was fifth with 1635 and Audrey Malkewich of Campbell River was sixth with 1592.

* * *

In the men's event, Don Lutz of Vancouver was third, with 1857 and others taking part were Pete Svetich of Courtney with 1800, Henry Loo of Victoria with a score of 1786, Russ Malkewich of Campbell River with 1781 and Sheldon Nipp of Victoria with 1760.

Curling

Moore, Mates Gain B.C. Final

NANAIMO — Gordie Moore and Dick Pick of the Victoria Curling Club, are two victories away from their second chance in three years at winning the Canadian senior men's curling championship.

Moore's rink, which also includes Gordon Hooey as vice-skip and Jack Smith at lead, won the Pacific Coast Curling Association championship on Sunday by scoring an 11-8, extra-end victory over clubmate Steve Hayhurst in the final game of the eight-rink double-knockout playoff.

TO KIMBERLEY

Moore, who was runnerup in the 1969 Canadian championship while calling the shots for Pick, then his vice-skip, Laurie Perlette and Joe Leibel, now takes his rink to Kimberley for a best-of-three final starting next Monday.

Sunday's match-up was the third for Moore and Hayhurst in the PCCA playoff and their fourth this season in playoff competition. Hayhurst, beaten only four times in playoff play, won only once against his clubmate.

That victory came in the "B" half of the modified playoff draw and made temporary amends for the 16-3 route suffered to Moore in the opening round of the PCCA final.

The win also put Hayhurst (Wayne Winkler, Roy Allan, Geoff Martin) into the "B" final, and another shot at Moore was gained Sunday morning through 10-5 romp over Blake Barker of Vancouver.

FORCED EXTRA END

Moore, winner of "A" event, appeared to have it cashed when he headed home with a three-rock edge but Hayhurst tied it up and appeared to be head for victory on the extra end until Hooey came up with a clutch shot.

Hooey came around a covering rock to turn the end around by chipping shot rock off the button.

Among the seven disappointed rinks in the PCCA playoff was Don MacRae's Nanaimo Curling Club quartet which last year won the Canadian title. It found home ice no advantage and was eliminated in two draws.

Fraser Valley Decides Reps

CHILLIWACK — Rinks skipped by Tony Folk of Cloverdale, Jake Block of Abbotsford, Glen Walker of Haney and Chuck Kennedy of Surrey's Heather Club will represent the Fraser Valley zone in the Pacific Coast Curling Association men's final.

They made it in weekend playoffs which concluded Sunday and will face Mainland champions Lyall Dagg and Glen Pierce of Vancouver and Vancouver Island champions Gary Leibel of Victoria and Fred Duncan of Duncan in double-knockout competition which begins Friday at the Heather Club.

Kennedy (Willi Palendat, Sandy McKay, Bruce Bacon and Walker (Rick Pugh, Perc Munroe, Dennis Perry) had to battle back through "B" event. Kennedy bested Laurie Lavender by scoring three on the home end in the "B" semis while Walker knocked off Trev Fisher of New Westminster.

Cougars' Boss Assumes Added Duties as Coach

By JIM TANG

Eric Bishop, general manager of the Victoria Cougars and a member of the Calgary group which purchased the B.C. Junior Hockey League club last summer, announced at a Monday press conference that he has taken on the additional duties of coach.

He takes over from Ron Maxwell, former coach of the Brandon Wheat Kings of the Western Hockey League who was signed to a year's contract as manager and coach before the sale to the Calgary group.

Maxwell will continue with the Cougars until the end of his contract period as "assistant" to Bishop. No specific duties were spelled out other than that there could be some scouting trips for the deposed coach.

Along with the change in Maxwell's status came a more important role for Bob Reid, managing director of the Cougars when they were owned by a Victoria group and a member of the committee which recommended the hiring of Maxwell.

DUTIES SPELLED OUT

Reid, who has been director of player personnel for Bishop, had duties spelled out which would indicate he is assistant manager and assistant coach in fact if not in name.

Bishop said Reid would handle workouts whenever time permits and would probably handle the club from the bench on occasion.

"I wanted him to handle all the games from the bench but he wasn't able to do it," Bishop said.

ON BENCH WEDNESDAY

Bishop said that he would be in bench charge for Wednesday's game in New Westminster and here Saturday night when Vernon Essos come to town.

The change, while not unexpected, was still somewhat surprising because of the standing of the Victoria club. The Cougars have been out in front from the start, and now eight points ahead with 16 games left, actually gained slightly while in a recent slump, Vancouver picking up a game in hand.

It was soon made clear, however, that there were differences in the thinking of Bishop and Maxwell.

RECORD FINE BUT—

"I think the club should have done better," Bishop replied to a direct question. "The won and lost record is fine but I'm talking about performance on the ice."

By "performance on the ice" Bishop meant that he believed that too many members of his club were not giving their best and he made it clear that he held Maxwell to account for this.

"I have no beef with Ron and we've never had any words but I think that he has been too easy on them," Bishop said. "Certain players have taken advantage of his leniency."

REALLY SURPRISED

Asked to comment on the decision removing him as coach, Maxwell said that he was "really surprised."

"I felt I was doing a good job. We did go into a slump when we were nine points ahead but we are still eight points ahead and I felt we were out of our slump," he said.

Maxwell also praised his club, refusing to name any player he thought hadn't given him his best performance.

FINEST GROUP

"On and off the ice, I think this is the finest group of junior players I have been associated with," Maxwell said.

There was also a difference of opinion on the Cougars' position at centre ice. Maxwell allowed that he felt there was a problem on one line. Bishop said that "We are so bad at centre that it's pathetic" and announced that a number of players, including winger Bruce Cowick and defencemen Dale Pennock and Gerry Bond, would be tried at the pivot post.

VERY SORRY

Answering a question about his thoughts on the change, Reid replied that "I'm very sorry, I consider myself a friend of Ron's but I am Eric's assistant and I back him up on the decision he has made."

Bishop said that it wouldn't take him long to make a change if the Cougars didn't perform for him.

Asked what he would expect from another coach if he felt that he would have to remove himself, Bishop said that if the Cougars remain in the BCJHL he would want a patient teacher and go with a young club but that if the Cougars gained admittance to the WCHL he would seek "a qualified man."

Reminding that Maxwell had been hired before he became associated with the club, Bishop stressed that any future coach "will be my man."

For now it's "I will run the hockey club. Period."

University of Victoria Vikings and the UVic Vikettes both kept their hopes of reaching the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball playoffs alive Monday, with victories over University of Saskatchewan (Regina) Cougars and University of Alberta Pandas, respectively, at UVic gymnasium.

Vikings retained their hope by remaining within two points of fourth-place Winnipeg with a 94-62 win over the Cougars.

ALBERTA SWING

The Vikings leave on Friday for a three-game swing of Alberta to round out their WCIAA schedule, playing the University of Alberta Friday, the University of Calgary Saturday and the University of Lethbridge next Monday.

With a 53-50 victory over the Pandas in the first game of a two-game series, Vikettes strengthened their chance of making the playoffs considerably. The win moved Vikettes into a tie for third place with Manitoba Bisonettes, beaten Monday, 24-88, by the University of British Columbia Thunderettes in Vancouver.

In other men's games Monday, University of Manitoba Bisons beat University of Alberta Golden Bears, 100-76; and University of Winnipeg Wesmen defeated University of Lethbridge Chinooks, 87-56.

And in other women's league games, University of Saskatchewan downed University of Lethbridge, 75-54; and University of Calgary beat University of Saskatchewan (Regina), 53-43.

Leading 34-19 at half time, the Vikettes allowed Pandas to take control at the start of the second half and after only 10 minutes the visitors had tied the game, 40-40. However, Vikettes tightened up their play toward the end and squeezed out the three-point win.

Connie Saunders was high for Alberta with 12 points and Marg Hawkey had 11.

Briefly Speaking

UVic Sailors Score Upset

Sailors from the University of Victoria pulled off a nautical upset Sunday by winning the Kitsilano Yacht Club Regatta in English Bay in the face of stiff opposition from host club University of British Columbia and teams from Washington and Oregon.

UVic sailing team skippers Bob Skinner, Louise Anstey and Rob Thompson and crews Grant Davis, Al Kenning and Trev Barnacle piloted their flying juniors to pile up the highest number of points in the series of races. Western Washington State College placed second and UBC was third.

It marked the first time the annual regatta had been won by any team but the strong UBC or Washington clubs.

GEORGE WEISS, long-time executive with New York Yankees and then New York Mets, and six players were voted into baseball's Hall of Fame Sunday by the veterans' committee. The players named were Jake Beckley, Rube Marquard, Harry Hooper, Joe Kelley, Chick Hafey and Dave Bancroft ... Brooks Robinson, outstanding player in the 1970 world series at third base and at bat, was named Monday winner of the 21st annual Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year Award ... Terry Sawchuk, whose death eight months ago ended a long and brilliant NHL career, will be inducted into the Detroit Red Wing hall of fame on Thursday ...

PEDRO RODRIQUEZ, a wiry little Mexican toughened by 17 of his 31 years behind the wheel of a racing car, buzzed past a flame-spitting Ferrari in the final 45 minutes to grab, with co-driver Jackie Oliver of England, a win for Porsche in the 24-hour Daytona endurance test. Earlier Sunday, the pair had spent an agonizing 93 minutes in the pits while their crew replaced a balky transmission ... Serge Savard of Montreal Canadiens was placed in a leg-length cast Sunday after re-fracturing his left leg in Montreal's 5-4 loss to Toronto Saturday ... Left-winger Earl Heiskala has been loaned to San Diego Gulls of the Western League for the balance of the season by Philadelphia Flyers of the NHL.

Badminton Winners

Bob Hunt and Ed Hedley (above), who first won the city open doubles badminton championship in 1959, won it for the 12th time Saturday at the Racquet Club of Victoria by defeating Dave Sorenson and Bob Lewis in the final. Since 1959, Hunt and Hedley have missed only once, in 1962. Liz-Ann Ogden (right) was the only two-event open winner, taking the women's singles and combining with Sue Mollliet for the doubles title. (Mike Woodley)

Giles Wins Hard Way

PRINCE GEORGE — Brent Giles of North Vancouver, Sunday skipped his lineup of Mike Gardner, Graham King and Garth Moore to the B.C. schoolboy curling championship.

Giles, who wound up in a three-way tie for first place, at 5-2, after the eight-rink round-robin playoff had ended, did it the hard way. He defeated Vancouver, 7-2, in the semi-final of the extra playoff, then took a 4-2 decision over Mission.

Next step for the Giles rinks is the Canadian championship, scheduled at Kamloops, Feb. 22-27.

NEXT GAME: Tonight — Kelowna at Penticton.

Kamloops Rockets, second-place team in the British Columbia Junior Hockey League's Okanagan Division, earned two points Sunday with a 5-3 victory over Vancouver Centennials — but they didn't make any headway.

While the Rockets were skating to their win before 1100 fans in Kamloops, division-leaders Penticton Broncos were in Chilliwack crushing the Bruins, 7-4, to stay six points ahead.

For Vancouver goals came from Keith Nordin, Ray Todd and Bill Gaston.

Kamloops goalkeeper Jim Evans, who sat out most of the year but came on after Sam Clegg was traded to Saskatchewan Blades, kicked out 35 shots.

Mike Randolph scored twice for Bruins, getting both in the third period when they were two men short. Larry Davis and Rich Kramp got the other goals.

Winless Esquimalt has become the second team in recent weeks to desert the Senior High School Rugby League.

Esquimalt, with seven losses in seven matches and with 138 points scored against them and only 28 points on the credit side, announced they were pulling out of the league this weekend and did not field a side for Monday's scheduled game against the recently-formed Claremont "B" squad.

Earlier second from the bottom Reynolds announced they were withdrawing from the league and a new schedule was drawn up.

Meanwhile, the race for the top became tight as Claremont defeated Oak Bay, 20-8, Monday to pull into a first-place tie with Victoria high school. Victoria, however, has one game in hand.

The recent ban on the use of school playing fields brought postponement of Monday's scheduled game between Victoria and Mount View and the game now will be played on Wednesday.

Casey Walt and Terry Ponchet scored tries for Claremont in the first half and Oak Bay kept it to 6-5 by the interval with a try scored by Ross Caldwell, converted by Don Miles.

However, all Oak Bay could manage in the second half was a penalty goal booted by Miles while Claremont raced to victory with tries scored by Tim Lott, Ben Elwell, Chuck Shergold and Rene Karemaker and a convert kicked by Lott.

Victoria high school edged Oak Bay in a 48-44 thriller Monday to edge within two points of the league leaders, Claremont, in the Senior High School Girls' Basketball League.

For a time it looked as though Oak Bay might topple Victoria as they fought back from 26-39, with 13 straight points in one spurt, to tie it 44-44 with only two minutes to go. Pattie Godfrey got the tie breaking basket. Donna Blackstock was top scorer with 12 points.

Multi-Player Deals

Mike Walton Newest Bruin

Walton

From Canadian Press

Mike Walton has been traded by Toronto Maple Leafs, shutting off threatened legal action, and New York Rangers have made another trade in an effort to head off what is threatening to be another late-season skid.

Five clubs figured in the weekend National Hockey League transactions with Walton going from Philadelphia Flyers to Boston Bruins and Rangers making their deal with Detroit Red Wings.

Walton, who had been suspended this season, moved from a fourth-place club to a third-place club and then to a first-place club within an hour on Sunday.

The Leafs, who had been trying to make an equitable deal for Walton for some time, got in exchange a player they had been seeking while he was still in junior ranks.

Going to the Leafs is goalkeeper Bernie Parent, 25, who was taken from the Boston roster in the first expansion draft and who has since shared puck-stopping chores for the Flyers with Doug Favell.

The Leafs also received Flyers' No. 2 choice in next June's amateur draft. The Flyers received goalkeeper Bruce Gamble and the Leafs' No. 1 draft spot as well as Walton.

COMPLETES DEAL

The Flyers then completed a deal with the Bruins which had started a few days ago when they got winger Dan Schock from the Boston club in return for "future considerations."

PRESSURE OFF

"I think there's a lot of pressure lifted off me now and I'm really happy about joining Boston," the 26-year-old centre said. "They're a great bunch of guys and a great bunch of hockey players."

Only six days before the trade, Toronto-lawyer Alan Eagleson announced that legal action would be taken unless the Toronto club traded Walton.

Rangers, who have won only one of their last eight games (they have tied four) continued their attempt to find missing pieces in a five-player deal in which they picked up right-winger Bruce MacGregor and reacquired defenceman Larry Brown.

NEW RED WINGS

Brown had been traded earlier this season in the deal which brought centre Pete Stemkowski to the New York club.

Going to Detroit in Monday's swap were defencemen Arnie Brown and Mike Robitaille and Tom Miller, a forward who had been playing in the Central League for Omaha.

Victoria United, due to face the powerful Vancouver side Columbus at Royal Athletic Park next Saturday, had its lead in the Pacific Coast Soccer League trimmed to one point Sunday when Columbus crushed last-place UBC Thunderbirds, 6-2, at Empire Stadium.

United's game Saturday with North Shore at Kinsmen Park was postponed because the field was soaked, and United declined an offer to play Sunday morning on the all-weather artificial turf at Empire Stadium. The game will be replayed at a later date.

Phil Stanford and Gary Thompson scored the UBC goals.

Next game: Tonight—Montreal at Vancouver.

Punch Imlach has had more than his share of big moments, but none may have been bigger than the one he had last June when he won the right to make the first choice in the National Hockey League junior draft.

Being able to beat the 13 other clubs to Gilbert Perreault is the main reason Imlach is beating his way back to the top of the coaching profession after he had reached a low point with the abrupt dismissal by Toronto Maple Leafs minutes after their 1969 season ended.

STANDOUT FROM START

Not only has Perrault been a standout from the start of his first professional season but he is getting better and leading Buffalo Sabres to a respectability no one expected the first-year club to acquire so soon.

So impressive has the French-speaking centreman been that he is being compared to Bobby Orr.

"He's got moves other guys haven't even thought about," Tim Horton, veteran New York defenceman, said admiringly after a recent game.

HE'S UNBELIEVABLE

"He's got more moves than Orr," said Jim Wiste about Perreault.

ALL MERITED

It was all merited. Perreault scored once on a slap shot which would have done credit to Bobby Hull and once on a neat bit of stickhandling which left goalkeeper Charlie Hodge groping. And he also delighted purists by weaving his way through the entire Canuck team before shooting wide.

The scoring shots were Perreault's 25th and 26th of the season and they featured the 6-1 rout of Canucks which put Sabres into fifth place in the East Division and left Canucks sharing last place with Detroit Red Wings.

Sabres have now won three and tied one of their last four games and are 6-3-4 in their last 13 games.

As for Canucks, they have lost five and tied one of their last six games, are 1-10-2 this year and are winless on home ice since Dec. 15 — losing eight times and tying once.

Wings are doing little better. They took a 3-1 setback in Philadelphia Sunday and are 1-6-3 in their last 10 games, a streak interrupted only by 7-3 rout of the Canucks.

Gary Dornhoefer did in the Wings, scoring at 16:39 and 19:59 of the third period.

BRUINS ROUT BLUES

In Boston Sunday, Phil Esposito got his 45th goal and two assists and Orr his 21st and 22nd goals and an assist in Boston Bruins' 6-0 job on St. Louis Blues.

Victory, coupled with the 2-2 tie the struggling Rangers managed with Los Angeles Kings, moved Bruins six points ahead in the East Division. Defeat dropped the Blues 17 points behind Chicago Black Hawks, 4-1 winners over Montreal Canadiens, in the West Division.

In Sunday's sixth game, new acquired Gordie Labossiere scored three times as the goal-hungry Minnesota North Stars finally broke out to bury California Golden Seals, 7-1.

U.K. Market Bid 'Too Low'

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The European Common Market said Monday the price Britain has offered to pay for full membership in the six-nation trading community is too low.

Jean-Francois Deniau, commissioner in charge of membership negotiations, hinted that if Britain did not up her offer she could not expect full voting rights on joining the market.

But on arrival in Brussels for his first talks this year with the community, chief British negotiator Geoffrey Rippon said any membership conditions that did not include full voting rights from the start were "unthinkable."

Deniau told common market foreign ministers meeting to prepare for Tuesday's talks with Britain, that the British proposal fell far short of what the commission felt was a reasonable down payment.

He said the British proposal, submitted in December, raised "certain delicate institutional problems."

Common market officials said Deniau was referring to voting rights.

★ ★ ★

Britain is seeking full membership of the common market, composed of West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg, for the third time in a decade.

Britain's two previous attempts to join the prosperous continental trading club were vetoed by France.

The ministers all agreed in an opening statement that the British offer was too low. One commission source said they found it "laughable."

All except France agreed to an addtional three-year period for correctives to be applied.

West German Foreign Minister Walter Scheel described two types of swimmers: One that went into the water gradually after testing with his toe and the second kind who jumped in.

"With their sporting reputation I would have thought the British would have preferred the latter method," he said.

Car Workers Out in Britain

Strikers' Ranks Grow

LONDON (UPI) — Automotive workers staged a wildcat strike Monday that shut down all 22 plants of the Ford Motor Co. of Great Britain and compounded the country's growing labor crisis.

Drivers of fuel tank trucks also walked off their jobs, jeopardizing London's supplies of gasoline and heating oil.

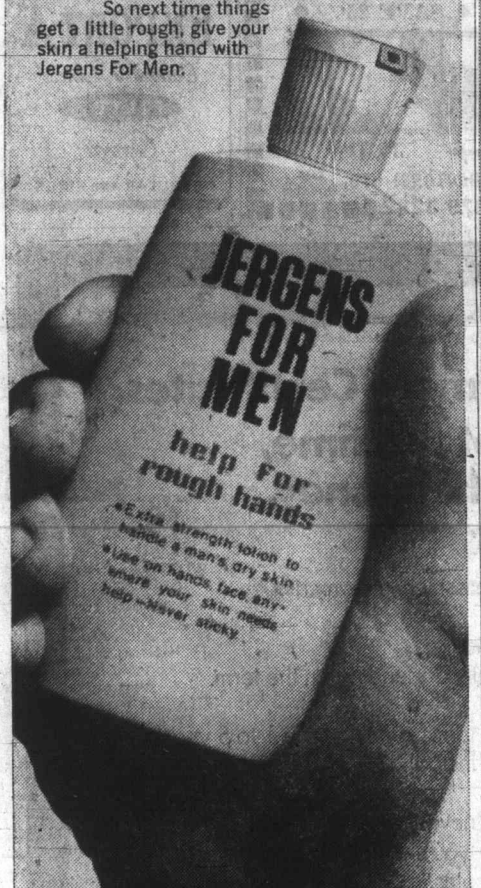

The latest strikers joined 230,000 postal and telephone workers, whose week-old strike has brought Britain's communications systems almost to a halt. The crisis was expected to grow worse later in the week, when decisions are due on pay increases demanded by railroad and electrical power workers.

Courts Held Up

By BRUCE LOWTHER

All charges in B.C. against 17-year-olds are going to be held up pending the outcome of a provincial government appeal against a Vancouver judge's ruling last Friday that people of that age must be tried in juvenile and family courts, not adult court.

The Daily Colonist learned Monday that the attorney-general's department has sent a directive recommending such action to all Provincial Court prosecutors in B.C.

While final decisions in such matters are up to the judges, the outcome throughout the province is expected to be what it was Monday in Victoria Provincial Court — adjournment of charges whether they were laid before or after the Vancouver ruling.

Two cases came before Judge William Ostler:

● Two 17-year-olds were charged jointly with breaking, entering and theft Sunday at the home of Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage, 2272 Oak Bay.

● A third 17-year-old appeared for trial on a charge of theft involving less than $50 last Dec. 14 from The Bay.

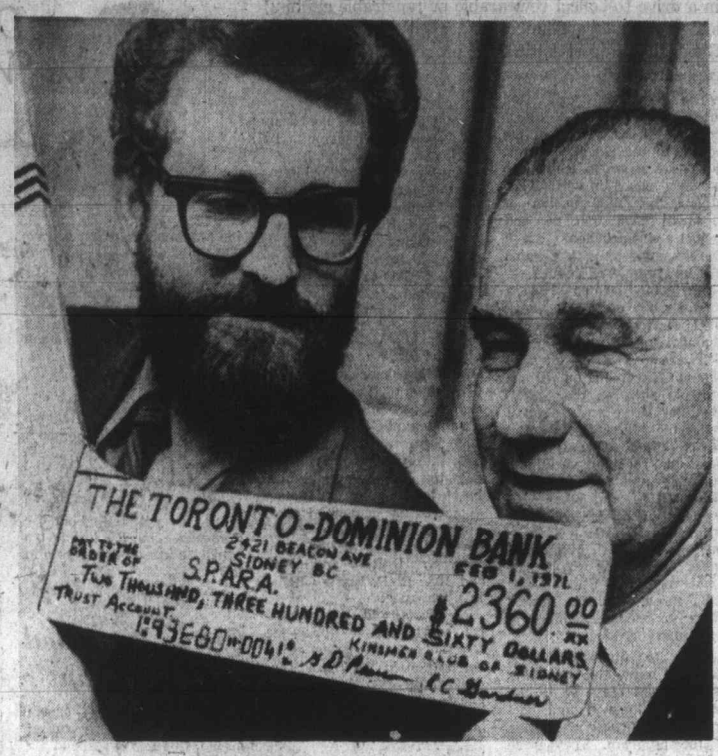

The break-in charge was heard first, with prosecutor John Macintyre formally applying for an adjournment pending the outcome of the appeal against the ruling of Vancouver Provincial Court Judge John Anderson.

That ruling declared the federal government had no right last year to lower the B.C. juvenile age to 17 from 18, an action it took at the request of the B.C. government.

Ostler explained the problem to the two 17-year-olds, then put the case over to next Tuesday, when a further adjournment is likely. They were released on bail of $500 each.

The theft trial was remanded to Feb. 15 with the accused continuing on $100 cash bail. The judge said the appeal was being pressed and "perhaps we'll know" by then the date of the appeal court's decision, if not the decision itself.

Adult Institute Surplus Pondered

College Windfall May Bump Fees

A windfall surplus of $73,000 from the 1970 Institute of Adult Studies was reported to the college council Monday night, and councillors are pondering it's best use.

The entire amount could be put over into the 1971 budget, reducing the taxpayers share from 0.9 mills to 0.77 mills — or, on an average $20,000 home, from $5.75 to $4.85.

On the other hand a bursary fund might be set up with the district's share of the suplus — some $36,000 — so that college fees could be raised to $250 for those who could pay.

This would mean a local cost of $303,962, which works out to 0.8 mills, or $5.04 in taxes on that $20,000 home.

Executive officer A. J. Longmore reported to the council that at the end of 1970 there was a capital surplus of $10,115 and an operating surplus of $63,267. However, some of that money had been needed in other sections of the institute budget so that the actual surplus was about $56,500.

That entire amount, he said, could be carried over into the 1971 budget.

Reason for the surplus, according to Longmore, was curtailing of expenditures once it was realized that the institute would close in 1971. Area ratepayers approved the establishment of the new college last fall.

Councillor Peter Bunn suggested that the district's share of the surplus should be placed into a bursary fund for students who could not afford fees of $250.

He said if investigations showed this to be possible, he would then suggest that college fees should be pegged at $250, instead of the present $200.

Bunn said if that were done, then the college budget would be within the amount which taxpayers felt they had been promised.

Controversy arose last December when a budget was approved that would represent a mill-rate increase in the first year of operation. Prior to the referendum establishing the college, school board spokesmen had said there would be no increased costs.

Institute students first voted to ask for tution fees to be increased and then reversed their decision, while college councillor Dr. Victor Rogers resigned last month over what he described as a "dishonest budget."

Bunn said Monday only the three smallest of B.C.'s eight colleges charged fees of $250 — the others charged $200.

He read letters from the presidents of Capilano, Vancouver City, and Douglas college who said that even at $200 they are getting cases of students unable to afford fees.

Longmore pointed out that in addition to fees, students have to pay for each laboratory they use, buy their books and pay student activity fees.

Island Brides

Arrest Total Zero

Vancouver Island is getting "its share" of marriage-divorce schemes arranged for evasion of Canadian immigration laws, a Victoria immigration official said Monday.

"The question is how do you prove it?" J. H. Smith, district supervisor of the immigration department's Victoria office, told the Colonist.

The brides-for-hire scheme in which would-be immigrants to Canada paid for brief marriages of convenience — some of them to female impersonators — in order to qualify for landed immigrant status was cracked over the weekend by immigration officials in Vancouver working with police.

L. C. Hawkins, Pacific region director of the immigration department, said Monday that applications for landed immigrancy by about 300 East Indian men were being held back while the investigation continues.

The men involved in the scheme, he said, were all those persons who would be unqualified for landed immigrancy except for the fact of marriage to Canadian citizens. In some cases, he said, the "wives" were male transvestites posing as females.

A "wife" would go through the marriage ceremony, testify to the marriage and to her own Canadian citizenship, then have the marriage annulled after the "husband" was granted landed immigrant status.

Hawkins said a 10-month probe revealed that brides were paid from about $200 to $1,000 to co-operate.

★ ★ ★

Two persons were arrested Sunday and charged jointly with three counts of conspiring to violate the immigration act by making misleading statements. Warrants for two others were issued.

Arrested and held on bail of $3,500 each were Marilyn Joyce Fleck, 22, of Vancouver and Jarnel Singh, 37, of Mission City.

Hawkins said the marriages of convenience came to light last March, when it was noticed that "wives" and "husbands" needed interpreters to converse. It was also noticed that the couples split up and went their separate ways when leaving immigration offices.

★ ★ ★

In Victoria, Smith said, "there is a fair-sized East Indian community on Vancouver Island and it's only natural to assume that Vancouver Island gets its share of such marriage arrangements," Smith said.

But no Island arrests had been made, he added.

Asked if the Victoria office reports suspected cases of marriages-of-convenience to the regional immigration office in Vancouver for further investigation, Smith declined to comment.

To his knowledge, Smith said, there had been no cases of female impersonation by males on Vancouver Island, as has been the case in Vancouver.

★ ★ ★

Under Canadian immigration law, an "independent" applicant for landed immigrancy needs some 50 points on a scale based on his occupation, his education, his chances of finding employment and other qualifications. A man married to a Canadian citizen is considered a "sponsored" applicant and has a far better chance to gain entry, Hawkins said.

Groundhog Day? Not Here, Charlie

By DON COLLINS

If a groundhog could speak the English language (there's no reason to think he would want to) he would undoubtedly lay to rest that tired old myth that has him popping out of his burrow every Feb. 2 to look for his shadow.

What he is really looking for, according to those who know their groundhogs best, is the shadow of a girl groundhog. Or, more preferably, the girl herself.

All of which may be a good thing for most groundhogs, with at least one exception — Vancouver Island.

The Island groundhogs — oh, yes, there is a species on the Island — would seem to be missing out on most of the fun.

To begin with, they're still in hibernation when their cousins are out courting. And their numbers, if anything, are dwindling — something that is by no means consistent with normal family growth among happy groundhogs.

Dr. Bristol Foster, director of the Provincial Museum, says the Vancouver Island variety is known as marmot.

Is a marmot a kind of groundhog?, he is asked.

"It would be more correct to say a groundhog is a kind of marmot," he answers.

The Island marmots are chocolate-coated, rare, live in such mountain regions as Green Mountain near Nanaimo and Forbidden Plateau near Courtenay, and are in danger of becoming extinct, he says.

The fact that this is so is apparently a bit of a puzzle, since the little animal hasn't too many enemies on the Island, aside from a few wolves, wolverines, cougars and eagles.

At any rate, he won't be out looking for his shadow, or anyone else's shadow today — this year's Groundhog Day.

While the others are supposedly observing this Feb. 2 ritual (if the groundhog sees his shadow we're in for another six weeks of winter), the Island marmot will be fast asleep.

In fact, because of the long winter in the higher altitudes, he can't really be expected to come out of his burrow until about June, according to Foster. By September he'll hit the sack again for the winter.

"He sleeps most of his life away," says Foster.

This, of course, could be the answer to the groundhog's problems. For no one has ever connected constant sleep with the population explosion.

It may be just as well, some experts concede. After all, the groundhog has one of the animal kingdom's fastest records when it comes to producing offspring. It takes only 28 days from mating to birth of a litter. And litters range from two to nine.

'Reverend Doctor'

"I've been ordained," he told the Colonist Monday.

All it took, he said, was some money — "the amount is between me and God" — and an application to the Universal Free Life Church of Hollywood, Fla.

His church, he said, will be an empty lot on Carberry Gardens and from there he will preach.

"Now," he chuckled, "I'm in one class with Gaglardi and Billy Graham . . . and I'll be asking Victoria city council for tax exemption on my church property."

Brothers, on University Administrator:

Degrees Not Key Factor

The number of degrees a man holds is not necessarily the main criterion when it comes to choosing him as a university president, Education Minister Donald Brothers said Monday.

Brothers was commenting outside the Legislature on the current controversy at the University of Victoria surrounding the status of president Bruce Partridge's two law degrees from Blackstone School of Law, a Chicago correspondence school.

The controversy, he said, was not really the concern of his department as it was an "internal" matter of the university.

But, Brothers said, he felt a university president should be basically an administrator. He could say, he added, that from observation of Partridge and from dealing with him, that the UVic president was "a first-class — and you can underline first-class — administrator."

Because a university president's main function will be in administration, the number of degrees he holds is not necessarily a main criterion in picking him, Brothers said.

Three presidents of Western Canada universities interviewed by the Colonist Monday tended to be sympathetic towards Partridge, and three others declined to comment on the case.

But the national secretary of the Canadian Association of University Teachers, Dr. Aowyn Berland, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa that statements by the university board of governors that Partridge was hired solely as an administrator were "preposterous."

Berland said that CAUT had no official policy regarding appointments to administrative posts but it was assumed that such appointments would include "a solid academic background."

However, he said he had no knowledge of Partridge or the requirements of the university at the time the president was chosen.

"If the board of selection was looking for a businessman at that time I suppose academic qualifications would have been a matter of lesser importance," Berland said.

He added that CAUT had had several differences of opinion with Partridge since the appointment but that had nothing to do with the present situation.

The CAUT sent a fact-finding mission to UVic last month concerning a controversy over procedures used by the administration in denying tenure to two assistant professors and refusing promotion to a lecturer. A report is expected in the near future.

University of B.C. president Dr. Walter Gage said Monday that he had no desire to comment on the matter. When he learned the subject of the call he relayed the message through his secretary.

In many cases a selection board, taking the overall position of the university into consideration, might choose a man to fill the bill and not make their judgment on the basis of academics or administration, said Dr. Max Wyman, president of the University of Alberta.

Said Dr. D. F. Lardner, Notre Dame University of Nelson: "It's all so very interesting isn't it? Comment? Of course not."

★ ★ ★

Brandon University's Dr. Lloyd Dulmage said that in many cases there was no tenure for a university president, often because they might lack academic qualifications. They were, instead, on contract to the university.

In other words, said Dulmage, they were chosen for their administrative ability rather than for their academic qualifications. He suggested that this might be the case in Victoria.

Information officer for Simon Fraser University, Dennis Roberts, said he was certain the president, Dr. K. T. Strand, would not care to comment in a general or specific way.

"Even the most general comment would be interpreted as a specific observation on the Victoria situation — and that wouldn't do," Roberts said. Dr. A. W. R. Carrothers, president of the University of Calgary, said: "A university president should be about 34 years of age. It helps if he is a bachelor and is equipped with a strong streak of masochism. He must, of course, be able to walk on water and prepared to sit at the right hand of God when he dies."

Parents of South Park elementary school students have voted 86-49 in support of principal Wilfred Orchard's banning girls in slacks from the school. Orchard said in view of the results he will carry on as before.

Planners Meet

The Community Planning Association of Canada, Capital Region branch, will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m., Thursday at the Capital Region board room, 210 Burnes House.

Journey Will Go Back in Time

The good old days of steam transportation will return to the Victoria area May 1 when the Victoria Pacific Railway starts excursion trips from Colwood to Saanich and return.

Douglas Eyrl and Terry Ferguson of Pacific Tours Ltd., Vancouver, told Saanich council about it Monday night and received that body's blessing, even though no approval was necessary.

Two 1928 locomotives will be used for the excursions. One is a Climax engine, the former Hillcrest Logging's No. 10. The other is a Mikado, formerly Comox Logging's No. 16.

The partners have three passenger cars, one with an observation platform and, for maintaining the line, a flatcar, a boxcar, a caboose and a crane.

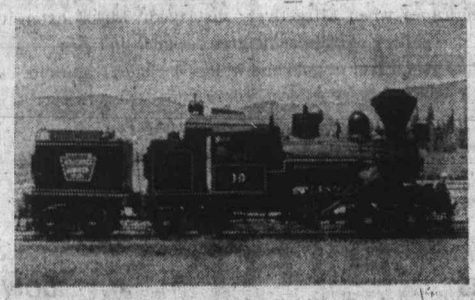

They said they will build a station at Colwood adjacent to Sooke Highway. An 1890 private railway car will serve as an office.

The CNR is making its track available for the five-mile run, which will end just inside the Saanich border near Admirals Road, they said. The train will back into town and then travel back to Colwood. The round trip will take about 45 minutes.

Excursions will be held in daylight hours only. They are to start, weekends only, May 1, with daily service commencing May 24 and running through till the end of August.

Ferguson said limitations have been made to the locomotives which would keep noise down. No smoke would be emitted, he said.

Long and Deadly Scarf

Alice's Ski Trip Ends in Tragedy

TORONTO (UPI) — "Put your scarf inside your jacket," said Mr. and Mrs. Arpad Grosz to their 16-year-old daughter Alice as she anxiously left her home Sunday morning for her first crack at a ski slope.

When Alice arrived with 35 schoolmates from associated Hebrew schools at the Mount St. Louis ski resort about 70 miles north of Toronto, she was warned again of the dangers of dangling clothing by resort owner Joseph Hunter.

The scarf was very persistent.

The resort's instructor, Wayne Wilcox, after outlining basics for his eager novices, even went and tucked the scarf inside Alice's jacket. "Keep it there," he said.

Alice and her friends were assigned their first mountain —a gentle beginner's slope. They took hold of a 250-foot tow rope while a motorized pulley on a platform at the top pulled them up. Once more Alice's scarf came loose.

While three girlfriends screamed, the dangling end tangled in the pulley and drew Alice into the mechanism. The scarf had been knotted so sightly around her neck that she would not be freed until a resort employee arrived from below.

Four doctors skiing at the chalet applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external heart massage — but all in vain. Alice would have been 17 next Monday.

Following the tragedy a provincial government inspector prepared regulations forbidding persons with loose, long hair or clothing from using ski tow ropes.

Fred Ehmke, chief inspector of the elevator inspection branch of the department of labor, said Monday a letter containing the regulations will be sent to all ski tow operators in the province.

Women Best Bosses?

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP) — A scientist said Monday women make the best bosses.

"But men, who have held the whip-hand for centuries, don't like taking orders from a woman," reported Sir John Baker, emeritus professor of mechanical sciences at the University of Cambridge.

Sir John said one reason women boss better is that they learned patience and "how to cope" when they ran a home.

The research committee headed by Sir John urged a program to get more women into mathematics and the sciences.

Help Is Pupils' Bag

All 500 students at Reynolds school are involved in a drive to collect rewearable or repairable clothing and household appliances and goods for use in the Goodwill Enterprises training program for the handicapped.

The bag drive originated after a recent visit of members of the KEY Club of the school to the Goodwill plant. No one I spoke to seemed to be very clear of what KEY stands for. Wilf Burton of Goodwill says that he and school vice-principal Sam Dumka came up with Kiwanis Encouragement of Youth.

The club, which has a membership of 13, is under the presidency of Grade 12 student Ron Strutt. Its functions are to work closely with Saanich Kiwanians on various projects such as the Christmas Toy Drive and delivery; under the adult supervision of Lewis Sutton, Kiwanis member, to receive vocational guidance and instruction as requested from other Kiwanians in related fields of endeavor; to attend Kiwanis meetings on a systematic basis to express their personal vocational desires, and meet those people in related fields; to become involved in community affairs.

Prior to distributing the Goodwill bags, club members briefed each class as to the needs of Goodwill and described the purpose and goals of the program. They were asked to take the bags home and fill them with items no longer needed around the house — ranging from clothing to small appliances and miscellaneous goods, and to be returned as early as possible before Feb. 15. The bags will then be picked up by Goodwill and taken to its workshop for processing.

Any persons having items of the larger variety they wish to donate, such as major appliances (in working order or requiring minor repair), household furniture, etc., may call 385-6791 to arrange for free pickup.

From Men's Laps Into Trouble

She Was That Little Girl

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I was hit hard by that letter about the little seven-year-old girl who climbs on men's laps and behaves in an aggressively affectionate manner. I was that little girl 20 years ago. To this day I can hear my mother say, "Isn't it cute the way Sherry goes for the men? She doesn't care for women at all!"

You were right in your answer, Ann. The reason the little girl craves male affection is because her own father ignored her. I know, because my dad was like that. He never once let me sit on his lap. I cannot recall that he ever kissed me.

Do you know what happens to little girls with cold fathers who reject them? They see "daddy" in every male who pays them the slightest attention. As teenagers they are pushovers for heels, swingers and lecherous old men who like young flesh.

I lived through it all but I was luckier than most. I met a wonderful man who understood my problem and helped me get well. (Yes, it is a sickness.) We have a wonderful marriage now and I consider myself extremely fortunate. I hope the little girl in the letter is as lucky as I was. I will pray for her. — Sherry Of Boise.

Dear Sherry: Thank you for a touching letter. I hope the unaffectionate fathers out there who have little girls, will read it and do some soul-searching.

Dear Ann Landers: If I am wallowing in self-pity please kick me in the bloomers. If I have a right to complain, say so.

I have been married 15 years to a man who works hard, pays the bills on time, is a good father and has never been known to lose his temper. He tells me I am a fine wife and a wonderful person. Should I be satisfied? Well — here's the rest of it.

From the day we married I have been alone on Thanksgiving, New Year's, my birthday, his birthday, the children's birthday, Mother's Day, our anniversary, and every holiday that gives a man a day off from work. The reason I am alone so much is because my husband is a fisherman, a hunter, a bowler, a swimmer, a surfer, a skater and a card player. In other words he's interested in everything but staying home with his family.

Do I have the right to say something? — A Married Widow In Saginaw.

Dear Sag: Of course you do, but I have a hunch it won't do any good at this late date. The time to have "said something" was 15 years ago.

You don't mention whether you enjoy any of these activities. I see in your list many things the family could do together. Is this possible? Explore the prospects and it might produce a partial solution.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 20. My fiance is 21. We are planning to be married soon and I need an answer to a question. J and I had a talk last week and he confessed he has always wanted to be married in a purple sequin jacket. I told him I'd have to think it over. The next day I discussed it with my mother. She said it was all right with her, if the minister didn't object. So I asked the minister. He said he didn't see any reason why my fiance couldn't get married in a purple sequin jacket if he wanted to, since grooms are wearing all sorts of off-beat outfits these days. (Brides, too.)

When I told J he replied, "I've changed my mind. It would take the attention away from you." This was very sweet but now I feel guilty — knowing how much it meant to him. Should I insist? — Ontario Bride.

Dear On: No. Let it be. If there's anything a bride doesn't need it's a groom in a purple sequin jacket.

Groups Gather Force In Support of Report

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of national women's organizations agreed at a closed meeting Saturday to set up a committee to support recommendations of the royal commission on the status of women.

Laura Sabia, radio commentator and former alderman in St. Catharines, Ont., said in an interview the new National Ad Hoc Committee on the Status of Women has a double purpose.

★ ★ ★

"We are going to spearhead a drive for the implementation of those recommendations which are aimed at creating a society in which there is equality of opportunity for women," she said.

"And we are going to urge all national groups and all splintered provincial groups to go after the government on their own, to get anything done that they can."

Sabia

Mrs. Sabia, president of the Canadian Federation of University Women in 1966 when 31 women's organizations met to propose the royal commission, said the group now is seeking participation from groups including such diverse organizations as Women's Liberation and the Catholic Women's League.

"We are going to try to implement those recommendations on which we feel we can get a consensus of all women's groups," she said.

"We do not want this report to lie fallow for the next 10 or 20 years."

By MARY SUE MILLER

It can happen: A girl can be in good health and be too thin at the same time. Poor dietary habits, more often than not, are the cause.

To gain weight you must take in at least 3,000 calories a day. And there's the rub. Most underweight people claim that much food to be completely unpalatable. Ugh type!

Well, it's a case of do or decline further. Here are some suggestions for "doing":

● Increase your capacity for food by eating a bit more each day until you reach your total calorie count. Try not to be picky, but educate your appetite to include a large variety of both usual and unusual foods. Force yourself to eat a little of an unfamiliar or disliked dish. The next time around, take more. First thing you know you'll be in the gourmet class. Enjoying your meals and weighing it.

● To sharpen your appetite, breathe at an open window before breakfast; relax — really let down — before dinner. If you are the chef, rest for 10 minutes and tidy up before you begin preparations. Calm nerves are weight-boosters.

● Do snack, but on simple foods like whole milk, plain cake, whole-grain crackers, fresh fruit, jello, custard. Avoid overloads of sweets and fats at all times. They are reputed to be fattening. But your tummy and your complexion can seldom handle excesses.

Also get the habit of adding a tablespoon of non-fat dry milk to your whole milk and to soups. That way you can take in many extra calories a day, painlessly.

French Quints All Dead

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — The last of the Riondet quintuplets died Sunday night. Three boys and two girls were born to Michele Riondet, a 29-year-old schoolteacher, last Thursday. The babies apparently died of respiratory trouble.

United Church Goes on Record:

Abortion Can Be Right

From CP, UPI

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. — The United Church of Canada went on record Monday as saying that abortion is morally justifiable in certain circumstances.

The vote was announced as unanimous but no figures were given. There were many abstentions in the general council, which agreed an abortion should be a private matter between a woman and her doctor.

The abortion recommendations came from the church's board of evangelism and social service and called on the government to recognize the right of a foetus and the right of a child to be wanted.

It also recommended the government withdraw all sections of the Criminal Code relating to abortion but to enact new penalties for people performing abortions without medical qualifications.

'Not Ashamed'

Meanwhile, a woman commissioner from Alberta told the general council she favored abortion because she had had two abortions.

"I'm not ashamed of it," she told the 410 commissioners to the highest court in church.

She said the abortions occurred "before 1940 when it was very, very illegal."

The woman delegate said she was a minister's daughter but that she had fallen in love with a married man and "it wasn't practical to do anything else but have an abortion".

She called the abortions a "frightening experience but I was more frightened of pregnancy. It was against everything I had been brought up to believe."

Last Resort

She said abortions should be used only as a last resort for unwanted pregnancies and recommended other forms of birth control.

"It is better to abort an unwanted baby than to bring it into a climate of being unwanted," she said, however. "We propagate unwanted people in our society from one generation to another."

The woman, in her 50s, wearing a purple pantsuit and with long blonde hair fastened in a bun at the back of her head, spoke in a strong but calm and unemotional manner.

Hospitals Repair Botched-Up Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — Most big hospitals have floors set aside where they handle the cases of botched abortions that come to them, Dr. Henry Morgenthaler of Montreal said Sunday night.

He rose to speak at the end of a symposium on abortion called by the Association for the Repeal of Canadian Abortion Laws, and cited the case of a 24-year-old New Brunswick girl whom he said was brought into Montreal's Royal Victoria Hospital bleeding from a badly-perforated abortion.

But the Royal Victoria refused to procure abortions itself, he said.

Panelist Roy Lucas, a lawyer from New York City, said more women are coming to his state from Canada to take advantage of its loose abortion laws than from any place else outside New York state.

Grace MacInnis, Canada's only woman MP, said women in British Columbia are not permitted to appear in front of abortion boards.

The woman has to wade through reams of red tape but her pregnancy does not wait, said the NDP member for Vancouver-Kingsway.

Dr. Weddell Watters, psychiatrist at St. Joseph's Hospital in Hamilton, likened abortion committees, composed of doctors who decide on whether an abortion may be performed, to tribunals "worthy of the Spanish Inquisition."

Hymn Book Combined

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (Cp) — The Anglican Church of Canada and the United Church of Canada voted separately Monday to accept a joint hymn book to be produced by the two churches.

A joint committee spent five years weeding through 10,000 hymns to produce a final total of 507, including 150 new ones.

'Slaughter' Condemned

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada's general synod this week will consider a motion urging the Canadian government to make every effort in legislation to prevent "the indiscriminate slaughter of unborn children by abortion."

Rev. P. R. Ellis of Surrey, B.C., who will move the resolution, says the important word is "indiscriminate" because "there are cases in which it (abortion) would be justified. He would not say which cases.

The motion says Canadian civilization is founded on the premise of the sacredness of human life and Canada has progressed beyond the primitive culture of disposing of unwanted children.

Harry's So Animal

Erma Bombeck

My dog, Harry, has a problem. He is the only dog in our block who is a dog. All his other canine friends are next-to-humans who wear little sweaters, watch their weight, use a mouthwash, get spelled in front of, and are literally members of families.

They have high IQ's and do extraordinary things. This is making my dog neurotic.

The other day at cardclub I watched him sadly as the women discussed their favorite topics: Super Dogs.

"Did you read where a dog in Michigan walked 300 miles through snow-covered roads to get back to his original owners?" asked a woman. (I cringed. Only last week Harry cut through a hedge to go to the bathroom on our neighbor's lawn and had to have the police bring him home.)

★ ★ ★

"My Flossie is smarter than that," said her companion. "She waits outside the supermarket and directs the carry-out boy to our car WITH THE KEYS IN HER MOUTH FOR THE TRUNK."

"It's the same with Gus," said a tall blonde. "Believe me, I couldn't hold down a job if Gus couldn't unlock the sliding glass door and let himself out every day at 1:30."

"And miss As the World Turns?" piped another voice. "Why, my Miriam wouldn't miss it. That little cutie sits there and watches TV like she understands everything that is going on."

"I've got something cuter than that," interrupted another proud mother. "Do you remember the Lassie episode where Lassie put out a forest fire, saves a herd of sheep, rescues a small boy from a mountain lion and saves a town by putting a rope around it and dragging it away from a landslide? Well,our Chip is the one who barked and alerted Lassie to the danger."

"Tell me," said Flossie's mother, "what do you do when your dog won't eat bones? I can't get Flossie to eat anything except strawberry parfait and baked lasagna. Is that wild?"

"Which reminds me," said another volunteer, "I'm giving a birthday party next week for Gus. I think he suspects. He heard me talking on the phone." There was a pause then, "Tell us about Harry. What does he do?"

I looked at Harry sitting in a fetal position by the door, a mini brain with tangled fur and bad breath and said, "Yesterday, he caught a mole and ate it."

"How disgusting," said a woman. "That sounds so . . . animal!"

Off-Beat Church Service

Pirouette Among Pews

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Ballet dancer Cathy Carpenter did a 15-minute performance in an off-beat church service Sunday night.

★ ★ ★

She had a packed house of churchmen and women against a wide-screen background of living color that told the biblical story of Mary and Martha, taken from Luke.

The service was held by the general council of the United Church of Canada. Delegates to the general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada, meeting in an adjoining hotel, also attended.

Cathy, 16, attends Notre Dame Roman Catholic high school in Toronto. A member of the United Church, she attends a Catholic school because "I like it there."

She has been taking ballet lessons for eight years and the skimpy costume she wore during her performance was a contrast to the rows of clerical collars in front of her.

The service's purpose was to show what can be done in a contemporary way to make church services meaningful to congregations.

Last Woman to Hang Will Be Exhumed

LONDON (UPI) — The Home Office plans to exhume the remains of Ruth Ellis, the last woman hanged in Britain before abolition of capital punishment, government sources said.

They said a search has been launched for relatives of the platinum blonde murderess, hanged in 1955 for shooting her lover outside a pub in a London suburb. If found, they will be asked what they would like done with the remains.

Mrs. Ellis, 28 when she died, is one of five women buried on the grounds of Holloway Women's Prison in north London. The building is to be torn down and a new women's prison built in the same site at a cost of nearly 7 million pounds ($16.8 million).

The others were Armenia Fach and Annie Walter, executed in 1903, Edith Thompson, hanged in 1923, and Cyprus-born Mrs. Styllou Christofi, who died in 1954.

Their bodies will be cremated.

Mrs. Ellis' execution aroused a worldwide outcry against capital punishment in Britain. Such public figures as mystery author Raymond Chandler came out strongly against the sentence.

Snaky Gets Sweater

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Fred looked cold and even a cold-blooded snake could use a warm sweater.

She crocheted Fred a sweater.

Fred lives in a glass-fronted cage in Coleen's third-grade classroom at Walter Douglas school. Ringed in banana hues of yellow and black, Fred is 40 inches long. The sweater is somewhat shorter.

"That's all the yarn I had," said Coleen, who has one year's knitting and crocheting experience.

Longer Hair For Seniors

BRIGHTON, England (CP) — Long hair for elderly males soon will be the trend in this Sussex coastal resort. The "institutional trim" in the old folk's home is to be dropped and men wil be allowed to wear their hair as they please. Local councillors feel senior folks will be more comfortable if given a longer rein.

BOAC Reject Will Fight

LONDON (Reuter) — Delphine Gray-Fisk, 25, turned down for a job as pilot with Britain's largest airline because she is a woman, plans to fight the decision in the House of Commons. An MP called it a "blatant sexual bar" by BOAC.

Mebs Raps 'Horse-Sense' Lack

School Board Under Fire

Only "professional types and intellectuals" have a chance of being elected to the Greater Victoria school board, an Esquimalt alderman said Monday.

"We should have representatives on the school board with some common, ordinary horse sense, but they don't have a ghost of a chance of being elected," Ald. Arthur Mebs told Esquimalt council.

The alderman's remarks came after council was informed that the school board had decided to continue its policy of election of trustees at large, and not return to the previous system of electing trustees on a ward basis.

In a letter to council, the board suggested that Esquimalt "seek some good candidates to put forward for the election of trustees at large next December."

The letter also stated that Esquimalt was now represented by nine trustees whereas under the ward system, the municipality had only one representative.

"That's a bunch of malarkey," said Mebs.

Ald. Arthur Cuthbert told council there "isn't much we can do about that."

★ ★ ★

Council decided to table the matter until October. At that time, Mebs said, "we should stir up the hornet's nest."

In other business, council decided to hold a meeting with the Esquimalt Chamber of Commerce regarding the chamber's plans to beautify Esquimalt Road.

A date will be set by council's public works committee.

Mayor Arthur Young told aldermen he will report to council once a month on Capital Regional Board activities.

The board, he said, is here to stay and Esquimalt might as well learn to live with it.

"It will take on more functions whether we like it or not. As the regional board grows, Esquimalt's need for certain administrators should decrease," Young said.

According to the municipal act, the mayor said, he doesn't represent Esquimalt council at the regional board, but only himself.

"This, however, does not mean I would ever vote for something that doesn't meet with the approval of my council," he said.

Marching Power

Canvassing for Mothers March Monday to raise funds for Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C., Mrs. John Berikoff, 548 Dallas Road, James Bay district captain, accepts donation from Mrs. Percy Frampton, 112 Montreal. About 3,000 district mothers took part in march and officials said approximately $30,000 in donations had been counted by late Monday night. This did not include unorganized areas and Saanich Peninsula.—(William A. Boucher.)

Thief Takes Cash Leaves Beer

A teetotaling theif who robbed one licensed premises in Victoria last week may have hit another during the weekend.

Victoria police said Monday about $1,000 was taken over the weekend from two cashboxes in the beer cooler of the British Public Schools Club, 1218 Langley, but no liquor was stolen.

Last weekend, a thief or thieves removed more than $800 from a bar cupboard and the liquor room of the Cherry Bank Hotel, 825 Burdett, and no liquor was taken in that case, either.

Report: Agents, Debtors

The Law Reform Commission said in its first annual report tabled in the Legislature Monday it will shortly report on recommended improvements to the law relating to harassment of debtors and licensing of collection agents.

Chairman Davie Fulton said in the report the commission expects to be able to make its report on this aspect of law reform "early in 1971."

In the coming year, the commission added, it will begin a study which is expected to produce a draft statute covering expropriation procedures which will contain "the best features" of the 1964 Clyne royal commission report and new legislation in Ontario and Ottawa.

The law reform commission, established last July, is expected to take about five years to review and recommend changes in outdated provincial statutes. In addition to Fulton, it has Richard Gosse and Frank Collier as commissioners.

Oak Bay Complex

RAG Offers Cost Figures

A $1 million loan for construction of a major recreational complex could be amortized over a 20-year period at a cost to the average homeowner of about $17 to $18 per year, according to the Oak Bay Recreation Action Group (RAG).

"This could be less, depending on the sale of municipally-owned property," RAG president Bert Bertoia said Monday.

At its third meeting Sunday the group approved the form of a petition that will be circulated among Oak Bay property owners beginning next week.

The petition will point out that a centre which would include a swimming pool, ice arena, curling rink and recreation lounge area for multiple use could be built for about $1 million.

At an interest rate of 8½ per cent, it says, this would be the equivalent of about two mills per year over 20 years.

A loan could be made against municipally-held land so that an immediate start could be made, the petition says.

"Right now we're looking for canvassers," Bertoia said. "We have the municipality divided into 12 areas and we have all the area captains, but there are approximately 600 homes in each area, so we'll need quite a few canvassers."

He said anyone interested in helping circulate the petition should contact Mr. or Mrs. Archie Courtnall, 2546 Dalhousie.

Tentative start for the drive is Monday, but Bertoia said this was dependent on the availability of canvassers.

He said a report that council last week had missed the chance to acquire one of the properties in the area it has selected for the centre by offering the owner $5,000 less than he had been asking, was erroneous.

"We meant to say last year, but sometimes when you're talking the wrong word slips out and you don't realize it just then," Bertoia said.

Jack Sanbrook, RAG vice-president and the person who had told the meeting about the property sale, apologized to the mayor and council for the error.

"If we are to be successful in this, we need the full support of the mayor and council," Sanbrook said. "The last thing we would like to do is offend them."

He extended an invitation to council members to attend the group's next meeting so any further errors could be corrected immediately and all parties would be spared embarrassment.

★ ★ ★

The next meeting will be Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Girl Guide Hall behind the fire station.

New Board to Air Insurance Hike

Car insurance premium increases announced Monday of between 10 and 12 per cent, will be discussed at the first meeting of the new provincial government automobile insurance review board in Victoria Thursday.

Board member Byron Straight said Monday from Vancouver he didn't know what action, if any, would be taken as a result of these discussions.

The premium increases were contained in new rate books sent out to members of the Canadian Underwriters Association in B.C.

George Turner, B.C. manager of the association, said he expected other insurance groups and independent underwriters to take similar action.

ORLANDO, Okla — For 18 months Harold Flitz hounded state officials about the gasoline that was leaking into and runing the backyard well that provides his family's drinking water. The officials didn't stop the leak, he says. But they did make him pay tax on the gasoline. Flitz forked over $7.53 — including $6.58 tax on 100 gallons of gasoline, plus a fine for not paying the tax on time and interest because he was late.

OTTAWA — Norbert Helmut Haase, rendered a paraplegic in a 1967 traffic accident between Kitimat and Terrace, has lost an appeal against a B.C. Court of Appeal judgment involving damages and responsibility. The appeal court had upset an earlier ruling granting Haase, as 75 per cent responsible for the accident, $38,562. Now Haase not only receives no damages; he must pay court and appeal costs.

Rose Weeds Jury Hopefuls:

'Nobody Impartial'

MONTREAL (CP) — Two jurors were chosen and three candidates rejected Monday as jury selection got under way at the kidnap-murder trial of Paul Rose.

Rose, 27, a former teacher charged with non-capital murder in the Oct. 17 strangling of Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte, acted as his own lawyer and grilled each jury candidate at length.

Many of his questions were of a political nature and were rejected by Mr. Justice Marcel Nichols, who reminded Rose that his task was simply to determine whether a prospective juror was partial or impartial.

"Nobody can be impartial here. Either he's on the side of the establishment or he's on the side of the workers."

The process of jury selection finally began as proceedings, interrupted by new shouting matches between Rose and Nichols, entered their second week.

Of the three jury candidates turned down, one was found partial and one each was rejected peremptorily by the crown and the accused.

The candidate rejected by the crown had stated under questioning he knew two members of the Quebec Liberation Front, the outlawed organization that claimed responsibility for the abduction and "execution" of Mr. Laporte.

Rose is the first of four men to appear on charges of non-capital murder and kidnapping in the Laporte case. The others are his brother Jacques Rose, 23, Francis Simard, 23, and Bernard Lortie, 19. Shouted arguments arose Monday, though Nichols reminded Rose at the outset he had found him guilty of contempt of court last week and now hoped "you will be able to contain yourself and stay within limits."

Jailed Labor Leader Loses Mistrial Bid

MONTREAL (CP) — Imprisoned labor leader Michel Chartrand lost a bid for mistrial Monday in seditious conspiracy charges against himself and four other well-known Quebecers, and hours later about 900 young people held a peaceful demonstration in his support.

Chartrand, president of the Montreal central council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, sought the mistrial on grounds that the replacement of an ill court stenographer during proceedings raised the possibility of incomplete verbatim notes.

Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet of Court of Queen's Bench ruled against the motion, saying: "The trial hasn't started and there is no mistrial."

The night demonstration, organized by the Montreal central council of the CNTU, was held to express support for Chartrand and to protest a one-year sentence for contempt of court handed him last January by Ouimet.

★ ★ ★

The judge was to continue listening today to arguments that he remove himself as presiding judge on grounds of partiality.

Author Pierre Vallieres said the judge was not impartial in recently refusing him bail.

He said the judge had made some "flagrant lies" about him in rejecting bail, quoting the judge as saying he had been "arrested several times" and had "an impressive judicial history."

"I was arrested last Oct. 16 like many people who were to serve as a scapegoat for the government."

Vallieres, lawyer Robert Lemieux, teacher Charles Gagnon and Chartrand, all facing the seditious conspiracy charge, have been held since Oct. 16.

Connally Due For Quizzing On Payment

WASHINGTON—The U.S. Senate finance committee will question treasury secretary nominee John Connally publicly today about $225,000 he received from an oil millionaire's foundation while he was governor of Texas, a committee spokesman said Monday.

The New York Times first reported Monday that Connally, a Democrat and protege of former president Lyndon Johnson, collected the money even though the Texas constitution prohibits a governor from receiving any outside "salary, reward or compensation."

The Times reported that a foundation spokesman said the money was delayed payment for legal work Connally had done as executor of the $105 million estate of Sid Richardson, of Fort Worth, who died in 1959.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our relatives, friends and neighbours to know how much their kind words and beautiful floral tributes have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow in the sad loss of our husband and father, Robert McRae Haldane. Special thanks to Rev. Alan Beaton, Mr. Bill Selfridge and McCall Bros. —Mrs. Helen B. Haldane, Maureen and Bruce.

9 IN MEMORIAM

MATTHEWS — In loving memory of my dear husband, Wilfred Matthews, who passed away Feb. 2, 1968.
—Always remembered by his loving wife, Isabelle, and family.

RHODES—In memory of a dear husband and father.
Oh, what would I give to clasp his hand,
His dear, kind face to see,
To hear his voice, to see his smile
That meant so much to me.
His spirit has fled, his suffering o'er,
At the fireside he will join us no more.

CBS has begun a U.S.-wide talent search which could mean an interesting summer replacement program this year.

The search started this month and will involve auditions in the 70 largest U.S. cities leading to final auditions this spring in New York. In addition, CBS-affiliated stations in 130 smaller cities have been asked to send tapes to headquarters for consideration.

What I like about the idea is that only professional variety talent is being considered — no amateurs, rock groups, juveniles, longhairs, etc. The outcome could be a fine summer variety series with about 10 to 15 regulars who never got a chance before, and eventually some big stars could result.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's answer — Bogart was the topic, and he made one movie each with Katharine Hepburn, African Queen; Audrey Hepburn, Sabrina; Leslie Howard, Petrified Forest; Rod Steiger, The Harder They Fall; Fredric March, Desperate Hours, and Walter Huston, Treasure of the Sierra Madre. Six biggies.

Today's question takes us back to old radio for another week. Kindly identify the star of Town Hall Tonight, the bandleader on Bing Crosby's programs and the show that was "at war, marching against the underworld." Answers Wednesday.

"This program was to be shown without interruption, but Ford has a better idea . . .

Tuesday Highlights

C-8:00 p.m.—The CBC may rerun He's Your Dog, Charley Brown—2, 6.

8:00—NET begins Turned-On Crisis, a series on drug abuse—9.

C-8:30—Telescope profiles Derek Sanderson—2, 6.

C-9:00—Storefront Lawyers drops its youth emphasis and adds older men and a new name, Men at Law—2, 6.

● 9:00—Don't miss a NET rerun of the U.S. Civil War drama Andersonville Trial, directed by George C. Scott and starring Richard Basehart, William Shatner, Buddy Ebsen, Jack Cassidy and more—9.

C-10:00—Tuesday Night begins a two-part history of the Jews—2, 6.

CABLE 10 — 7:00 p.m., Ladies' First; 7:30, Project Travel; 8:00, Comparisons; 8:30, Outdoorsmen, fishing and hunting; 9:00, You and the Law, with Saanich police; 9:30, a new hour show featuring Victoria's Helen Biernes.

Tuesday Movies

9:00 a.m.—Moonraker (so-so 1957 English costume adventure), Marius Goring, George Baker, Sylvia Syms. Brucie's Law time: To a milkman, the most precious mineral is quartz—4.

12:45 noon—Psyche '59 (1964 romantic drama, fair but very slow), Patricia Neal, Samantha Eggar, Curt Jurgens—6, 8.

C-4:00 p.m.—Never Say Goodbye (1956 soaper), Rock Hudson. Major Hoople used to say Fap, which fits this—7.

5:30—Great Diamond Robbery (1954 Red Skelton)—12.

5:30—Seven Doors to Death (1942 mystery. Another KTVW nothing). Speaking of doors: Knock knock. Who's there? David Groos. Who?—13.

C-7:30—The Point (1970 musical fable, with Harry Nilsson music). It's for children, so ABC is starting its Tuesday movie an hour early—4.

C-11:30—Day of the Badman (rotten 1958 psychological western), Fred MacMurray. Brucie's Law: What this country needs is fewer people saying what this country needs—7.

Tuesday Radio

2:00 p.m.—Afternoon Concert: Glenn Gould—CBU-FM (105.7).

7:10—Bright Lights' topic is Mancini—CBU (690).

8:00—A profile of conductor Stokowski—CBU.

8:00—Symphony Hall: the Toronto orchestra and Teresa Stratas—CBU-FM.

8:05—Gala features Schubert's Unfinished Symphony—CFMS (98.5).

11:00—A Vancouver orchestra concert—CBU.

●—Recommended; C—Color.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	All pass

Opening lead: Three of hearts

Occasionally in this noble and ancient game the declarer is forced to admit that a spot of concentrated thought is more or less unavoidable.

Let's say West leads a heart against your contract of three notrumps. East wins with the ace and returns the ninespot, which you take with the king.

You have eight readymade tricks, and it's as plain as a pikestaff that the only real hope of gaining one more is in diamonds. But exactly how would you tackle the suit?

At first it seems that the obvious thing to do is to enter dummy with a club and finesse the jack of diamonds. But then you begin to suspect that there may be something to be said for simply leading the A-K-J of the suit.

The more you think about it, the more you realize that leading the A-K-J must surely be superior to the straight finesse. It wins automatically whenever the diamonds are 3-3, and in addition it wins when either one of the opponents holds the doubleton queen.

Finally, it also wins when either of the opponents has the doubleton ten, for then you are bound to win a trick with either the jack or the nine.

Concentrated thought pays dividends!

Municipal Ills Prompt Talks

PORT ALBERNI — Concern about the attitude of the B.C. government toward the municipalities has led Ald. George McKnight to call a public meeting for 2 p.m. Sunday at Nordley's Centre.

McKnight said Monday night at council he had little hope that there would be anything in the provincial budget for the municipalities.

Although the city of Port Alberni had arbitrarily cut back $66,000 for welfare in its budget provisions in hopes there would be something come out of this session of the legislature, there were no indications as yet of any provisions for the municipalities.

Ald. George Dunbar has been asked to speak on the business tax, Ald. Mark Ivezich to speak on his proposed new service tax and Ald. Harry Rankin of Vancouver to speak on unemployment.

"I do this because it is my hope the response from the community and organized effort that resulted in such great progress previously on pollution will bring strong pressure to bear on the provincial government."

"We can't sit and wait any longer for something to happen," he said. "We can't wait until the Legislature prorogues. We have to express ourselves now."

"We have to get rid of the the soft soap approach to provincial government," Dunbar said.

Ivezich also said that he rejected the thesis of property values as the only basis for municipal taxation.

McKnight said he welcomed the announcement of a park to protect the newly-discovered caves in the Horne Lake area.

However, while the caves on the map are only three or four miles from Port Alberni city limits, those wishing to visit them will have to go 45 miles by road to do so, he said.

This is just another proof for the need for the Horne Lake road which has been a bone of contention in the community for many years, he said.

Cowichan Trustees Told:

Smaller Budget Faces College

DUNCAN — Nearly $280,000 will be shaved from Malaspina College's 1971 budget if the college council ratifies the cut made by S. E. Espley, assistant finance superintendent in the B.C. education department.

The proposed cut was announced to Cowichan school board Monday by chairman Dave Haywood, who attributed the government survey largely to last year's efforts by the Cowichan board to have the budget investigated.

"We are further ahead this year than last year, when the government did not conduct a survey," Haywood told the board.

The total essential operating expenses for the college under the Espley budget are $2,228,000. Th provincial government will pay 60 per cent, leaving the estimated district share at $890,000 less $200,000 revenue from the college.

Haywood explained that the estimated district share, which amounts to between 2 and 2.2 mills, could rise if non-shareable expenses were involved.

The board also issued a press release Monday announcing agreement between Cowichan school district and the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 606, covering salaries and working conditions for 1971 and 1972.

Eighteen full-time and 14 part-time employees will receive annual wage increases averaging $414, with an equal increase for 1972.

Seizure Kills Welder

Lloyd Dnubar, the 51-year-old Cobble Hill man whose heart was defibrillated 175 times at Royal Jubilee Hospital, has collapsed and died at home, apparently from the same type of ailment that felled him outside a Saanich shopping centre two months earlier.

It was early in the afternoon of Nov. 17, that Dunbar collapsed from myeardial infarction at Town and Country Shopping centre.

During the first 24 hours he was in Royal Jubilee's coronary care unit, his heart almost constantly misbehaved, either stopping or becoming erratic in its beating.

During each such episode — and it happened 175 times — an electrical shock was applied to his chest to restore normal heart activity. He was discharged from hospital in mid-December.

Mrs. Edith Dunbar, his widow, said Monday that the care he received at Royal Jubilee was "unbelievable . . . fantastic" and her husband was doing well until the sudden and fatal seizure that killed him Saturday, Jan. 16.

The match was the only one scheduled for Sunday.

Sewage Plans Need Help Of Province

Willis Jefcoat (SC—Shuswap) urged the provincial government Monday to provide financial aid to smaller communities so that they can install proper sewage disposal facilities.

He told the House smaller communities are going to be in serious financial trouble if they are forced to put in facilities they cannot afford. But, the Socred backbencher added, the government must see treatment plants are installed where necessary to ensure no raw sewage is discharged into rivers or lakes.

Jefcoat also said the government has failed to properly maintain highways in Shuswap and has fallen behind in the construction of new rural roads.

Winch Opens Hearing

PORT ALBERNI — Provincial Court Judge Eric Winch denied a motion of adjournment Monday as the preliminary hearing of Dr. Glen G. Stewart, 43, charged with non-capital murder following the death last fall of a mission camp caretaker, opened in Port Alberni community.

Stewart was charged Dec. 9 in the death of Gordon Adrien Kralt, 23, whose body was discovered Nov. 22 near a Pachena Bay mission camp, about 60 miles west of Port Alberni, where he had been acting as caretaker.

★ ★ ★

About 70 spectators crowded into the courtroom at Port Alberni's public safety building. Three days have been set aside for the hearing which is expected to end Wednesday.

Lawyer Rod McNeill asked for adjournment because Stewart's lawyer, Ron MacIsaac, was involved in a supreme court civil trial at New Westminster.

Winch dened the motion, saying there was a general rule that criminal charges take precedence over civil matters.

A defence motion for no publicity in the hearing was accepted by the judge.

Kralt, who had remained at the camp after the close of the summer season, was reported missing Oct. 31. His car was found in November at Nanaimo, and a rifle was discovered in Nanaimo Harbor.

Stewart was arrested in November at San Francisco and charged with possession of stolen goods. Appearing in Port Alberni on that charge Nov, 30, he was remanded for 30 days' psychiatric examination. He was charged with non-capital murder Dec. 9 and remanded in custody.

Vandals Enter Schools

DUNCAN — Four schools and a furniture store were broken into Sunday and early Monday, and vandals damaged three of the schools.

Damage at Alexandar and Somenos elementary schools and Quamichan junior high was confined mainly to broken glass, school district maintenance superintendent George Routley said Monday. Classroom supplies were scattered at Somenos School.

Books were strewn around the Alexander library, and film strips were removed from casettes.

Portelance Wins Gold

BURNABY — Eleven-year-old Doug Portelance of Colwood's Juan de Fuca Cohos Swim Club splashed home in one minute, 15.9 seconds to win the gold medal in the 100-metre backstroke in the Pacific Centennial Invitational swim meet at Simon Fraser University pool Sunday.

Competing in the boys 11 and 12 years age group, Portelance also placed fifth in the 200-metre freestyle event.

Other Coho swimmers in the finals were Chris Price, who finished fifth in the 100-metre butterfly event for boys 13 and 14; Dan Vosper, who placed fifth in the 100-metre backstroke for boys 13 and 14, and Dale Long, who was sixth in the backstroke.

City Juniors Top Seattle Shuttle Play

SEATTLE — Evan Jones of the Racquet Club of Victoria defeated Seattle's Jess Wilcoxen, 18-13, 11-15, 15-5 to win the boys' 15and-under singles title in the Washington State junior badminton championships Sunday

Jones then joined James McKenzie, also of the Racquet Club, to take the doubles crown, defeating Wilcoxon and Ron Mylberg of Seattle in the final.

The boys' 13-and-under singles final was an all-Victoria affair with Angus Izard coming from behind for a 10-15, 15-12, 15-4 win over Don Woodland in the final.

Hardy Annuals

There are very few plants in our gardens which provide so much color and beauty for so little money as the hardy annuals. A few packets of seeds costing only pennies can keep your garden ablaze with color throughout the summer and fall and provide plenty of cut flowers for the house to boot.

While a greenhouse or a cold frame can be quite a help in getting flower seeds off to an early start, actually these aids are not really necessary for the kinds marked H.A. in the seed catalogues. These plants need no coddling and you can have highly satisfactory displays simply by sowing your seeds in the open after the soil warms up in the spring.

The instructions on the seed packets usually tell you to sow the seeds directly on the site where the flowers are to bloom. Personally, I prefer to raise my plants in a small separate seed bed, sowing the seeds in rows, thinning them out in due course and finally transplanting them to their flowering positions.

The hardy annuals are not at all fastidious as to soil; they need no rich manuring or fertilizing — in fact, they bloom somewhat more profusely, as a rule, on poorish soil. However, they DO demand lots of sunshine, and the texture of the soil should be loose as tiny seedlings cannot push through a surface which has become caked and encrusted. An easy way to achieve this texture is to mix damp peat moss plentifully with the top two inches of soil.

Because of our summer dry spells, I like to grow all my row crops — both flowers and vegetables — in shallow trenches. This makes it easier and less wasteful of water when I irrigate them with the hose.

However, when you grow hardy annuals from seed, the plants are usually transplanted out of the seed bed long before the dry weather arrives, and the problem in the spring, when the seeds are germinating, is often too much rather than too little rain. For this reason, I like to make my nursery seed bed a little higher than the surrounding soil, so there is no danger of it becoming heavy and sodden and covered with puddles while the flower seedlings are still babies.

You don't need a big seed bed for this job — you can raise a surprising number of annual bedding plants in a plot not much bigger than your dinner table. Moreover, you can keep your little raised nursery bed working all through the growing season, starting perennials from seeds during the summer and rooting slips under jam jars.

Two things are important in preparing the seed bed; it must be firm and it must be level, so there will be no hollows or depressions to catch and hold rain and drown the seedlings. This is accomplished by raking and treading, alternately and over and over again until the top of the bed is like a billiard table. With this accomplished, make your furrows and go ahead with the sowing of your seeds.

To get my flower seeds off to a good start, I like to wet down the seed furrows with a weak fertilizer solution. This is made with one tablespoonful of any high-test liquid or powdered fertilizer per gallon of water. Some good ones are Alginure Liquid Seaweed, Blue Whale, Alaska Fish, RX-15, Instant Vigoro, Liqui-Life and Hyponex.

When this "planter's punch" has drained away, sow the seeds — very thinly — and cover lightly with fine soil or soarse sand. Tamp down the covering with the back of the rake and mark each sowing with a neat plant label.

WASHINGTON — Science is now fiddling with animal possible through deep freeze sperm banks. It is already possible through deep freeze methods to save the reproductive ingredients of a great bull for several years, and then, by artificial insemination to produce a calf whose father may have long gone on to the great cow pasture in the sky.

Lucky Kavaler in The New York Times has suggested that if there are now banks for animals, we should start thinking in terms of human beings. She suggests that the reproductive cells of great men could be frozen and banked for future generations.

Miss Kavaler foresees a time, in the not-too-distant future, when a man and wife would be able to go down to their local testtube bank and select the child of their dreams.

So do we.

It is the year 2001 and a couple walks into the First National Test Tube Bank of New York. They are ushered into an ice box where the vice-president, bundled up in a sheepskin coat, asks them to state their business.

The wife says, "I would like either another Arthur Rubinstein or a Jasha Heifetz."

"But," says the husband, "he should be able to throw a football like Joe Namath."

The vice-president says, "We're all out of Arthur Rubinsteins, Jasha Heifitzs and Joe Namaths. The last of them went in 1996. Could I interest you in a Norman Mailer or an Erich Segal?"

The husband said, "If you don't have a Joe Namath, what about a good linebacker?"

The wife says, "I want my son to be a professional man. Maybe a doctor. You don't have a Jonas Salk sample around, do you?"

"No, I'm sorry," the vice-president replies. "The last genes of Jonas Salk went in 1987."

"I tell you what," said the husband. "If you have a good golfer like Arnold Palmer we'll take it."

"Not so fast," the wife says. "Golfers are a dime a dozen. I would like perhaps a little artistic genius. Maybe a Pablo Picasso or a Chagall."

"Wait a minute," the husband says. "The Martons got a Picasso 20 years ago, but instead of him painting pictures, he became a Communist and got married three times."

"Well," said the vice-president, "there is no guarantee that your offspring will not inherit all the characteristics of the person you choose."

"Don't I know it," the wife says. "The Kaisers had a Dr. Edward Teller offspring and he married a daughter who came from a General Patton strain, and now all they want to do is make war instead of love."

The vice-president studies a list. "Would you consider a politician for a son? We're having a sale on John Lindsay."

"Not on your life," the husband says. "Anyone who wants his son to be mayor of New York has to be crazy."

"I wouldn't be adverse to an Onassis-type child," the wife says. "At least we wouldn't have to worry about security in our old age."

The vice-president said:

★ ★ ★

The husband says, "Maybe we should try for a basketball player."

The wife said angrily, "I'm not going to produce a seven-foot giant just so you can go to Madison Square Garden three nights a week."

The vice-president says, "You people are going to have to make up your minds."

Sydney Harris
Morons Like Noise

One of the grossest miscarriages of justice occurred on Christmas Day in an Idaho town, when a woman was fined in court for turning off the radio with a pistol.

The woman told the judge that her husband was playing the radio too loudly on Christmas Eve. When he refused to turn it down, she took the family pistol and fired it, cutting the cord.

Her husband had her arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct, but it seems to me that the judge should have locked up the husband as well — for disturbance of the peace and incitement to riot.

One of the surest indications of a moronic mind and a bestial disposition is the stolid ability to endure (even to enjoy) loud noises, especially when they emanate from a radio or television set.

And each year, we are becoming more inured to such noises — until we may eventually reach the point where we cannot dispense with them as background for our intellectual vacuity. School-children already find it difficult to "study" without a rock group blasting out a stupefying decibels.

More and more restaurants, offices, and even building elevators have installed those hideous canned-music programs; airplanes have the same, while waiting for take-off or approaching landing, as if people couldn't stand the "sound of silence" with nothing going on.

I once complained to a restaurant hostess that the canned music was blaring too loudly to conduct a quiet conversation; she stared back at me uncomprehendingly and asked, "What music?" Apparently, after a time, she scarcely heard it at all — but if it were removed, she would feel a deathly silence that might make room for her own thoughts, God forbid.

(Remember the story of the lighthouse keeper, who slept peacefully every night while the machinery hummed away? And one night there was a break in the circuit and the humming stopped; he leapt out of bed and cried "What was that?")

The ear is a precious and delicate mechanism, naturally attuned to concordant beauties and subtleties of sound. Our commercial cupidity is ruining this sensitive instrument as surely as if we poured hot lye over a magnificent pipe organ.

Accoustics has its own law of diminishing returns. Once accustomed to loudness, we require more and more volume to attract our atetntion. And the whisper of the mind is obliterated by the cacophony of noise.

MARILYN BECK

If you can't make it with the new ones, try to remake it with the old ones, studios are beginning to feel. Warner Brothers has rereleased My Fair Lady. And I get word that 20th Century-Fox will probably be reissuing Sound of Music in November. Fox had originally planned to hold Sound of Music off the market for five years, but it looks as if the pressing need for money at that studio — whether the talked-about merger with MGM comes about or not — will push up the rerelease by a year. Which means 1971 might turn out to be another big Julie Andrews year. George Schaefer's Compas Productions wants her to star with David Niven in Quiet Weekend? described by Schaefer as a romantic comedy with a modern-day setting.

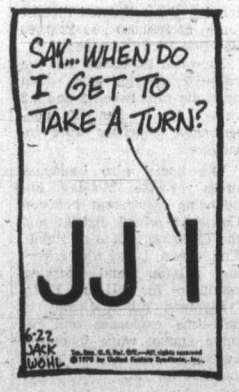

★ ★ ★

Producer Roy Huggins has decided they're going to soft-pedal that aspect of Alias Smith and Jones which speaks of a one-year amnesty for the bad guy heroes turned good guys. Roy learned his lesson regarding time limits when he helmed Run for Your Life. "We told the audience that Ben Gazarra had only two years to live," recalls Roy, "and the third year rating fell drastically. The public can't be fooled. We got scores of letters saying the series had lost its credibility." Huggins isn't worried because Don Murphy, lead of his new ABC series, is such a Paul Newman look-alike. "They used to tell Paul Newman he'd never make it to stardom because he looked too much like Marlon Brando. It hasn't hurt Newman and it won't hurt Murphy, either."

As soon as Ali Magraw has fully recuperated from the birth of son Joshua, who arrived January 16, expect her and husband Bob Evans to take a much-needed rest. These past few months have been something else again for the Evanses. Bob's prexy of Paramount, and that studio's Love Story has been the run-away hit of the season. Ali, star of the film, is feeling well and strong again now, but it was only last month, following Love Story's Manhattan debut, that she was hospitalized with complete exhaustion.

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Canada newest move star never took an acting lesson, uses no makeup, and has been playing the same role for so long she never has to rehearse. In terms of size, she's the country's biggest star. Her name is Vancouver, and right now, she's a city in great demand.

The one million local residents have known about her beauty for a long time, but movie-makers are just discovering how close an attractive foreign location can be to the sound stages of Hollywood.

They're impressed by Vancouver's good looks, the variety of locations at hand, the availability of good actors and technicians, and the savings involved in making movies north of the border.

The rush to get Vancouver on film started two years ago, when Sandy Dennis' movie, The Cold Day in the Park, was made here.

Last year, Jack Nicholson's Five Easy Pieces was filmed in part in nearby Victoria, on Vancouver Island.

Last fall, Mike Nichols (who directed The Graduate and Catch-22), came to town and made Carnal Knowledge with Candace Bergen, Nicholson, and Art Garfunkel.

Then came Robert Altman, (M.A.S.H. and Brewster McCloud), who built a little mining village just over the ridge from West Vancouver and filmed Tje Presbyterian Church Wager with Julie Christie and Warren Beatty. Both Knowledge and Wager have yet to be released.

Several other stars and directors are reported and rumored to be considering Vancouver as a location, among them Mick Jagger, Robert Culp, Katharine Hepburn, and director Bob Rafelson, who made Five Easy Pieces.

Currently filming in Vancouver is a two-hour made-for-TV movie titled The Cradle of Hercules.

Martin plays an updated Chan, complete with Number Eight son. Nielsen is the world's fifth wealthiest man, a Greek business magnate named Hadrachi. Chan is called in to investigate when a murder occurs on Hadrachi's luxurious yacht as it is cruising near Vancouver.

The $1-million production, planned to fit into the NBC network fall schedule, is also being considered as the pilot for a series.

But why Vancouver for a Charlie Chan movie? Why Vancouver for any movie?

Well, according to Daryl Duke, director of The Cradle of Hercules, there are several reasons.

★ ★ ★

One is the "Yacht." Duke is using the Canadian National cruise ship Ss Prince George, which spends its summers cruising between Vancouver and Alaska and most of its winters in idleness. It's considered the best shipboard location available on the West Coast, with ballrooms, staterooms, dining rooms, and just about anything a millionaire's yacht needs.

Another reason for coming to Vancouver is its relative newness in movies.

Duke, a Vancouverite himself (he splits his time between his home town and Hollywood) said during a break in filming that "the locations here — almost every location you need — are fresh, they haven't been overshot. We have the locations here, the people here, and the ship is here, too," he said.

Duke is one of the people. He began directing television in Vancouver, moved to Toronto, and wound up in Hollywood, where he has done shows for The Senator segment in The Bold Ones, The Name of the Game, and the Canadian series The Manipulators, in which he directed a bared-breast scene that drew a great deal of reaction from Canadian viewers.

Other shows to his credit have been episodes of three Canadian series — Wojeck, Corwin, and Quentin Durgens — and shows featuring Steve Allen and Les Crane in the United States.

"This is never going to be another Hollywood," Duke said. "But you can figure that Vancouver is a good location for three, four, five films a year." The tall, bearded, director added that "the crews here are very good."

About 50 per cent of the approximately 100 actors and crew involved in filming The Cradle of Hercules are local talent, he said.

★ ★ ★

He noted the cost of labor — slightly cheaper than in Hollywood — is a factor in Vancouver's growing popularity. With Canadian talent slightly less expensive than their American counterparts, the saving on a $1 million budget can be substantial.

Of course, the same is true (sometimes more so) in European locations, but, Duke pointed out, "it's obviously easier to come here. It's an English-speaking country, the money is the same, crews are trained in American methods, and it's close."

With them, the film-makers bring jobs, money (rental of the Prince George, which would otherwise have been idle, is alone worth about $20,000 to CN), and some measure of fame for Vancouver.

Duke said city police, civic officials, and officials at Vancouver International Airport (another location) were giving him "great co-operation."

★ ★ ★

Vancouver, a noted beauty but never Canada's most modest city, was always aware of film-making. The difference is that now, film-makers are becoming aware of Vancouver.

Fresh, bright scenery

Hungarian Pianist at Royal

Mozart Never Crisper

By BILL THOMAS

Hungarian pianist Bela Siki is a man of great talent and personal musical conviction. He offered the concerti No. 3 of Bartok and Mozart's D major for Victoria audiences Sunday and Monday at the Royal Theatre.

He produced an exciting and stimulating evening, and at the same time perplexed some members of his audience. At no time could it be said that Siki so much as impinged on romanticism.

His Mozart was crisp, clean and completely classical in concept. It was, in fact, so classical that there were moments when it might have been said that it impinged upon the surgical.

His style and attack are totally devoid of any elements of romanticism. Siki plays a cerebral, austere Mozart in a manner that is so personal it may sacrifice something in listener participation and communication.

Musical director Laszlo Gati coaxed a crisp, clear sound from the orchestra that complemented Siki's mood and interpretation. It was very precise, and almost spotlessly clean. In fact, the whole work was characterized by technical brilliance.

The question still being debated is did the audience really get the message? It was a very formal presentation which somehow or rather failed to pinpoint anything of the warmth that more romantic interpreters of the composer develop.

Yet, when Siki turned to the Bartok Piano Concerto No. 3 the audience responded readily.

This work, composed in 1945, is easy to listen to and has a delightfully varied texture that calls for a truly virtuoso performance. Siki played it brilliantly. He captured the folk theme elements, the barbaric quality, and also the love of nature that is so inherent in Bartok.

It was a happy balance between orchestra and soloist. At the conclusion of the dramatic finale Siki was called back four times. It was quite apparent that the two-way communication that had not been completely successful in the Mozart was a resounding triumph in the Bartok.

His performance has already aroused interest in how he will treat the recital program at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday in the McPherson Playhouse, when he explores the piano literature of Bach, Chopin, Ravel, and Beethoven's Waldstein sonata.

His stylistic range in the Mozart and the Bartok lead to wide speculation on how he may handle this music.

Gati chose two divergent, but equally interesting, orchestral pieces to complete the program. He opened with the Picasso Suite by Canadian composer Harry Somers, and closed with Zoltan Kodaly's Peacock Variations.

The Picasso Suite, like many modern compositions, was quite demanding, and Winifred Scott was outstanding on both the piano and electric piano. Like so many contemporary works it really deserves more than one hearing.

The closing orchestral work of the evening — the Peacock Variations of Kodaly — was heard here two years ago, and the significant fact is the second performance served to show how the orchestra has advanced.

This was a concert for thinking and study and reflection, rather than simple relaxed enjoyment. It is almost as if Gati had said to himself, "It's time we made them sit up and think a bit."

I have no idea if this throught ever crossed his mind, but if it did he succeeded, possibly beyond his own imagining.

It was a disturbing, evocative, and yet stimulating musical experience.

London Philharmonic

Singer Realizes Lifelong Dream

LONDON (UPI) — Singer Tony Bennett Sunday night realized what he said was his lifelong dream — to sing with the London Philharmonic at the Royal Albert Hall.

A capacity audience gave the 47-year-old singer a standing ovation following his one-hour performance, which included I Left My Heart in San Francisco, If I Ruled the World, and For Once in My Life.

Conducting the London Philharmonic was Canadian composer-arranger Robert Farnon, who first played a selection of his own works.

Bennett performed the concert free and all proceeds, including revenue from a television recording of the show, will go to the London Philharmonic.

Bikes Earn Own Streets

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — So many people here are abandoning their automobiles to commute on bicycles that the city plans to designate certain streets as bike routes.

The trial plan is intended "both to encourage bike commuters and to warn motorists to drive with extra caution," said Edward McDevitt, superintendent of parks.

UV Article Points Out Facilities

Waste Recycling Here

Waste recycling facilities already available in the Greater Victoria area are the subject of an article in the current issue of Environment Tomorrow, the publication of the University of Victoria biology club, now at the printers.

The article, written by Mrs. Barbara Corry, a UVic graduate student, points out there is far more of this type of facility in the area than most people realize.

Other authors in this second issue of the quarterly publication include Christian de Laet, secretary-general of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers; Dr. Roderick Haig-Brown, judge, author, conservationists and UVic chancellor; and Ron Upward, city water manager.

Upward's article, which takes the form of a letter to the editor, explains his reasons for the stand he originally took in refusing to release water to assist salmon trying to spawn in Goldstream last fall.

Upward's reply is counterbalanced by an article from a UVic geography student suggesting other priorities for the use of water.

The magazine, edited by Dr. Robert Reid of the biology department, grew out of original plans to publish proceedings of the teach-in, although other contributions and letters to the editor are included.

Mrs. Betsy Sweeny, who assists Reid with Environment Tomorrow, said 2,000 copies which will be available by the start of next week, will be printed.

★ ★ ★

"With our first issue we sent complimentary copies to all the federal MPs, all the provincial MLAs and all local aldermen, but only about half a dozen subscribed," Mrs. Sweeny said.

"It's just interesting that we've been getting such a response from all round the world, with subscriptions from South America and Australia, while the local people we're aiming at aren't interested," she said.

Environment Plan Praised

Hugh Stephen, former Victoria mayor, said Monday that he wished the type of information that will be provided by Environment 100 had been available when he was mayor.

Stephen told members of the Pioneer Toastmasters Club during an open discussion on environmental control that it had been difficult to obtain a balanced viewpoint when considering the topic of sewage disposal because experts' opinions had ranged from one extreme to the other.

A strong supporter of Environment 100, which is attempting to establish an environmental information centre in the Capital Region, the former mayor described how such centres have already been founded in various American cities.

School Bands Combine

Impressive Parts In Student Show

By BERT BINNY

The bands of Colquitz junior and Mount View senior high schools combined to provide a concert at the McPherson Playhouse Sunday afternoon.

Colquitz occupied the first half of the program and the extent to which their performance improved as it progressed was notable; a not unusual phenomenon probably easily explained on the basis of ordinary stage fright.

Unity of purpose is, of course, one thing while unity of effort is another and the second is the far harder to achieve. In performances employing a number of artists — there were over 50 in the Colquitz band — disunity of effort shows up in such matters as attacks and releases, strict adherence to tempo and so on.

★ ★ ★

The Colquitz performers were particularly impressive with Canadian Sunset; selected marches, Sentry Boy and Officer of the Day, came over well; but the Concert Overture seemed a bit ambitious.

The Mount View band was slightly smaller in number but, naturally, larger in years and experience and this showed up in unity and cohesion.

★ ★ ★

They offered items in both classical and popular styles; from a Military Symphony in F, via Black Is the Color of My True Love's Hair, to folk rock.

Playing a sequence of Scottish airs, they encountered precisely the same difficulty as Colquitz had done in Wales. The bridges connecting the airs presented distinct problems.

★ ★ ★

The Military Symphony, incidentally, was a highlight of their program and they romped through Alla Barocco, a folk rock tune rapidly becoming popular at affairs like this.

The conductor of both bands was Robert Whittet with Phil Fawcett as emcee.

Soloists with the Colquitz band were trumpeter Dennis Daviault, clarinettist Denise Franklin and alto sax player, Dave Richardson.

Another clarinettist, Elaine Archibald, and three unidentified flutists received special mention with Mount View as did both percussion sections.

Two more band concerts are scheduled at the McPherson this month: the Victoria City Police Youth Band, 7:30 p.m., Feb. 21, and Arbutus junior and Mount Douglas senior high schools, 2:30 p.m., Feb. 28.

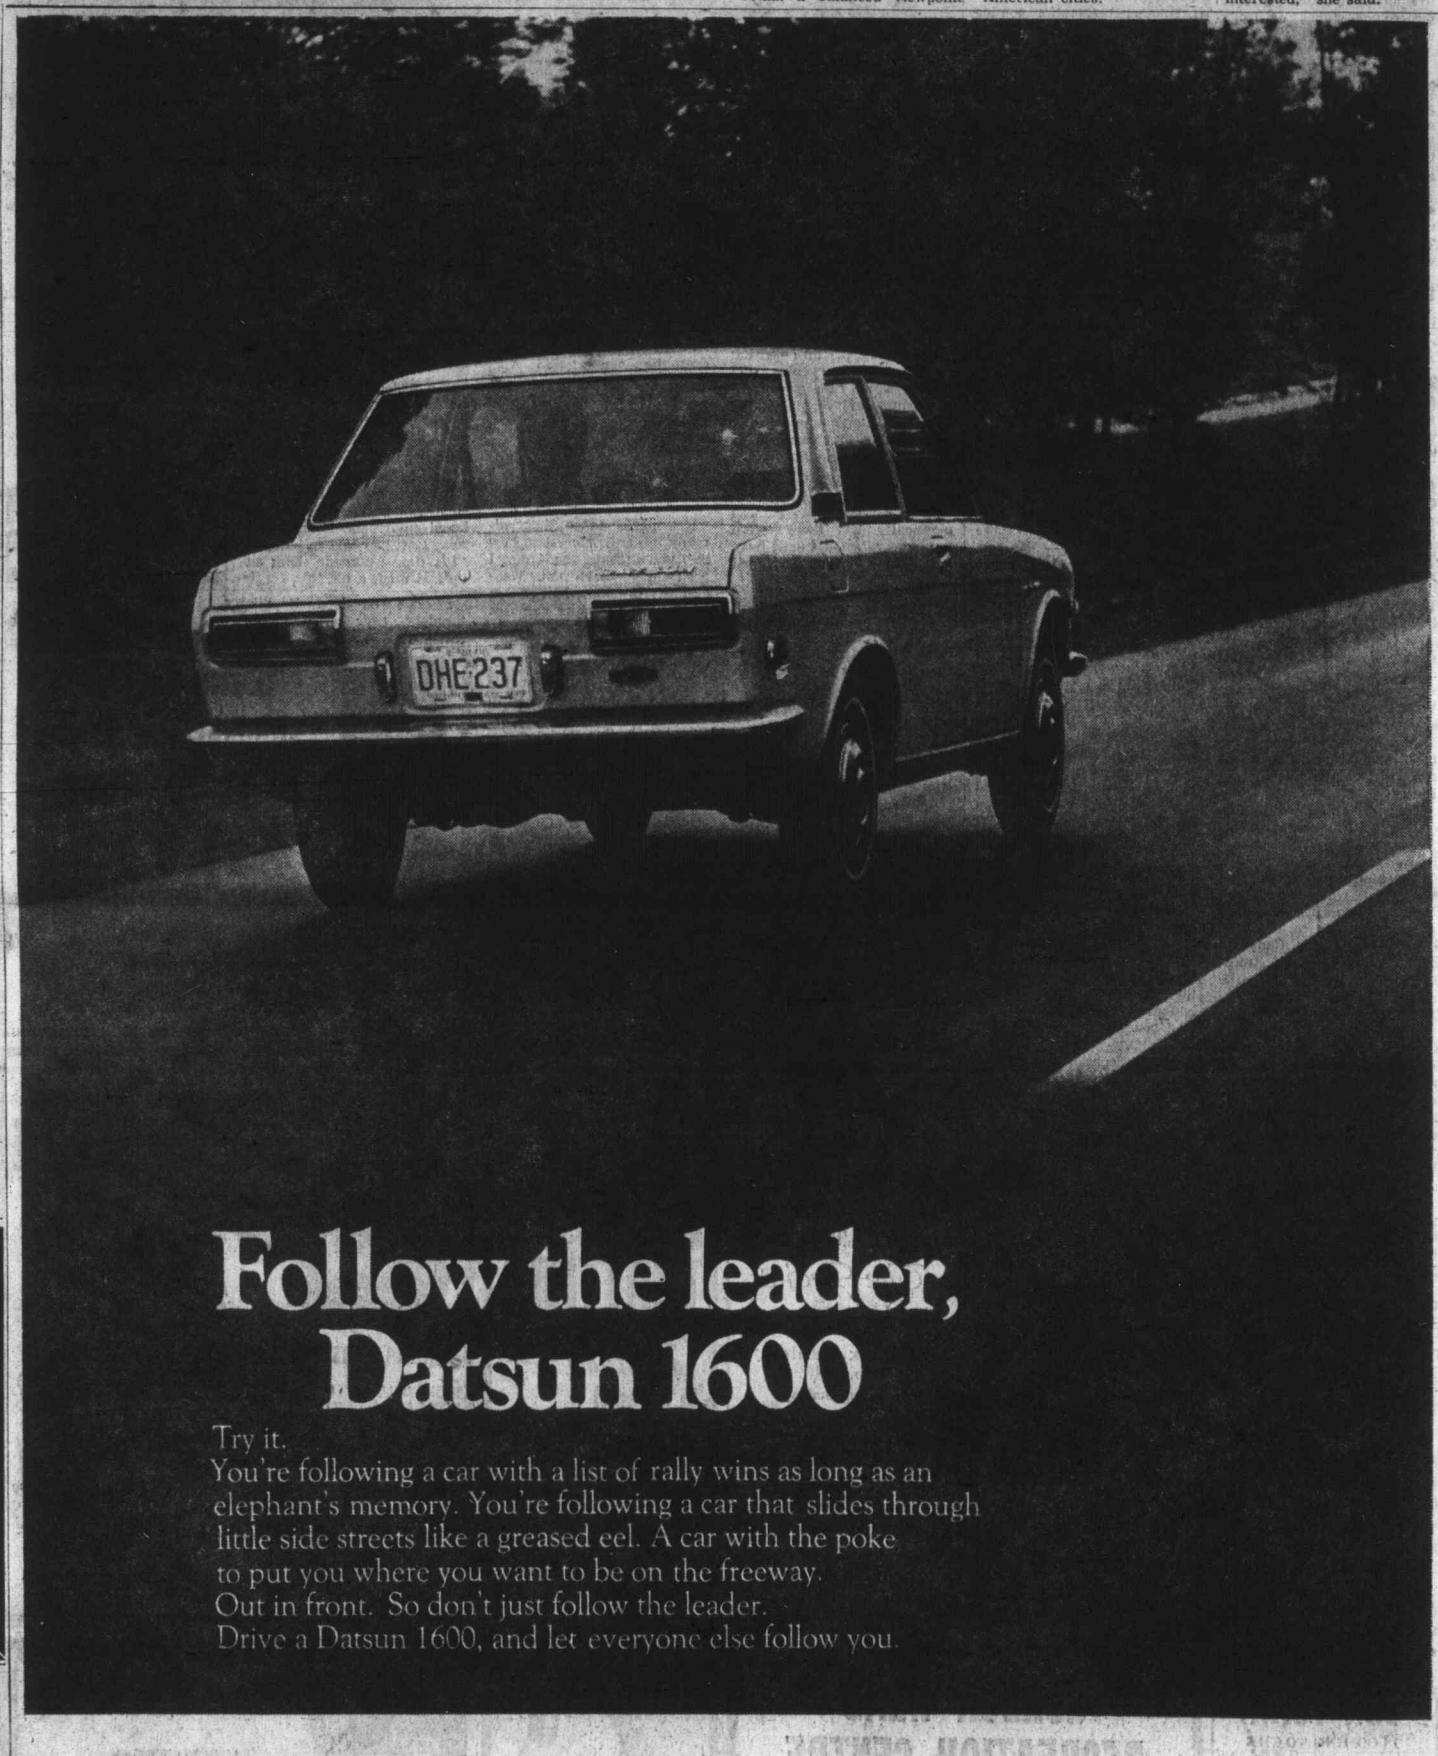

Sprinkler Floods Bay Floor

An estimated 100 square feet of floor in the sporting goods department of The Bay was flooded to a depth of about one inch Sunday after the top blew off an automatic sprinkler.

Damage was estimated unofficially at a few hundred dollars. Store manager George Kosich said the cause of the trouble still was being investigated. Four maintenance men worked all Sunday afternoon in a mopping-up operation, he said.

Follow the leader, Datsun 1600

You're following a car with a list of rally wins as long as an elephant's memory. You're following a car that slides through little side streets like a greased eel. A car with the poke to put you where you want to be on the freeway. Out in front. So don't just follow the leader. Drive a Datsun 1600, and let everyone else follow you.

Here's what you see from the inside: Everything. You've got fantastic all-round visibility. Plus a list of extras that don't cost extra: Contoured bucket seats (reclining in four-door sedan and wagon). Flow through ventilation. Tinted glass. 3-speed heater/defroster. Collapsible safety steering column. Headrests, harnesses and a padded dash all wrapped up in a solid unit body construction for your own safety and protection. Take your pick of 3-speed automatic or all-synchro 4-on-the-floor.

Here's what you get on the outside: Front disc brakes that stop you straight and sure. All-independent suspension that irons out the roughest road. Smart styling, in two doors, four doors or a wagon and a range of colours that may just make it the most visible car on the road.

Here's what you see under the hood: A 1600 cc 96 hp. 5-main-bearing overhead camshaft engine that's designed for 100,000 mile reliability and squeezes up to 35 miles from a gallon of gas. Dual barrel carb. Alternator. Independent light fuse system.

Here's where you can see it: At any of 250 Datsun dealers all across Canada. Any one of them will be happy to arrange a test-drive. Datsun 1600. It's a tough act to follow.

Public Mood in Texas 'Nasty'

From UPI, [illegible]T

DALLAS — Texas, home of Billie Sol Estes and the state where people used to drill wells crooked so they could steal other folks' oil, is in the scandal business again. This time the state has gone to the top.

Two weeks ago a representative of the Securities and Exchange Commission had some assistants carry boxes and boxes of papers into the federal courthouse in Dallas.

He then quietly filed a suit in the court of U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, the grandmotherly lady who swore in President Lyndon B. Johnson aboard Air Force One the afternoon of President John. F. Kennedy's assassination.

In the 14 days that have passed that suit has caused a federal grand jury to indict one man for perjury, created the first bank failure in Houston since Texas' banking laws were established 66 years ago and put two insurance firms in the hands of the state government.

Most of all, however, it has sent a wave of distrust across the state. And much of it is aimed at high state officials — Governor Preston Smith included. The public mood is nasty.

"They want to hang somebody, and they don't know who," said state Rep. Joe Bernal, a Democrat from San Antonio. "They think the government is getting rich off the public."

No state official has been charged in court with any wrongdoing.

The public's reaction comes from testimony taken by the SEC in its investigation which led to the suit. The suit, now only a minor issue in the case, seeks to stop a group of people and companies from

Strike Continues

Bus Drivers Reject Offer

By DON COLLINS

The "young militants" won the day Monday and the Victoria - Vancouver transit strike continues.

Soon after the strikers had voted a mere 51.6 per cent rejection of a contract recommended by their own leaders, provincial Labor Minister Leslie Peterson told the Colonist:

"I will be discussing the strike with the cabinet tomorrow morning (Tuesday) and I will be making certain recommendations."

He said he could not elaborate because the recommendations would have to be heard first by the cabinet, then by the Legislature.

* * *

Under terms of the controversial B.C. Mediation Act (Bill 33) cabinet could order compulsory arbitration and send the 1,800 bus drivers and mechanics in Victoria and Vancouver back to work.

Sources within the Amalgamated Transit Union told the Colonist they feel the vote was influenced considerably by a group they described variously as "young militants," a "radical element" and an "activist bloc."

Some union officers were unable to hide their disappointment over the outcome of the vote.

The result means continuation of a strike that has idled B.C. Hydro's complete fleets of more than 600 buses and trolley coaches in Vancouver and Victoria since Jan. 4.

* * *

The latest offer was recommended by the union's negotiating committee after it had spent the better part of last week in talks with Hydro negotiators.

Highlights of the offer:

- A wage increase over 27 months of 14¾ per cent on top of the $3.75 an hour earned now by drivers and the $4.35 rate of mechanics.
- Improvement in travel time pay.
- More pay for working statutory holidays.

Originally, Hydro had offered 13 per cent over two years. The union sought 20 per cent. The B.C. Mediation Commission, after hearings

Foes in House Lash Trudeau

• Journey 'Worth Effort'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commonwealth conference in Singapore was well worth the effort if it helped avert a general racial war in Africa, Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday.

Trudeau, who once described the Commonwealth as an anachronism, appeared to return from the recent conference with a higher opinion of the association.

The prime minister, who returned to Canada Friday, told the Commons Canada might survive without the Commonwealth, "but not nearly so well."

* * *

He was relieved that the conference had sent the contentious issue of arms sales to South Africa to a committee for consideration.

He was also pleased that a Canadian amendment to the declaration of Commonwealth principles had been unanimously accepted.

"Wherever I went, I am happy and proud to report that the name of Canada was held in warm and sincere respect," Trudeau said, praising Canadians abroad and government policy over the years for accumulating for Canada "an enviable reputation."

* * *

"This high national reputation places upon our country a special obligation to conduct our affairs both internally and externally in keeping with the desire of all men to live in a world which contributes to

Colonist Bureau

OTTAWA — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, in a harder-hitting mood than he has ever shown before in his three years in the commons, has given Prime Minister Trudeau a rough parliamentary "welcome home" from the Commonwealth conference at Singapore.

The tough-talking opposition leader, from the moment he began speaking Monday in the House, ridiculed the prime minister, making caustic comment about Trudeau's leisure-hour "swinging," as he described it, at the conference.

And then he read him a sharp-worded "message" that the time for "frivolity" abroad was over and that it was long past time for "concerted action" to solve urgently "pressing problems" here at home.

* * *

Cuttingly critical too of the returning prime minister were both New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas and J. A. H. Lambert, Creditiste MP for Bellechasse.

It all came at the prime minister in response to the brief, quiet, low-key report he made on his Commonwealth mission.

In essence, he said he had discovered that "Canada could live without the Commonwealth, but not nearly so well."

* * *

And if he and the Canadian delegation had "reduced the chances" of future racial war in Africa and contributed "to the success of the conference" by defusing, to some extent, the potentially explosive issue of British arms sales to South Africa, then he felt their efforts had been "well expended."

Stanfield gave the prime minister some marks, even "congratulations" for the part he felt Trudeau had "played in preventing a Commonwealth break-up at this time."

But that was just about the only kind or even soft word the opposition leader had for the prime minister.

* * *

With no suggestion of a smile that might have been a signal that perhaps he was kidding, Stanfield referred to the prime minister's "behavior," as he termed, it with Joan the orangoutang which pulled at Trudeau's shorts, and recalled Douglas later, did some "smooching" with him.

This might be seen as "frivilous" conduct, suggested Stanfield, but he didn't see it that way, well knowing of the prime minister's "abiding affection for wildlife."

And he was prepared to

• Jobless: Trudeau Optimistic

OTTAWA (CP) — The seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate has likely reached its peak and will start declining substantially over the next few months, Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday.

Trudeau refused to entertain suggestions that the government adopt new emergency measures to produce more jobs.

* * *

Trudeau said the opposition parties should not expect new measures to be announced every week or so. The government had acted to stimulate the economy last March and again in June, September and December.

These measures now were taking effect and unemployment would improve "as time goes by."

* * *

December figures showed a seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate of 6.6 per cent. The figures represent 538,000 out of work.

Trudeau told the Commons absolute numbers would likely increase through January and February but the rate, when seasonal factors are taken into account, would likely fall below 6.6.

Huge Lockout Threatened

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — The government Monday threatened its employees with a "massive lockout" if their unions go ahead with enlarged strike actions later this week.

About 2,500 government employees went on strike Monday to press for higher wages. As many as 50,000 employees could be involved in the lockout.

'Canadian' Stays CPR Ordered

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission ordered the Canadian Pacific Railway Monday to continue daily operation, year-round, of its transcontinental passenger train, The Canadian.

But it said the railway should put sleeping and dining car services on a paying basis or drop them. Subsidies for dining car losses will be ended next year and those for sleeping car losses shortly after.

For long-term policy, meanwhile, the ruling proposes the "rationalization" of the money-losing transcontinental services of both CP Rail and Canadian National Railways, the Crown-owned line.

The commission intends to undertake a comprehensive study of both services as soon as CN can calculate the losses of its Super-Continental. The aim will be to develop one basic passenger service healthy enough to justify continuing subsidies from the federal government.

* * *

The ruling, signed by commission president J. W. Pickersgill, brought an immediate, angry reaction from spokesmen for unions which have been fighting any reduction in services offered to rail travellers.

"The commison has done a magnificent job of setting the stage to foist the obligation to provide passenger service entirely on to the back of the taxpayer through the Crown-owned corporation," stated an official of the United Transport Union.

The transport commission's ruling follows its decision last June to reject an application by CP Rail to scrap The Canadian.

The railway stated the Montreal - Vancouver service lost $15.1 million in 1968.

West Berlin Recuperates

BERLIN (AP) — Traffic on West Berlin access ways returned to normal Monday but six days of East German harassment left heavy economic losses in its wake.

Apollo Locked On Target After 'Burn'

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI) — Three U.S. space pilots outdistanced their mysterious troubles Tuesday and closed in on a Friday moon landing that would put the Apollo program back on the track.

They took dead aim on an ancient lunar valley late Monday with a 10-second blast of their big rocket engine that denied them a guaranteed free-return home if anything went wrong.

"That was a mighty good burn there," said Stuart A. Roosa, 37, who will have to fly the Kitty Hawk command ship alone in lunar orbit while his companions go in search of moon rocks up to five billion years old.

* * *

Alan B. Shepard, at 47, the oldest astronaut, and his rookie companion Edgar D. Mitchell, hope to spend up to 33 hours on the moon and take two moonwalks of up to five hours each.

Before their course change, they would have looped 2,335 miles behind the moon and headed back on a safe course for Earth had anything gone wrong. But now, they will skim far closer to the moon and must trigger another burst of rocket power to get themselves safely home.

The course change was necessary so the astronauts will arrive at the moon at the right time and at the right altitude to reach their desired landing spot. It is an ancient lunar valley where Apollo 13 was headed before a near disastrous oxygen tank blast sent its crew scurrying home for safety.

* * *

It appeared for many hours Monday the Apollo 14 landing also would be scrubbed because of difficulty with some docking latches. But the problem disappeared as mysteriously as it popped up.

Rhe astronauts worked on the problem for nearly 12 hours before asking Houston control if they could get some sleep.

By the time they awoke ground controllers had decided that the problem, whatever it was, had disappeared.

Covered Links Reopened

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The Canadian Pacific Railway main line through the Rocky Mountains was cleared at 9:15 p.m. MST Monday about five hours after an avalanche blocked the line and the Trans-Canada Highway.

The highway was re-opened to one-way traffic at 10:25 p.m. and two-way traffic was expected to be restored shortly after midnight.

* * *

Parks department employees set the slide off in Yoho National Park Monday afternoon with 12 pounds of explosive dropped from a helicopter when it was feared "the slightest vibration from a truck would set it off."

The slide was the latest in a series that has plugged several highways in the Banff region. The Banff-Jasper Highway and Highway 93 linking Radium Hot Springs, B.C. and the Trans-Canada Highway are closed until further notice.

* * *

Rivers Falling

Richardson Subsidiary Must Pay $1.25 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — The Exchequer Court of Canada has ordered Richardson Terminals Ltd. of Winnipeg — a subsidiary of James Richardson and Sons Ltd. of Winnipeg — to pay back taxes of almost $1.25 million on profits transferred to an associated firm from 1963 to 1967.

Involved in the case were "an interwoven family group of companies" controlled by James Richardson and Sons, owned at the time by James A. Richardson, his brother George and their sisters.

House Normal Again— Crowds, Smiles, Snarls

OTTAWA (CP) — While Prime Minister Trudeau was in Asia — ever since the House resumed after the Christmas recess — the chamber never seemed its usual self.

The daily question period tended to drag. There didn't appear to be an excessive dose of either smiles or snarls, and even the occasional attempt at humor seemed flat.

Then Trudeau returned to the Commons Monday. The officials' gallery was packed, and so was the gallery reserved for senators and their friends. There was standing room only in the press gallery.

Liberal back-benchers couldn't wait to pound their desks with enthusiasm when Trudeau stood up to give a report on his travels.

When Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield rose a few minutes later, his followers tried to outdo the Liberals. Then the New Democrats had a turn when their leader, T. C. Douglas, got to his feet.

Seven-Month Revolt Tapers Off in Italy

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (LAT) — The first trains in 10 days rolled in and out of this strife-torn city Monday amid signs that its seven-month revolt may be tapering off.

Bank clerks also voted to return to work as a climate of exhaustion and revulsion to further violence set in after 15 bomb explosions over the weekend.

And in Rome, compromise appeared to be taking shape in the government's decision to name the rival town of Catanaro capital of a new administrative region. It was this that touched off the revolt.

The end seemed approaching Sunday as parishioners emerged from mid-morning mass to find three motorized military and police patrols at the alert along the garbage-littered main street.

"You must understand that Reggio has been the principal city of this region beginning 1,000 years before the birth of Jesus Christ — for 3,000 years," Fr. Giovanni Rongoni said.

"And Catanaro," Father Rongoni added disdainfully, "why, it has been a city for only 1,500 years."

BULLETIN

Curling

Moore, Mates Gain B.C. Final

NANAIMO — Gordie Moore and Dick Pick of the Victoria Curling Club, are two victories away from their second chance in three years at winning the Canadian senior men's curling championship.

Moore's rink, which also includes Gordon Hooey as vice-skip and Jack Smith at lead, won the Pacific Coast Curling Association championship on Sunday by scoring an 11-8, extra-end victory over clubmate Steve Hayhurst in the final game of the eight-rink double-knockout playoff.

TO KIMBERLEY

Moore, who was runnerup in the 1969 Canadian championship while calling the shots for Pick, then his vice-skip, Laurie Perlette and Joe Leibel, now takes his rink to Kimberley for a best-of-three final starting next Monday.

Sunday's match-up was the third for Moore and Hayhurst in the PCCA playoff and their fourth this season in playoff competition. Hayhurst, beaten only four times in playoff play, won only once against his clubmate.

That victory came in the "B" half of the modified playoff draw and made temporary amends for the 16-3 route suffered to Moore in the opening round of the PCCA final.

The win also put Hayhurst (Wayne Winkler, Roy Allan, Geoff Martin) into the "B" final, and another shot at Moore was gained Sunday morning through 10-5 romp over Blake Barker of Vancouver.

FORCED EXTRA END

Moore, winner of "A" event, appeared to have it cashed when he headed home with a three-rock edge but Hayhurst tied it up and appeared to be head for victory on the extra end until Hooey came up with a clutch shot off the button.

Hooey came around a covering rock to turn the end around by chipping shot rock

Among the seven disappointed rinks in the PCCA playoff was Don MacRae's Nanaimo Curling Club quartet which last year won the Canadian title. It found home ice no advantage and was eliminated in two draws.

Victoria Quartet Tops at Duncan

DUNCAN — Flora Martin of Victoria won the Colonist Trophy Sunday, defeating defending-champion Verle McKeown in an all-Victoria Curling Club final to take top honors in the annual women's bonspiel at the Duncan Curling Club.

Visiting rinks also took the next two events. Donna James of Port Alberni won the Looking Glass Beauty Salon event and Rita Karst won the Bing Wise Fuels event.

Duncan's lone victory came in the Dougan Bros. Logging event. It was won by Marg Harper, who thought for a while she might have to play daughters Glenda and Bonnie in the final. However, Phyllis Bird of Esquimalt defeated the student rink to become the other finalist.

Fraser Valley Decides Reps

CHILLIWACK — Rinks skipped by Tony Folk of Cloverdale, Jake Block of Abbotsford, Glen Walker of Haney and Chuck Kennedy of Surrey's Heather Club will represent the Fraser Valley zone in the Pacific Coast Curling Association men's final.

They made it in weekend playoffs which concluded Sunday and will face Mainland champions Lyall Dagg and Glen Pierce of Vancouver and Vancouver Island champions Gary Leibel of Victoria and Fred Duncan of Duncan in double-knockout competition which begins Friday at the Heather Club.

Kennedy (Willi Palendat, Sandy McKay, Bruce Bacon and Walker (Rick Pugh, Perc Munroe, Dennis Perry) had to battle back through "B" event. Kennedy bested Laurie Lavender by scoring three on the home end in the "B" semis while Walker knocked off Trev Fisher of New Westminster.

Cougars' Boss Assumes Added Duties as Coach

By JIM TANG

Eric Bishop, general manager of the Victoria Cougars and a member of the Calgary group which purchased the B.C. Junior Hockey League club last summer, announced at a Monday press conference that he has taken on the additional duties of coach.

He takes over from Ron Maxwell, former coach of the Brandon Wheat Kings of the Western Hockey League who was signed to a year's contract as manager and coach before the sale to the Calgary group.

Maxwell will continue with the Cougars until the end of his contract period as "assistant" to Bishop. No specific duties were spelled out other than that there could be some scouting trips for the deposed coach.

Along with the change in Maxwell's status came a more important role for Bob Reid, managing director of the Cougars when they were owned by a Victoria group and a member of the committee which recommended the hiring of Maxwell.

DUTIES SPELLED OUT

Reid, who has been director of player personnel for Bishop, had duties spelled out which would indicate he is assistant manager and assistant coach in fact if not in name.

Bishop said Reid would handle workouts whenever time permits and would probably handle the club from the bench on occasion.

"I wanted him to handle all the games from the bench but he wasn't able to do it," Bishop said.

ON BENCH WEDNESDAY

Bishop said that he would be in bench charge for Wednesday's game in New Westminster and here Saturday night when Vernon Essos come to town.

The change, while not unexpected, was still somewhat surprising because of the standing of the Victoria club. The Cougars have been out in front from the start, and now eight points ahead with 16 games left, actually gained slightly while in a recent slump, Vancouver picking up a game in hand.

It was soon made clear, however, that there were differences in the thinking of Bishop and Maxwell.

RECORD FINE BUT—

"I think the club should have done better," Bishop replied to a direct question. "The won and lost record is fine but I'm talking about performance on the ice."

By "performance on the ice" Bishop meant that he believed that too many members of his club were not giving their best and he made it clear that he held Maxwell to account for this.

"I have no beef with Ron and we've never had any words but I think that he has been too easy on them," Bishop said. "Certain players have taken advantage of his leniency."

REALLY SURPRISED

Asked to comment on the decision removing him as coach, Maxwell said that he was "really surprised."

"I felt I was doing a good job. We did go into a slump when we were nine points ahead but we are still eight points ahead and I felt we were out of our slump," he said.

Maxwell also praised his club, refusing to name any player he thought hadn't given him his best performance.

FINEST GROUP

"On and off the ice, I think this is the finest group of junior players I have been associated with," Maxwell said.

There was also a difference of opinion on the Cougars' position at centre ice. Maxwell allowed that he felt there was a problem on one line. Bishop said that "We are so bad at centre that it's pathetic" and announced that a number of players, including winger Bruce Cowick and defencemen Dale Pennock and Gerry Bond, would be tried at the pivot post.

VERY SORRY

Answering a question about his thoughts on the change, Reid replied that "I'm very sorry, I consider myself a friend of Ron's but I am Erie's assistant and I back him up on the decision he has made."

Bishop said that it wouldn't take him long to make a change if the Cougars didn't perform for him.

Asked what he would expect from another coach if he felt that he would have to remove himself, Bishop said that if the Cougars remain in the BCJHL he would want a patient teacher and go with a young club but that if the Cougars gained admittance to the WCHL he would seek "a qualified man."

Reminding that Maxwell had been hired before he became associated with the club, Bishop stressed that any future coach "will be my man."

For now it's "I will run the hockey club. Period."

University of Victoria Vikings and the UVic Vikettes both kept their hopes of reaching the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball playoffs alive Monday, with victories over University of Saskatchewan (Regina) Cougars and University of Alberta Pandas, respectively, at UVic gymnasium.

Vikings retained their hope by remaining within two points of fourth-place Winnipeg with a 94-62 win over the Cougars.

ALBERTA SWING

The Vikings leave on Friday for a three-game swing of Alberta to round out their WCIAA schedule, playing the University of Alberta Friday, the University of Calgary Saturday and the University of Lethbridge next Monday.

With a 53-50 victory over the Pandas in the first game of a two-game series, Vikettes strengthened their chance of making the playoffs considerably. The win moved Vikettes into a tie for third place with Manitoba Bisonettes, beaten Monday, 24-88, by the University of British Columbia Thunderettes in Vancouver.

In other men's games Monday, University of Manitoba Bisons beat University of Alberta Golden Bears, 100-76; and University of Winnipeg Wesmen defeated University of Lethbridge Chinooks, 87-56.

And in other women's league games, University of Saskatchewan downed University of Lethbridge, 75-54; and University of Calgary beat University of Saskatchewan (Regina), 53-43.

Leading 34-19 at half time, the Vikettes allowed Pandas to take control at the start of the second half and after only 10 minutes the visitors had tied the game, 40-40. However, Vikettes tightened up their play toward the end and squeezed out the three-point win.

Top scorer for the Vikettes was Yvonne Lettelier with 14 points and Lynn Hagglund got 11.

UVic Sailors Score Upset

Sailors from the University of Victoria pulled off a nautical upset Sunday by winning the Kitsilano Yacht Club Regatta in English Bay in the face of stiff opposition from host club University of British Columbia and teams from Washington and Oregon.

UVic sailing team skippers Bob Skinner, Louise Anstey and Rob Thompson and crews Grant Davis, Al Kenning and Trev Barnacle piloted their flying juniors to pile up the highest number of points in the series of races. Western Washington State College placed second and UBC was third.

It marked the first time the annual regatta had been won by any team but the strong UBC or Washington clubs.

GEORGE WEISS, long-time executive with New York Yankees and then New York Mets, and six players were voted into baseball's Hall of Fame Sunday by the veterans' committee. The players named were Jake Beckley, Rube Marquard, Harry Hooper, Joe Kelley, Chick Hafey and Dave Bancroft ... Brooks Robinson, outstanding player in the 1970 world series at third base and at bat, was named Monday winner of the 21st annual Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year Award ... Terry Sawchuk, whose death eight months ago, will be inducted into the Detroit Red Wing hall of fame on Thursday ...

PEDRO RODRIQUEZ, a wiry little Mexican toughened by 17 of his 31 years behind the wheel of a racing car, buzzed past a flame-spitting Ferrari in the final 45 minutes to grab, with co-driver Jackie Oliver of England, a win for Porsche in the 24-hour Daytona endurance test. Earlier Sunday, the pair had spent an agonizing 93 minutes in the pits while their crew replaced a balky transmission ... Serge Savard of Montreal Canadiens was placed in a leg-length cast Sunday after re-fracturing his left leg in Montreal's 5-4 loss to Toronto Saturday ... Left-winger Earl Heiskala has been loaned to San Diego Gulls of the Western League for the balance of the season by Philadelphia Flyers of the NHL.

Badminton Winners

Bob Hunt and Ed Hedley (above), who first won the city open doubles badminton championship in 1959, won it for the 12th time Saturday at the Racquet Club of Victoria by defeating Dave Sorenson and Bob Lewis in the final. Since 1959, Hunt and Hedley have missed only once, in 1962. Liz-Ann Ogden (right) was the only two-event open winner, taking the women's singles and combining with Sue Moilliet for the doubles title. Giles Wins Hard Way

PRINCE GEORGE — Brent Giles of North Vancouver, Sunday skipped his lineup of Mike Gardner, Graham King and Garth Moore to the B.C. schoolboy curling championship.

Giles, who wound up in a three-way tie for first place, at 5-2, after the eight-rink round-robin playoff had ended, did it the hard way. He defeated Vancouver, 7-2, in the semi-final of the extra playoff, then took a 4-2 decision over Mission.

Next step for the Giles rinks is the Canadian championship, scheduled at Kamloops, Feb. 22-27.

NEXT GAME: Tonight — Kelowna at Penticton.

Kamloops Rockets, second-place team in the British Columbia Junior Hockey League's Okanagan Division, earned two points Sunday with a 5-3 victory over Vancouver Centennials — but they didn't make any headway.

While the Rockets were skating to their win before 1100 fans in Kamloops, division-leaders Penticton Broncos were in Chilliwack crushing the Bruins, 7-4, to stay six points ahead.

For Vancouver goals came from Keith Nordin, Ray Todd and Bill Gaston.

Kamloops goalkeeper Jim Evans, who sat out most of the year but came on after Sam Clegg was traded to Saskatchewan Blades, kicked out 35 shots.

Mike Randolph scored twice for Bruins, getting both in the third period when they were two men short. Larry Davis and Rich Kramp got the other goals.

Winless Esquimalt has beome the second team in recent weeks to desert the Senior High School Rugby League.

Esquimalt, with seven losses in seven matches and with 138 points scored against them and only 28 points on the credit side, announced they were pulling out of the league this weekend and did not field a side for Monday's scheduled game against the recently-formed Claremont "B" squad.

Earlier second from the bottom Reynolds announced they were withdrawing from the league and a new schedule was drawn up.

Meanwhile, the race for the top became tight as Claremont defeated Oak Bay, 20-8, Monday to pull into a first-place tie with Victoria high school. Victoria, however, has one game in hand.

The recent ban on the use of school playing fields brought postponement of Monday's scheduled game between Victoria and Mount View and the game now will be played on Wednesday.

Casey Walt and Terry Ponchet scored tries for Claremont in the first half and Oak Bay kept it to 6-5 by the interval with a try scored by Ross Caldwell, converted by Don Miles.

However, all Oak Bay could manage in the second half was a penalty goal booted by Miles while Claremont raced to victory with tries scored by Tim Lott, Ben Elwell, Chuck Shergold and Rene Karemaker and a convert kicked by Lott.

Groundhog Shuns Shadow

By DON COLLINS

If a groundhog could speak the English language (there's no reason to think he would want to) he would undoubtedly lay to rest that tired old myth that has him popping out of his burrow every Feb. 2 to look for his shadow.

What he is really looking for, according to those who know their groundhogs best, is the shadow of a girl groundhog. Or, more preferably, the girl herself.

Groundhogs, it seems, are pretty big on romance. And reproduction.

All of which may be a good thing for most groundhogs, with at least one exception — Vancouver Island.

The Island groundhogs — oh, yes, there is a species on the Island — would seem to be missing out on most of the fun.

To begin with, they're still in hibernation when their cousins are out courting. And their numbers, if anything, are dwindling — something that is by no means consistent with normal family growth among happy groundhogs.

Dr. Bristol Foster, director of the Provincial Museum, says the Vancouver Island variety is known as marmot.

Is a marmot a kind of groundhog?, he is asked.

"It would be more correct to say a groundhog is a kind of marmot," he answers.

The Island marmots are chocolate-coated, rare, live in such mountain regions as Green Mountain near Nanaimo and Forbidden Plateau near Courtenay, and are in danger of becoming extinct, he says. apparently a bit of a puzzle.

The fact that this is so is since the little animal hasn't too many enemies on the Island, aside from a few wolves, wolverines, cougars and eagles.

At any rate, he won't be out looking for his shadow, or anyone else's shadow today — this year's Groundhog Day.

While the others are supposedly observing this Feb. 2 ritual (if the groundhog sees his shadow we're in for another six weeks of winter), the Island marmot will be fast asleep.

In fact, because of the long winter in the higher altitudes, he can't really be expected to come out of his burrow until about June, according to Foster. By September he'll hit the sack again for the winter.

"He sleeps most of his life away," says Foster.

This, of course, could be the answer to the groundhog's problems. For no one has ever connected constant sleep with the population explosion.

It may be just as well, some experts concede. After all, the groundhog has one of the animal kingdom's fastest records when it comes to producing offspring. It takes only 28 days from mating to birth of a litter. And litters range from two to nine.

Millstone Land

Nanaimo Delays Cash Vote

NANAIMO—A decision on whether to hold a money bylaw on the Millstone Estuary property has been delayed for four weeks.

Nanaimo city council discussed Monday a motion to negotiate for an option one-third of an acre, owned by R. D. Grundy of Vancouver, and to present a bylaw to the electorate to authorize the purchase.

Ald. Ken Medland moved that the recommendation be tabled for four weeks to give the Concerned Citizens' Committee a chance to see if there might be a successful region-wide vote on the issue.

Charles MacLean, a lawyer representing Grundy, said his client had no intention of waiting to see if the electorate wished to buy the property. He said there was a large investment to protect and the industrial zoning bylaws of the city had been studied with a view of making optimum use of the land.

★ ★ ★

He said the citizens' committee seemed satisfied to strip the land of its value and let it sit and "on that basis, we have no confidence in them."

MacLean continued that negotiations were currently underway and hinted they could lead to the sale of the land and its eventual industrial use.

Philip Thornburg of the citizens' committee said the group would be willing to let the city go ahead with the bylaw under certain conditions.

★ ★ ★

Among the conditions he mentioned was the hope that the land would never be returned to private marine use and that the city should come up with some kind of comprehensive plan for the waterfront.

He suggested that perhaps greater Nanaimo could take part in the bylaw rather than just city voters in order to share the cost.

Vandals Enter Schools

DUNCAN — Four schools and a furniture store were broken into Sunday and early Monday, and vandals damaged three of the schools.

Damage at Alexandar and Somenos elementary schools and Quamichan junior high was confined mainly to broken glass, school district maintenance superintendent George Routley said Monday. Classroom supplies were scattered at Somenos School.

Books were strewn around the Alexander library, and film strips were removed from casettes.

Charles Hoey, V.C., primary school was entered but undamaged.

Port Alberni

Municipal Ills Prompt Talks

PORT ALBERNI — Concern about the attitude of the B.C. government toward the municipalities has led Ald. George McKnight to call a public meeting for 2 p.m. Sunday at Nordley's Centre.

McKnight said Monday night at council he had little hope that there would be anything in the provincial budget for the municipalities.

Although the city of Port Alberni had arbitrarily cut back $66,000 for welfare in its budget provisions in hopes there would be something come out of this session of the legislature, there were no indications as yet of any provisions for the municipalities.

Ald. George Dunbar has been asked to speak on the business tax, Ald. Mark Ivezich to speak on his proposed new service tax and Ald. Harry Rankin of Vancouver to speak on unemployment.

"I do this because it is my hope the response from the community and organized effort that resulted in such great progress previously on pollution will bring strong pressure to bear on the provincial government."

"We can't sit and wait any longer for something to happen," he said. "We can't wait until the Legislature prorogues. We have to express ourselves now."

"We have to get rid of the the soft soap approach to provincial government," Dunbar said.

Ivezich also said that he rejected the thesis of property values as the only basis for municipal taxation.

McKnight said he welcomed the announcement of a park to protect the newly-discovered caves in the Horne Lake area.

However, while the caves on the map are only three or four miles from Port Alberni city limits, those wishing to visit them will have to go 45 miles by road to do so, he said.

This is just another proof for the need for the Horne Lake road which has been a bone of contention in the community for many years, he said.

Cowichan Trustees Told:

Smaller Budget Faces College

DUNCAN — Nearly $280,000 will be shaved from Malaspina College's 1971 budget if the college council ratifies the cut made by S. E. Espley, assistant finance superintendent in the B.C. education department.

The proposed cut was announced to Cowichan school board Monday by chairman Dave Haywood, who attributed the government survey largely to last year's efforts by the Cowichan board to have the budget investigated.

"We are further ahead this year than last year, when the government did not conduct a survey," Haywood told the board.

The total essential operating expenses for the college under the Espley budget are $2,228,000. Th provincial government will pay 60 per cent, leaving the estimated district share at $890,000 less $200,000 revenue from the college.

Haywood explained that the estimated district share, which amounts to between 2 and 2.2 mills, could rise if non-shareable expenses were involved.

The board also issued a press release Monday announcing agreement between Cowichan school district and the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 606, covering salaries and working conditions for 1971 and 1972.

Eighteen full-time and 14 part-time employees will receive annual wage increases averaging $414, with an equal increase for 1972.

Winch Opens Hearing

PORT ALBERNI — Provincial Court Judge Eric Winch denied a motion for adjournment Monday as the preliminary hearing of Dr. Glen G. Stewart, 43, charged with non-capital murder following the death last fall of a mission camp caretaker, opened in Port Alberni community.

Stewart was charged Dec. 9 in the death of Gordon Adrien Kralt, 23, whose body was discovered Nov. 22 near a Pachena Bay mission camp, about 60 miles west of Port Alberni, where he had been acting as caretaker.

★ ★ ★

About 70 spectators crowded into the courtroom at Port Alberni's public safety building. Three days have been set aside for the hearing which is expected to end Wednesday.

Lawyer Rod McNeill asked for adjournment because Stewart's lawyer, Ron MacIsaac, was involved in a supreme court civil trial at New Westminster.

Winch dened the motion, saying there was a general rule that criminal charges take precedence over civil matters.

A defence motion for no publicity in the hearing was accepted by the judge.

Kralt, who had remained at the camp after the close of the summer season, was reported missing Oct. 31. His car was found in November at Nanaimo, and a rifle was discovered in Nanaimo Harbor.

Stewart was arrested in November at San Francisco and charged with possession of stolen goods. Appearing in Port Alberni on that charge Nov. 30, he was remanded for 30 days' psychiatric examination. He was charged with non-capital murder Dec. 9 and remanded in custody.

Seizure Kills Welder

Lloyd Dnubar, the 51-year-old Cobble Hill man whose heart was defibrillated 175 times at Royal Jubilee Hospital, has collapsed and died at home, apparently from the same type of ailment that felled him outside a Saanich shopping centre two months earlier.

It was early in the afternoon of Nov. 17, that Dunbar collapsed from mycardial infarction at Town and Country Shopping centre.

During the first 24 hours he was in Royal Jubilee's coronary care unit, his heart almost constantly misbehaved, either stopping or becoming erratic in its beating.

During each such episode — and it happened 175 times — an electrical shock was applied to his chest to restore normal heart activity. He was discharged from hospital in mid-December.

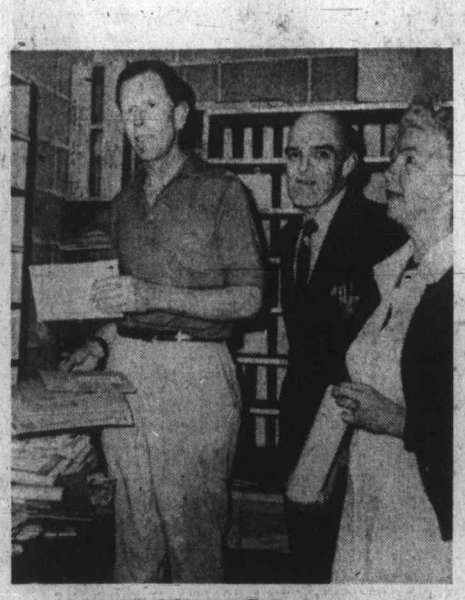

Mrs. Edith Dunbar, his widow, said Monday that the care he received at Royal Jubilee was "unbelievable ... fantastic" and her husband was doing well until the sudden and fatal seizure that killed him Saturday, Jan. 16.

Nanaimo Man Dead

NANAIMO — A Nanaimo man was declared dead on arrival at Nanaimo hospital Saturday morning.

An inquest into the death of Michael Place, 21, will be conducted, possibly by the end of next week, coroner Dr. Michael Smart said Monday.

Smart said the man was taken to hospital at 10 a.m. Saturday, apparently suffering from an overdose of drugs. An autopsy will be performed to determine cause of death, he said

Red Cross Membership Growing

Water Safety Lessons Draw Large Courtenay Enrolment

The group's activities are also growing.

President Herb Bradley said that Courtenay Red Cross water safety program was the ninth largest registered in 75 areas which have programs.

He said that last year's enrolment of students was the largest ever recorded for the local program. The pool opened in 1949.

Another nine were given leaders' instruction and other instructors attended clinics at University of B.C., Port Alberni and the University of Victoria.

Bradley said the swimming program was being evaluated. Because there was a combined Red Cross and Royal Life Saving Society course, the program was becoming more difficult to handle.

He said that 444 Grade 5 students had registered in classes sponsored by the school district. There were 118 attending classes from Courtenay swimming club, 95 from Black Creek and 51 from Comox, 138 from Royston, 26 from Cumberland and 1,370 from Courtenay.

He said that more women than men were taking lessons — 86 as against 22. A total of 29,897 people used the pool last year.

He also announced some changes in this year's program, giving three new levels — water adjustment, floater and stroker. The pre-beginner class will be discontinued.

Those will be followed by

Blood donor clinc reports showed that 829 people gave blood at four clinics. Registrations indicated that about 10 at each clinic were not allowed to give blood for various reasons. The next clinic will be held April 23.

The meeting was told that 136 various articles were borrowed by 91 people last year in an area stretching from Fanny Bay to Black Creek. A supply room, kept for emergencies, assisted a family whose home was burned.

Road Work Awarded

PORT ALBERNI — Port Alberni council, the city's harbor commission and MacMillan Bloedel have jointly awarded a contract to A. D. Storrie Construction Ltd., Port Alberni, for a new waterfront road.

Work is to begin almost immediately on the road, designed to take heavy traffic off 3rd Avenue, Port Alberni's main thoroughfare. Officials say the road is expected to be ready by April 30.

The company's bid of $117,695.90 was the lowest submitted.

Young Hosts From Nanaimo

NANAIMO — More than 200 parents and children attended an information meeting Saturday on the children's international summer village program, held throughout the world each year for 11-year-olds, to foster international understanding.

Douglas Willing To Stand

VANCOUVER (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader Tommy Douglas said Saturday he intends to run for Parliament in the next federal election if his constituents want him.

Douglas, who retires as party leader in April, indicated he would also step down as an MP if a dynamic young candidate with general support contested the party nomination in his riding of Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

"It's a good idea to have a meaningful choice," he said.

Citizens Discuss Cowichan Aims

DUNCAN — Cowichan Citizens' Centennial Co-ordinating Committee has scheduled a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Senior Citizens' Activity Centre on Canada Avenue in Duncan. Purpose of the meeting is to discuss Cowichan Valley Centennial 71 projects.

Nanaimo Workshop

Customers Needed

NANAIMO — Nanaimo's Handicapped Workshop has a problem — there are all kinds of things for sale, but not enough customers.

The workshop started eight years ago and last year was extensively renovated. About a dozen handicapped people work there regularly, making handicraft articles and repairing damaged goods for sale.

Financial support comes from many sources — the Women of the Moose, Women's auxiliary to Branch 10 Royal Canadian Legion, Kiwanis and the Ladies of the North American Benefit Association.

Employees earn a 50 per cent commission on the sale of goods they make or repair although some wind up owing the shop money by buying there themselves.

Bowell, 72, a former warehouseman, said it was a happy place for the handicapped people to work or just visit.

Charities Helped By Men

DUNCAN — Members of Duncan United Church Men's (AOTS) Club were told at their annual meeting recently that the group had given $3,000 to church and charity ventures during the year.

The report was given by retiring president Bob Ketterer who also told the meeting that the club had 61 members.

There were 110 members, wives and guests attending an installation ceremony before a special dinner meeting. They included 15 past presidents.

Sunday School Grows

PORT ALICE — Sunday school is booming in Port Alice.

St. John's Sunday School has grown from an enrolment of 27 in September to a regular attendance of more than 60 on Sunday mornings. Teenage members meeting at a separate time.

The school is a joint operation sponsored by the Roman Catholic, United and Anglican church groups. The teaching staff comes from all three and the superintendent is a Baptist layman.

The program was started by St. John's Ecumenical Church, which comprises the three churches under one roof.

"In starting the joint Sunday school, it was felt all young people should have an opportunity to decide for themselves what religion to follow," said a school spokesman. "To make such a decision, they need to have a basic knowledge of Bible history and the life of Christ."

"With this in mind, a new Bible curriculum was drawn up to present the background common to all Christian faiths."

Basketball at Cumberland

Young Players Meet In Sunday Contest

CUMBERLAND — Cumberland pre-midget boys had three of their players on an all-star team in an invitational basketball tournament in Cumberland Sunday.

In a two-game total point series for pre-midget girls, there were two girls placed on the all-star team.

In the first game, the host team beat CRA 47-0 with Larry Bennie leading his team with 16 points. The second game brought together Sayward and Campbell River, traditional rivals, in a game which Bob Woodruff's Sayward Boys won 13-9.

Sayward scoring was well distributed and, for the Campbell River team, Randy Steel sank three baskets, and a free shot, for seven points. In the third game, Sayward trounced CRA 31-2, Sacht leading the way with 11 points.

The final game in the boys' division featured Cumberland and Campbell River which Cumberland won 24-15. Kent Millburn led the Cumberland team with 10 points followed by Bennie with eight.

Named to the boy's all-star team were Larry Bennie, Kent Millburn and Terry Leung, all of Cumberland, Randy Steel, Campbell River and Steven Sprout, Sayward.

Sayward's Maureen Beston, Leslie Sprout and Sheila Kleven were on the all-star team while Cumberland representatives were Margaret Aitken and Lois Ross.

Former well-known names in Cumberland basketball circles, Aitken, Bennie, Millburn and Franceschini, all appeared on the score sheet once again. Some of the mothers of the under-12 players have placed in many B.C. championship finals, particularly the former Jacqueline Patterson and Ann Picketti.

Officials commented that as long as those names continued to appear on basketball score sheets, the game would prosper in the area.

Children's Unit—When?

By JOHN MATTERS

The proposed unit is on EMI's sixth floor and has a potential for 20 patients.

What is the reason for the delay, especially since most other parts of EMI on Fort Street have been open for a year?

Is there in fact a demonstrated need for a special unit for children with psychiatric illnesses?

No one could be found who would dispute the answer to that — yes.

For example, in Victoria's Juvenile Detention Home this weekend are twin boys, in their early teens, who are charged with a number of breaking-and-entry offences.

The parents and their doctor say there is no question that they need the psychiatric care that can be provided in a hospital.

★ ★ ★

In recent weeks, a number of other cases have been raised by parents or doctors. For example:

● A seven-year-old who is a potentially dangerous pyromaniac. He says openly that he just wants to see a big fire.

● A teenage Indian child from the B.C. Interior, who had an overdose of drugs and now is a potential suicide, but is now being kept in a ward of one of Victoria's general hospitals among elderly patients.

● A 2½-year-old child who doesn't sleep or eat and has temper tantrums. The behavior is a great strain on her parents.

The third and fourth floors of EMI are occupied by adults needing psychiatric care. Some parts of those units have been open as long as 11 months.

The question then is raised as to why at least a corner of either of those floors should not be used for adolescent or child psychiatry.

The answer lies in a number of factors: the physical layout of the area prevents such isolation, the mixing of adolescents with adults has produced some displays of sexual aggression, and the staff that treats adults might not have the qualifications to care for psychotic children.

The question is also raised as to the hospital's responsibility for the care of each patient. If a 13-year-old were harmed in an adult ward, should not the hospital be asked to explain its role?

The answer is yes — a hospital that expects a patient to sign away civil rights when he is admitted has a moral responsibility to protect the patient.

★ ★ ★

However, individual hospitals can only make suggestions as to what is needed in staff-patient ratios. The final decision, the decision on what society can afford, is made by B.C. Hospital Insurance Service on behalf of the health minister.

This now gives rise to the issue of costs and this is the theme of the dispute that is stalling the opening of the special unit for disturbed children on EMI's sixth floor.

Doctors and the hospital want the unit run by a psychiatrist who would probably work half-days there. Because this would keep the psychiatrist away from his office practice, doctors say he should be paid what is called a sessional fee for his attendance in the unit.

However, the government is reluctant to accept the sessional fee proposal because other hospitals in B.C. would have a legitimate claim to equal treatment and there are fears that this might eventually become an expensive addition to escalating hospital costs.

The presence of a fully-qualified practitioner is sought because the children's unit is expected to employ a diversity of specialties — psychologists and a social worker, for example, in addition to nurses.

A psychiatrist in the unit would be able to co-ordinate those specialists as well as supervise treatment programs that are more individualized in the cases of children than they are with adults.

It also is argued that a specialist on duty in the unit would be able to teach colleagues much more thoroughly than he would if he encountered them only intermittently.

This would be especially applicable in the cases of general practitioners, who then might be prepared to do more effective counselling in their own offices, thus avoiding the trauma and public expense of sending a child to hospital.

Jobless Estimates Difficult to Guage

By JIM BRAHAN

Calculating the exact size of the unemployment problem in the Victoria area is a kind of numbers game. The only agreement it's possible to get is that the situation is serious.

•

Canada Manpower in Victoria issues a different set of figures on the unemployment picture than does the Unemployment Insurance Commission for the same period.

Both sets of figures are correct but neither presents a true picture of the unemployment situation because they are not only calculated differently, but the UIC's area is larger than Manpower's territory on the southern tip of Vancouver Island.

UIC's district manager Douglas Hain in Victoria said Saturday his area is just south of Ladysmith, west to Port Renfrew, and also takes in the Gulf Islands.

"We go by the actual count of those who register with our department for full or part-time work," he said.

Hain said the UIC bases its figures on the "current claim load." It is now 9,000.

"It is about 20 per cent higher this year than it was last year at this time."

Up to 50 Per Cent of Benefits

He also said an unemployed person can be working part-time and is entitled to earn up to 50 per cent of his benefit rate without affecting his benefit.

Hain agreed that Manpower's unemployment figures differ from that of the UIC.

"But it is not fair to compare them because we take in Duncan and Lake Cowichan where many are employed in the logging industry, which is seasonal."

He also said a large number of claims is from people who come out here from the prairie provinces and have their claims transferred to the Victoria office.

He also observed that some unemployed people are not entitled to claim for various reasons and therefore are not counted.

Manpower's manager said his department figures "do not show a true picture" of the unemployment situation in this area. The count is made every 30 days and during the intervening period some of those registered with Manpower have moved out of the area and some have voluntarily withdrawn from the work force, he said.

He said his office couldn't compare this year's unemployment figures with those for the same time last year because the office is using a different method of reporting than was used last year.

Bevis also noted that many workers did not register for work with Manpower. Some report to their union business agents for work, and others prefer to find employment on their own.

On a 10-Year Average, It's High

However, Building and Trades Council secretary John Schibli, whose territory covers all Vancouver Island and has a membership of 6,000, said that unemployment, taken on a 10-year average, is high this year.

He said between 600 and 700 of the membership is currently unemployed.

"We are fortunate right now because the plumbers and electricians are fairly busy, but unemployment is high among the carpenters, laborers and operating engineers," he said.

He observed that many jobs which the council had counted on are late in getting started.

"There has been a long delay in starting the Gorge Road Hospital addition, and we also counted on one or two highrises in Victoria which have not started," he said.

Boilermakers' business agent Neil Hindle said there are about 120 members of his union out of work.

"Last week about 100 of our people were laid off," he said and explained it was caused by the stern section of a newsprint barge at Yarrows Ltd. in Esquimalt, being finished.

He compared the unemployment situation in the area to an iceberg.

"There are a great number of unemployed that do not show up in any government agency figures," he said.

Band Was Faster

By DON GAIN

A second swimming pool for Saanich was announced Saturday by Mayor Hugh Curtis at the opening of the $514,000 Gordon Head Recreation Centre, which includes a pool.

There was an almost audible silence from the more than 300 invited guests seated in the hall of the new centre. As they watched the mayor up on the stage, backed by his aldermen, some of them were counting up mentally the number of pools in the area now.

The mayor said the pool had been the subject of several secret meetings but the decision had finally been reached.

"And if you will just bring it out now," he said, turning toward the back of the stage, "I will present it to Ald. Alan Newberry, chairman of the building committee."

With that a child's plastic swimming pool was brought out and the mayor handed it to Ald. Newberry.

"This is a fun afternoon," Curtis had said earlier when the ceremonies began.

The singing of O Canada opened the program. The guests were lusty singers but the accompaniment, the band of Arbutus junior high school, directed by E. J. Michaux in the adjoining meeting room, was lustier and faster.

At one point the singers realized they had missed a beat somewhere and all stopped short and waited until they could get synchronized again. But the band still finished before them and the singing was followed by gales of laughter.

It was a fun afternoon. The atmosphere of the centre seemed to put everybody in a good mood as guests rubbernecked at the sloping ceilings and laminated curved beams, admired the simple, attractive lighting and the happy combinations of color — sand, khaki and a warm orange set off by areas of stark white and black-brown.

The mayor said there was one note of sadness and that was the fact that the late Arthur Lambrick, a former reeve of Saanich, did not live to see his farm turned into a recreational area.

He was determined that his land would not become just another subdivision, but would be used as open space, Curtis said, in welcoming members of the Lambrick family in the audience.

★ ★ ★

"This facility is for the residents of Greater Victoria," the mayor said. "We are now repaying a debt which has been accumulating over the years. As with the George Pearkes Arena, people from throughout the area will come here and enjoy themselves."

Archie McKinnon, well-known YM-YWCA swimming and track and field coach, officially opened the centre by cutting a ribbon on a poolside diving board.

Portelance Wins Gold

BURNABY — Eleven-year-old Doug Portelance of Colwood's Juan de Fuca Cohos Swim Club splashed home in one minute, 15.9 seconds to win the gold medal in the 100-metre backstroke in the Pacific Centennial Invitational swim meet at Simon Fraser University pool Sunday.

Competing in the boys 11 and 12 years age group, Portelance also placed fifth in the 200-metre freestyle event.

Other Coho swimmers in the finals were Chris Price, who finished fifth in the 100-metre butterfly event for boys 13 and 14; Dan Vosper, who placed fifth in the 100-metre backstroke for boys 13 and 14, and Dale Long, who was sixth in the backstroke.

City Juniors Top Seattle Shuttle Play

SEATTLE — Evan Jones of the Racquet Club of Victoria defeated Seattle's Jess Wilcoxen, 18-13, 11-15, 15-5 to win the boys' 15and-under singles title in the Washington State junior badminton championships Sunday.

Jones then joined James McKenzie, also of the Racquet Club, to take the doubles crown, defeating Wilcoxon and Ron Mylberg of Seattle in the final.

The boys' 13-and-under singles final was an all-Victoria affair with Angus Izard coming from behind for a 10-15, 15-12, 15-4 win over Don Woodland in the final.

Public Mood in Texas 'Nasty'

From UPI, LAT

DALLAS — Texas, home of Billie Sol Estes and the state where people used to drill wells crooked so they could steal other folks' oil, is in the scandal business again. This time the state has gone to the top.

Two weeks ago a representative of the Securities and Exchange Commission had some assistants carry boxes and boxes of papers into the federal courthouse in Dallas.

He then quietly filed a suit in the court of U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, the grandmotherly lady who swore in President Lyndon B. Johnson aboard Air Force One the afternoon of President John. F. Kennedy's assassination.

In the 14 days that have passed that suit has caused a federal grand jury to indict one man for perjury, created the first bank failure in Houston since Texas' banking laws were established 66 years ago and put two insurance firms in the hands of the state government.

Most of all, however, it has sent a wave of distrust across the state. And much of it is aimed at high state officials — Governor Preston Smith included. The public mood is nasty.

"They want to hang somebody, and they don't know who," said state Rep. Joe Bernal, a Democrat from San Antonio. "They think the government is getting rich off the public."

No state official has been charged in court with any wrongdoing.

The public's reaction comes from testimony taken by the SEC in its investigation which led to the suit. The suit, now only a minor issue in the case, seeks to stop a group of people and companies from

Strike Continues

BUSMEN SAY NO

By DON COLLINS

The "young militants" won the day Monday and the Victoria - Vancouver transit strike continues.

Soon after the strikers had voted a mere 51.6 per cent rejection of a contract recommended by their own leaders, provincial Labor Minister Leslie Peterson told the Colonist:

"I will be discussing the strike with the cabinet tomorrow morning (Tuesday) and I will be making certain recommendations."

He said he could not elaborate because the recommendations would have to be heard first by the cabinet, then by the Legislature.

Under terms of the controversial B.C. Mediation Act. (Bill 33) cabinet could order compulsory arbitration and send the 1,800 bus drivers and mechanics in Victoria and Vancouver back to work.

Sources within the Amalgamated Transit Union told the Colonist they feel the vote was influenced considerably by a group they described variously as "young militants," a "radical element" and an "activist bloc."

Some union officers were unable to hide their disappointment over the outcome of the vote.

The result means continuation of a strike that has idled B.C. Hydro's complete fleets of more than 600 buses and trolley coaches in Vancouver and Victoria since Jan. 4.

★ ★ ★

The latest offer was recommended by the union's negotiating committee after it had spent the better part of last week in talks with Hydro negotiators.

Highlights of the offer:

- A wage increase over 27 months of 14¾ per cent on top of the $3.75 an hour earned now by drivers and the $4.35 rate of mechanics.
- Improvement in travel time pay.
- More pay for working statutory holidays.

Originally, Hydro had offered 13 per cent over two years. The union sought 20 per cent. The B.C. Mediation Commission, after hearings

Journey 'Worth Effort'

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Bureau

OTTAWA — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, in a harder-hitting mood than he has ever shown before in his three years in the commons, has given Prime Minister Trudeau a rough parliamentary "welcome home" from the Commonwealth conference at Singapore.

The tough-talking opposition leader, from the moment he began speaking Monday in the House, ridiculed the prime minister, making caustic comment about Trudeau's leisure-hour "swinging," as he described it, at the conference.

And then he read him a sharp-worded "message" that the time for "frivolity" abroad was over and that it was long past time for "concerted action" to solve urgently "pressing problems" here at home.

★ ★ ★

Cuttingly critical too of the returning prime minister were both New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas and J. A. H. Lambert, Creditiste MP for Bellechasse.

It all came at the prime minister in response to the brief, quiet, low-key report he made on his Commonwealth mission.

In essence, he said he had discovered that "Canada could live without the Commonwealth, but not nearly so well."

★ ★ ★

And if he and the Canadian delegation had "reduced the chances" of future racial war in Africa and contributed "to the success of the conference" by defusing, to some extent, the potentially explosive issue of British arms sales to South Africa, then he felt their efforts had been "well expended."

Stanfield gave the prime minister some marks, even "congratulations" for the part he felt Trudeau had "played in preventing a Commonwealth break-up at this time."

But that was just about the only kind or even soft word the opposition leader had for the prime minister.

★ ★ ★

With no suggestion of a smile that might have been a signal that perhaps he was kidding, Stanfield referred to the prime minister's "behavior," as he termed, it with Joan the orangoutang which pulled at Trudeau's shorts, and recalled Douglas later, did some "smooching" with him.

This might be seen as "frivilous" conduct, suggested Stanfield, but he didn't see it that way, well knowing of the prime minister's "abiding affection for wildlife."

BULLETIN

TOKYO (UPI) — The Japanese Kyodo News Agency said Tuesday several thousand South Vietnamese paratroopers landed in southern Laos in a predawn operation Monday. Supported by the U.S. air force, the operation involved from 4,000 to 5,000 South Vietnamese troops. (See story Page 3.)

Jobless: Trudeau Optimistic

OTTAWA (CP) — The seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate has likely reached its peak and will start declining substantially over the next few months, Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday.

Trudeau refused to entertain suggestions that the government adopt new emergency measures to produce more jobs.

★ ★ ★

Trudeau said the opposition parties should not expect new measures to be announced every week or so. The government had acted to stimulate the economy last March and again in June, September and December.

These measures now were taking effect and unemployment would improve "as time goes by."

December figures showed a seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate of 6.6 per cent. The figures represent 538,000 out of work.

Trudeau told the Commons absolute numbers would likely increase through January and February but the rate, when seasonal factors are taken into account, would likely fall below 6.6.

Huge Lockout Threatened

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — The government Monday threatened its employees with a "massive lockout" if their unions go ahead with enlarged strike actions later this week.

About 2,500 government employees went on strike Monday to press for higher wages. As many as 50,000 employees could be involved in the lockout.

'Canadian' Stays CPR Ordered

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission ordered the Canadian Pacific Railway Monday to continue daily operation, year-round, of its transcontinental passenger train, The Canadian.

But it said the railway should put sleeping and dining car services on a paying basis or drop them. Subsidies for dining car losses will be ended next year and those for sleeping car losses shortly after.

For long-term policy, meanwhile, the ruling proposes the "rationalization" of the money-losing transcontinental services of both CP Rail and Canadian National Railways, the Crown-owned line.

The commission intends to undertake a comprehensive study of both services as soon as CN can calculate the losses of its Super-Continental. The aim will be to develop one basic passenger service healthy enough to justify continuing subsidies from the federal government.

The ruling, signed by commission president J. W. Pickersgill, brought an immediate, angry reaction from spokesmen for unions which have been fighting any reduction in services offered to rail travellers.

"The commison has done a magnificent job of setting the stage to foist the obligation to provide passenger service entirely on to the back of the taxpayer through the Crown-owned corporation," stated an official of the United Transport Union.

The transport commission's ruling follows its decision last June to reject an application by CP Rail to scrap The Canadian.

The railway stated the Montreal - Vancouver service lost $15.1 million in 1968.

West Berlin Recuperates

BERLIN (AP) — Traffic on West Berlin access ways returned to normal Monday but six days of East German harassment left heavy economic losses in its wake.

Apollo Locked On Target After 'Burn'

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI) — Three U.S. space pilots outdistanced their mysterious troubles Tuesday and closed in on a Friday moon landing that would put the Apollo program back on the track.

They took dead aim on an ancient lunar valley late Monday with a 10-second blast of their big rocket engine that denied them a guaranteed free-return home if anything went wrong.

"That was a mighty good burn there," said Stuart A. Roosa, 37, who will have to fly the Kitty Hawk command ship alone in lunar orbit while his companions go in search of moon rocks up to five billion years old.

Alan B. Shepard, at 47, the oldest astronaut, and his rookie companion Edgar D. Mitchell, hope to spend up to 33 hours on the moon and take two moonwalks of up to five hours each.

Before their course change, they would have looped 2,335 miles behind the moon and headed back on a safe course for Earth had anything gone wrong. But now, they will skim far closer to the moon and must trigger another burst of rocket power to get themselves safely home.

The course change was necessary so the astronauts will arrive at the moon at the right time and at the right altitude to reach their desired landing spot. It is an ancient lunar valley where Apollo 13 was headed before a near disastrous oxygen tank blast sent its crew scurrying home for safety.

★ ★ ★

It appeared for many hours Monday the Apollo 14 landing also would be scrubbed because of difficulty with some docking latches. But the problem disappeared as mysteriously as it popped up.

The astronauts worked on the problem for nearly 12 hours before asking Houston control if they could get some sleep.

By the time they awoke ground controllers had decided that the problem, whatever it was, had disappeared.

Slide Links Opened

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The Canadian Pacific Railway main line through the Rocky Mountains was cleared at 9:15 p.m. MST Monday about five hours after an avalanche blocked the line and the Trans-Canada Highway.

The highway was re-opened to one-way traffic at 10:25 p.m. and two-way traffic was expected to be restored shortly after midnight.

Parks department employees set the slide off in Yoho National Park Monday afternoon with 12 pounds of explosive dropped from a helicopter when it was feared "the slightest vibration from a truck would set it off."

The slide was the latest in a series that has plugged several highways in the Banff region. The Banff-Jasper Highway and Highway 93 linking Radium Hot Springs, B.C. and the Trans-Canada Highway are closed until further notice.

Ninety guests at Sunshine Village ski resort near Banff were taken out by bus Monday after being trapped in the ski area for two days after a series of slides plugged the access road.

Rivers Falling

Richardson Subsidiary Must Pay $1.25 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — The Exchequer Court of Canada has ordered Richardson Terminals Ltd. of Winnipeg — a subsidiary of James Richardson and Sons Ltd. of Winnipeg — to pay back taxes of almost $1.25 million on profits transferred to an associated firm from 1963 to 1967.

Involved in the case were "an interwoven family group of companies" controlled by James Richardson and Sons, owned at the time by James A. Richardson, his brother George and their sisters.

House Normal Again— Crowds, Smiles, Snarls

OTTAWA (CP) — While Prime Minister Trudeau was in Asia — ever since the House resumed after the Christmas recess — the chamber never seemed its usual self.

The daily question period tended to drag. There didn't appear to be an excessive dose of either smiles or snarls, and even the occasional attempt at humor seemed flat.

Then Trudeau returned to the Commons Monday. The officials' gallery was packed, and so was the gallery reserved for senators and their friends. There was standing room only in the press gallery.

When Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield rose a few minutes later, his followers tried to outdo the Liberals. Then the New Democrats had a turn when their leader, T. C. Douglas, got to his feet.

Seven-Month Revolt Tapers Off in Italy

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (LAT) — The first trains in 10 days rolled in and out of this strife-torn city Monday amid signs that its seven-month revolt may be tapering off.

Bank clerks also voted to return to work as a climate of exhaustion and revulsion to further violence set in after 15 bomb explosions over the weekend.

And in Rome, compromise appeared to be taking shape in the government's decision to name the rival town of Catanaro capital of a new administrative region. It was this that touched off the revolt.

The end seemed approaching Sunday as parishioners emerged from mid-morning mass to find three motorized military and police patrols at the alert along the garbage-littered main street.

"You must understand that Reggio has been the principal city of this region beginning 1,000 years before the birth of Jesus Christ — for 3,000 years," Fr. Giovanni Rongoni said.

"And Catanaro," Father Rongoni added disdainfully, "why, it has been a city for only 1,500 years."

17-Year-Olds

Courts Held Up

By BRUCE LOWTHER

All charges in B.C. against 17-year-olds are going to be held up pending the outcome of a provincial government appeal against a Vancouver judge's ruling last Friday that people of that age must be tried in juvenile and family courts, not adult court.

The Daily Colonist learned Monday that the attorney-general's department has sent a directive recommending such action to all Provincial Court prosecutors in B.C.

While final decisions in such matters are up to the judges, the outcome throughout the province is expected to be what it was Monday in Victoria Provincial Court — adjournment of charges whether they were laid before or after the Vancouver ruling.

Two cases came before Judge William Ostler:

● Two 17-year-olds were charged jointly with breaking, entering and theft Sunday at the home of Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage, 2272 Oak Bay.

● A third 17-year-old appeared for trial on a charge of theft involving less than $50 last Dec. 14 from The Bay.

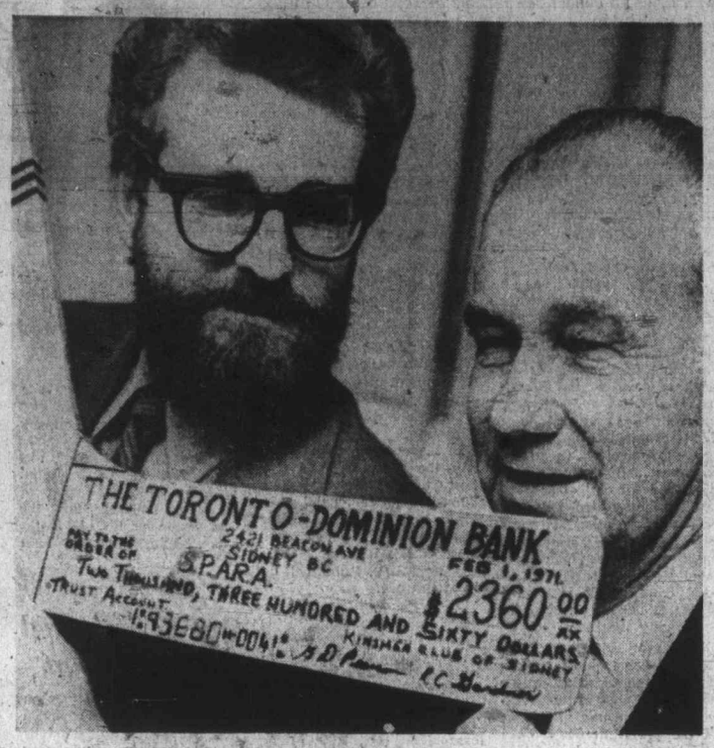

The break-in charge was heard first, with prosecutor John Macintyre formally applying for an adjournment pending the outcome of the appeal against the ruling of Vancouver Provincial Court Judge John Anderson.

That ruling declared the federal government had no right last year to lower the B.C. juvenile age to 17 from 18, an action it took at the request of the B.C. government.

Ostler explained the problem to the two 17-year-olds, then put the case over to next Tuesday, when a further adjournment is likely. They were released on bail of $500 each.

The theft trial was remanded to Feb. 15 with the accused continuing on $100 cash bail. The judge said the appeal was being pressed and "perhaps we'll know" by then the date of the appeal court's decision, if not the decision itself.

Adult Institute Surplus Pondered

College Windfall May Bump Fees

A windfall surplus of $73,000 from the 1970 Institute of Adult Studies was reported to the college council Monday night, and councillors are pondering it's best use.

The entire amount could be put over into the 1971 budget, reducing the taxpayers share from 0.9 mills to 0.77 mills — or, on an average $20,000 home, from $5.75 to $4.85.

On the other hand a bursary fund might be set up with the district's share of the suplus — some $36,000 — so that college fees could be raised to $250 for those who could pay.

This would mean a local cost of $303,962, which works out to 0.8 mills, or $5.04 in taxes on that $20,000 home.

Executive officer, A. J. Longmore reported to the council that at the end of 1970 there was a capital surplus of $10,115 and an operating surplus of $63,267. However, some of that money had been needed in other sections of the institute budget so that the actual surplus was about $56,500.

That entire amount, he said, could be carried over into the 1971 budget.

Reason for the surplus, according to Longmore, was curtailing of expenditures once it was realized that the institute would close in 1971. Area ratepayers approved the establishment of the new college last fall.

Councillor Peter Bunn suggested that the district's share of the surplus should be placed into a bursary fund for students who could not afford fees of $250.

He said if investigations showed this to be possible, he would then suggest that college fees should be pegged at $250, instead of the present $200.

Bunn said if that were done, then the college budget would be within the amount which taxpayers felt they had been promised.

Controversy arose last December when a budget was approved that would represent a mill-rate increase in the first year of operation. Prior to the referendum establishing the college, school board spokesmen had said there would be no increased costs.

Institute students first voted to ask for tution fees to be increased and then reversed their decision, while college councillor Dr. Victor Rogers resigned last month over what he described as a "dishonest budget."

Bunn said Monday only the three smallest of B.C.'s eight colleges charged fees of $250 — the others charged $200.

He read letters from the presidents of Capilano, Vancouver City, and Douglas college who said that even at $200 they are getting cases of students unable to afford fees.

Longmore pointed out that in addition to fees, students have to pay for each laboratory they use, buy their books and pay student activity fees.

Island Brides

Arrest Total Zero

Vancouver Island is getting "its share" of marriage-divorce schemes arranged for evasion of Canadian immigration laws, a Victoria immigration official said Monday.

"The question is how do you prove it?" J. H. Smith, district supervisor of the immigration department's Victoria office, told the Colonist.

The brides-for-hire scheme in which would-be immigrants to Canada paid for brief marriages of convenience — some of them to female impersonators — in order to qualify for landed immigrant status was cracked over the weekend by immigration officials in Vancouver working with police.

L. C. Hawkins, Pacific region director of the immigration department, said Monday that applications for landed immigrancy by about 300 East Indian men were being held back while the investigation continues.

The men involved in the scheme, he said, were all those persons who would be unqualified for landed immigrancy except for the fact of marriage to Canadian citizens. In some cases, he said, the "wives" were male transvestites posing as females.

A "wife" would go through the marriage ceremony, testify to the marriage and do her own Canadian citizenship, then have the marriage annulled after the "husband" was granted landed immigrant status.

Hawkins said a 10-month probe revealed that brides were paid from about $200 to $1,000 to co-operate.

★ ★ ★

Two persons were arrested Sunday and charged jointly with three counts of conspiring to violate the immigration act by making misleading statements. Warrants for two others were issued.

Arrested and held on bail of $3,500 each were Marilyn Joyce Fleck, 22, of Vancouver and Jarnel Singh, 37, of Mission City.

Hawkins said the marriages of convenience came to light last March, when it was noticed that "wives" and "husbands" needed interpreters to converse. It was also noticed that the couples split up and went their separate ways when leaving immigration offices.

★ ★ ★

In Victoria, Smith said, "there is a fair-sized East Indian community on Vancouver Island and it's only natural to assume that Vancouver Island gets its share of such marriage arrangements," Smith said.

But no Island arrests had been made, he added.

Asked if the Victoria office reports suspected cases of marriages-of-convenience to the regional immigration office in Vancouver for further investigation, Smith declined to comment.

To his knowledge, Smith said, there had been no cases of female impersonation by males on Vancouver Island, as has been the case in Vancouver.

Under Canadian immigration law, an "independent" applicant for landed immigrancy needs some 50 points on a scale based on his occupation, his education, his chances of finding employment and other qualifications.

A man married to a Canadian citizen is considered a "sponsored" applicant and has a far better chance to gain entry, Hawkins said.

Groundhog Day? Not Here, Charlie

By DON COLLINS

If a groundhog could speak the English language (there's no reason to think he would want to) he would undoubtedly lay to rest that tired old myth that has him popping out of his burrow every Feb. 2 to look for his shadow.

What he is really looking for, according to those who know their groundhogs best, is the shadow of a girl groundhog. Or, more preferably, the girl herself.

All of which may be a good thing for most groundhogs, with at least one exception — Vancouver Island.

The Island groundhogs — oh, yes, there is a species on the Island — would seem to be missing out on most of the fun.

To begin with, they're still in hibernation when their cousins are out courting. And their numbers, if anything, are dwindling — something that is by no means consistent with normal family growth among happy groundhogs.

Dr. Bristol Foster, director of the Provincial Museum, says the Vancouver Island variety is known as marmot.

Is a marmot a kind of groundhog?, he is asked.

"It would be more correct to say a groundhog is a kind of marmot," he answers.

The Island marmots are chocolate-coated, rare, live in such mountain regions as Green Mountain near Nanaimo and Forbidden Plateau near Courtenay, and are in danger of becoming extinct, he says.

The fact that this is so is apparently a bit of a puzzle, since the little animal hasn't too many enemies on the Island, aside from a few wolves, wolverines, cougars and eagles.

At any rate, he won't be out looking for his shadow, or anyone else's shadow today — this year's Groundhog Day.

While the others are supposedly observing this Feb. 2 ritual (if the groundhog sees his shadow we're in for another six weeks of winter), the Island marmot will be fast asleep.

In fact, because of the long winter in the higher altitudes, he can't really be expected to come out of his burrow until about June, according to Foster. By September he'll hit the sack again for the winter.

"He sleeps most of his life away," says Foster.

This, of course, could be the answer to the groundhog's problems. For no one has ever connected constant sleep with the population explosion.

It may be just as well, some experts concede. After all, the groundhog has one of the animal kingdom's fastest records when it comes to producing offspring. It takes only 28 days from mating to birth of a litter. And litters range from two to nine.

'Reverend Doctor'

"I've been ordained," he told the Colonist Monday.

All it took, he said, was some money — "the amount is between me and God" — and an application to the Universal Free Life Church of Hollywood, Fla.

His church, he said, will be an empty lot on Carberry Gardens and from there he will preach.

"Now," he chuckled, "I'm in one class with Gaglardi and Billy Graham . . . and I'll be asking Victoria city council for tax exemption on my church property."

Brothers, on University Administrator:

Degrees Not Key Factor

The number of degrees a man holds is not necessarily the main criterion when it comes to choosing him as a university president, Education Minister Donald Brothers said Monday.

Brothers was commenting outside the Legislature on the current controversy at the University of Victoria surrounding the status of president Bruce Partridge's two law degrees from Blackstone School of Law, a Chicago correspondence school.

The controversy, he said, was not really the concern of his department as it was an "internal" matter of the university.

But, Brothers said, he felt a university president should be basically an administrator. He could say, he added, that from observation of Partridge and from dealing with him, that the UVic president was "a first-class — and you can underline first-class — administrator."

Because a university president's main function will be in administration, the number of degrees he holds is not necessarily a main criterion in picking him, Brothers said.

Three presidents of Western Canada universities interviewed by the Colonist Monday tended to be sympathetic towards Partridge, and three others declined to comment on the case.

But the national secretary of the Canadian Association of University Teachers, Dr. Aowyn Berland, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa that statements by the university board of governors that Partridge was hired solely as an administrator were "preposterous."

Berland said that CAUT had no official policy regarding appointments to administrative posts but it was assumed that such appointments would include "a solid academic background."

However, he said he had no knowledge of Partridge or the requirements of the university at the time the president was chosen.

"If the board of selection was looking for a businessman at that time I suppose academic qualifications would have been a matter of lesser importance," Berland said.

He added that CAUT had had several differences of opinion with Partridge since the appointment but that had nothing to do with the present situation.

The CAUT sent a fact-finding mission to UVic last month concerning a controversy over procedures used by the administration in denying tenure to two assistant professors and refusing promotion to a lecturer. A report is expected in the near future.

University of B.C. president Dr. Walter Gage said Monday that he had no desire to comment on the matter. When he learned the subject of the call he relayed the message through his secretary.

In many cases a selection board, taking the overall position of the university into consideration, might choose a man to fill the bill and not make their judgment on the basis of academics or administration, said Dr. Max Wyman, president of the University of Alberta.

Said Dr. D. F. Lardner, Notre Dame University of Nelson: "It's all so very interesting isn't it? Comment? Of course not."

★ ★ ★

Brandon University's Dr. Lloyd Dulmage said that in many cases there was no tenure for a university president, often because they might lack academic qualifications. They were, instead, on contract to the university.

In other words, said Dulmage, they were chosen for their administrative ability rather than for their academic qualifications. He suggested that this might be the case in Victoria.

Information officer for Simon Fraser University, Dennis Roberts, said he was certain the president, Dr. K. T. Strand, would not care to comment in a general or specific way.

"Even the most general comment would be interpreted as a specific observation on the Victoria situation — and that wouldn't do," Roberts said. Dr. A. W. R. Carrothers, president of the University of Calgary, said: "A university president should be about 34 years of age. It helps if he is a bachelor and is equipped with a strong streak of masochism. He must, of course, be able to walk on water and prepared to sit at the right hand of God when he dies."

Journey Will Go Back in Time

The good old days of steam transportation will return to the Victoria area May 1 when the Victoria Pacific Railway starts excursion trips from Colwood to Saanich and return.

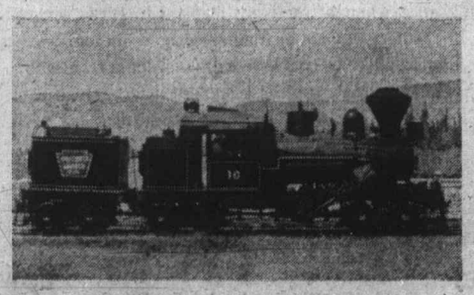

Douglas Eyri and Terry Ferguson of Pacific Tours Ltd., Vancouver, told Saanich council about it Monday night and received that body's blessing, even though no approval was necessary.

Two 1928 locomotives will be used for the excursions. One is a Climax engine, the former Hillcrest Logging's No. 10. The other is a Mikado, formerly Comox Logging's No. 16.

The partners have three passenger cars, one with an observation platform and, for maintaining the line, a flatcar, a boxcar, a caboose and a crane.

They said they will build a station at Colwood adjacent to Sooke Highway. An 1890 private railway car will serve as an office.

No. 10 back in service with new name

The CNR is making its track available for the five-mile run, which will end just inside the Saanich border near Admirals Road, they said. The train will back into town and then travel back to Colwood. The round trip will take about 45 minutes.

Excursions will be held in daylight hours only. They are to start, weekends only, May 1, with daily service commencing May 24 and running through till the end of August.

Ferguson said limitations have been made to the locomotives which would keep noise down. No smoke would be emitted, he said.
